Debate on the Kellogg-Briand treaty has progressed to such a point now that the only question to be decided is whether to submit to foreign governments a formal report of the Senate or a bunch of Congressional Records.

* * * *

The Treasury for the first time discloses a grand total of $2,614,896,000 in tax rebates, and let us hope you got yours, but what a nick this put in Coolidgeconomy!

* * * *

Senator Brookhart's Supreme Court for Government clerks doesn't go far enough—is there to be no provision whereby a private in the Army can court-martial the Secretary of War?

The Fourth Conference on the Cause and Cure of war seems to be better informed as to the former than the latter, as the Kellogg treaty starts its first fight.

Rothstein's secret vault is opened and discloses a ping-pong table. That place must have been padlocked since 1901.

* * * *

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, contributes the most striking news thus far advanced in the treaty debate. When the Manchester Guardian interprets the pact as meaning that the British reserve the right to go to war "whenever such war has a strategic object which it can call vital," why shouldn't Uncle Sam's guardian have a right to interpret it?

* * * *

And there's much to be said in favor of Joe Robinson's characterization of the debate of 95 Senators "prolonging indefinitely a controversy which has no substance." It's like waiting for an echo from a revolving door.

With a $50,000,000 deficit staring her in the face China is at last beginning to feel that she is becoming up-to-date and Westernized.

Russia offers to help Senator Borah run down the forgers of the fake documents. A man with long, scraggly whiskers is suspected, which simplifies the whole thing!

* * * *

Now that Chicago can legally draw off the water of Lake Michigan, why not restore the level by pouring in all the captured booze smuggled over from Canada?

* * * *

Senator from Utah needs more time to study the simple little problem that everybody else in Washington understands, and the Brookhart bill, to put a little more pep in the Government clerks' Grape-juice Law, goes over. There is one King who always may be relied upon never to abdicate his imperial throne.

But who will interpret the interpretation of the interpretation?

The traffic jam that the New York theatrical business will have to break up to remove the hex on the box office is the one that occurs in front of the ticket agencies. Grover Whalen may be a Wiz but he is no witch.

Representatives of the iron and steel industries appear before the Ways and Means Committee hat in hand. It seems they're going to help the farmer by putting a higher duty on plows and hoes.

There is no more historic neighborhood in Washington than the squares between Third and Sixth streets, and C street and Judiciary Square, which are to be taken over for the new Municipal Center. In the 300 block in C street, in the old days, lived Francis Scott Key, Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, John C. Fremont and Thomas H. Benton, at a time when this was the social heart of the Capital; while the neighborhood is rich in traditions of the District Government, early Masonry in Washington, and the beginnings of our theater. * * * *

Gen. Bramwell Booth, as he clings desperately to his job, should congratulate himself that he hasn't got Will Wood on his trail.

* * * *

The story that Abraham Lincoln shot an antagonist in a duel with a shotgun loaded with pokeberries sounds like one he would have liked to tell himself at a Cabinet meeting, and the fact that he didn't rather discredits it. That was one Lincoln couldn't have kept.

APPEALS COURT ADVOCATED FOR U. S. EMPLOYES

Provision Made in Bill by Brookhart to Remove Injustices in Pay.

SENATOR TELLS PLANS TO TREASURY GROUP

Tribunal Independent of All Departments, With Final Decision Proposed.

A civil service court of appeals, composed of independent individuals higher in authority than the heads of the departments before which the employes of the Government could lay their grievances, is provided for in a bill which is being drafted by Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), Iowa.

Brookhart made the announcement last night at a mass meeting in the Interior auditorium, and it was greeted with applause by the 1,200 Government workers present. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Treasury local, National Federation of Federal Employes, and was designed to acquaint the workers with the status of legislation to correct inequalities in the Welch pay-raise act.

Court Long Advocated.

The Federation of Federal Employes has long sought a civil service court of appeals, and at the last national convention of the American Federation of Labor persuaded that organization to indorse the idea. Such a court would be open to an employe who felt he had been unjustly treated in the matter of a demotion, a decrease in pay, or other manifestation of official tyranny. The court's decision would be final and binding.

Brookhart said his bill is intended to correct the inequalities in the Welch act. He told how the salary steps he had advocated at the last session of Congress were reduced in conference, and of the confusion that followed. No. 7, he said, he is asking that Congress undo what was done in that conference, and give the employes the increases they are supposed to get.

His bill, he said, was called up on the calendar in the Senate yesterday, but because one senator wanted further time to study the measure no action was taken. The senator was King (Democrat), of Utah.

Passage Declared Certain.

"In any event," Brookhart said, amid cheers, "the bill will pass when it comes up, and it will pass by an overwhelming majority. And there is a suspicion that the main features of it will be approved by the House civil service committee."

Representative Richard J. Welch, of California, father of the salary legislation, declared President Coolidge and "Lord God of the Budget" Lord had emasculated his original pay bill. But even so, he said, if that bill, despite its cost, were to be called up in the Senate or House tomorrow it would pass easily.

Incidentally, Brookhart frankly told the employes that, while he was out to fight their fights, he wished they wouldn't crowd into his office with their troubles. He told of 15 women who had filed in to see him, and added:

"I want you to quit coming to see

Jury Frees Felon Held As Habitual Criminal

Chicago, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—A jury rebuffed the State's first attempt to invoke the Illinois habitual criminal act today by acquitting Gerald Baker, 32, paroled convict, accused of attempted robbery. He admited entering an apartment, but declared he was looking for a friend.

When the jury set Baker free, Judge Robert E. Gentzel observed with sarcasm, "Gentlemen, you should be proud of your verdict."

Under the act two convictions of felony may bring a life sentence.

Roman Issue Solution Reached by Conferees

Now in Hands of Pope and Duce; Announcement at Easter Likely.

Rome, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—It appears that the vexed Roman question is really about to be solved. There is no doubt negotiators, who worked with full knowledge of the Holy See and the Italian government, even if without full authority, have reached an agreement on territorial as well as financial conditions. The question now is in the hands of the Pope and premier to accept these conclusions and decide the time and means of carrying them out. The impression prevails that announcement of an agreement will be made soon, probably at Easter.

The agreement is based on the cession by Italy to the Holy See of a small extension of territory lying southeast of the Vatican gardens, including the villas of Bameleck and Doria-Pamphili, with extra-territorial rights.

There would also be payment of an indemnity of one billion lire, gold, which at the present rate of exchange amounts to about $52,632,600. This would compensate for church properties taken by the Italian government in 1870 by annexation of the papal states.

The negotiators were Mgr. Borgongini Duca, secretary of extraordinary affairs at the Vatican, and Mgr. Pacelli, brother of the Papal nucio at Berlin, on the one side and Prof. Gianinni and Domenico Barone, on the other. Barone died recently.

In Vatican circles it was said today these men exchanged their views in conversations which were not official and which had a "private and personal character." Nevertheless, it is known they were authorized to exchange views on the subject by two "high parties" who remained entirely free to accept, modify or reject the conclusions reached.

As a matter of fact, it is known Borgongini Duca reported on matters daily

SIMMONS ASKS $10,000,000 BE VOTED SCHOOLS

Bill Offered in House to Provide Funds for New Buildings.

WOULD GRANT MONEY AS GROWTH REQUIRED

Representative Opposed to Setting Time Limit for Carrying Out Program.

Ten million dollars would be appropriated "from time to time" for buildings and grounds for the Washington public school system, under terms of a bill introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Robert G. Simmons(Republican) of Nebraska.

Simmons, whose two children go to the West School here, is chairman of the District subcommittee of the House appropriations committee. He has been making a particular study of the school system, and is convinced his bill would solve the construction problem.

Time Left Unsettled.

The bill, which would take effect July 1, sets no period of time within which the $10,000,000 would be spent. It provides that any money not spent of the $20,000,000 authorized for the present five-year building program, which was authorized in 1925, shall be credited toward the $10,000,000.

Simmons' bill, designed to provide for expansion of the school system, would, in his opinion, make it much easier to obtain school buildings and grounds than is now the case.

For one thing, he said yesterday, it would leave Congress free to appropriate as much or as little as the needs of the city required, or as its finances would permit.

Fixed Program Opposed.

Simmons said he was opposed to a five-year building program. The policy of saying five years in advance where a building should go, is, in his opinion, unsound. Many things might happen to change a situation over a period of five years, he said, and he suggested among other things a shift in population. Moreover, he said, a school board sitting five years from now might hold different ideas from those of the one now in office.

Simmons said his plan is modeled after that of the Federal building program here. Fifty thousand dollars was authorized for public buildings here, but the money is appropriated only as it is needed.

Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of schools, yesterday said he did not want to comment on Simmons' bill until he has seen it.

The Board of Education recently drew up a new five-year building program, listing a large number of building projects in various parts of the city. It was estimated that the program would cost $6,000,000.

POLICE GRAFT CHARGE INVESTIGATION BEGUN BY DISTRICT ATTORNEY

CAPT. BURLINGAME DISCUSSES EXPOSE

Second Precinct Officer Says His Name Has Been Mentioned.

PROSECUTOR'S AID TO CONSULT GIBSON

House Subcommittee Turns Over Evidence But Will Continue Its Survey.

The charges of graft made against a local police captain a month ago by Mrs. Helen Blaylock, a palmist, yesterday produced several developments, which followed one another in rapid succession.

These developments were:

1. The investigation took on a two-fold aspect when the Gibson subcommittee of the House District committee, which made the initial investigation of the charges, voted to turn the evidence it obtained over to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, at the same time retaining the right to conduct its own investigation of the case.

2. Capt. Guy Burlingame, in command of the Second Police Precinct, last night commented briefly on the investigation, which, he said, he learned unofficially involved his name.

Will Confer With Gibson.

3. Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, who was assigned by Rover to investigate the charges, announced he would confer with Representative Ernest W. Gibson, of Vermont, chairman of the investigating subcommittee of the House, this morning in an effort to complete plans for his investigation.

4. Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, chief of police, refused to comment on the case after being called to the Capitol for a conference with members of the Gibson subcommittee.

5. Representative Schaefer (Republican), of Wisconsin, announced that he would block any attempt by Representative Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, to "try this case in the House."

At the conference this morning, Gibson is expected to tell Collins the story which the woman told him during a secret interview in the Bethesda Police Station on the night of December 15, which, briefly was this: That a police captain had $14,000 in money hidden away in a safe deposit box; that he had given her a ring which he said had been seized in a raid; and that he defrauded her in a real estate transaction.

Evidence Given to Rover.

The case was submitted to Rover for investigation after an executive meeting of Gibson's subcommittee yesterday morning. In announcing this action afterward, however, Gibson made it clear that the subcommittee had by no means relinquished the case.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, was present at the meeting of the subcommittee. One of the reasons he was called, it is understood, was so that he could testify as to whether or not Mrs. Blaylock has a police record. He told the members that she did not.

After leaving the Capitol, Hesse called on Rover and discussed the case with him.

Burlingame Blames Blanton.

Capt. Burlingame, in a brief discussion of the case last night, said he was convinced the charges were inspired by Representative Blanton, who threatened to "take care" of the captain "later." The threat was made by Blanton during the trial of former Policeman Orville Staples before the police trial board last March and April following a row between Blanton and Burlingame.

The captain declined to make a for-

Gen. Foch Near Death With Heart Faltering

World War Chief Stricken in Paris—6 Doctors at His Bedside.

Paris, Jan. 15 (Tuesday) (U.P.).—Marshal Foch's condition was described as "stationary" at 1 a. m.

A member of the Foch household said that only a "slight tendency toward improvement is noticeable."

Paris, Jan. 14 (U.P.).—Marshal Ferdinand Foch, World War hero, who commanded the greatest military force in world history, lies gravely ill at his home tonight as the result of a heart attack.

Although a slight improvement in his condition was reported at a late hour, his doctors agree that it is a question whether they can save the life of the man who turned back the German onslaught on Paris. The 77-year-old French military leader has been ill for a month and has reached the most critical stage of his struggle.

Foch is suffering greatly and frequently appears almost at the point of strangulation.

France learned of his condition late this afternoon and by darkness hundreds of persons had gathered in the narrow street before the marshal's home. They stood in silence, the men with heads bared. Woman crossed themselves and mumbled prayers for the military leader who lies prostrate.

Stimulants have been employed to aid Foch in holding his strength and

NOMINATION OF TATE TO OFFICE RECALLED

Representative Wood Winner in Fight to Oust Him as U. S. Treasurer.

ACTION FOLLOWS HEARING

H. Theodore Tate will not be Treasurer of the United States, a post he has been filling by recess appointment, it developed yesterday, following exclusive publication in The Washington Post of the fact his office has been under an investigation which resulted in a hearing.

Withdrawal of the nomination of Mr. Tate, which has been pending before the Senate since December, was announced by Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

This action was taken, it was said, at the request of Mr. Tate and owing to opposition registered to his appointment by Representative Will Wood (Republican), Indiana, who had advocated the selection of Assistant Treasurer Frank J. Thiel.

Both Mr. Mills and Mr. Tate, who issued a brief statement, declared withdrawal of the nomination was owing entirely to the prospect of indefinite opposition to its confirmation.

The investigation and hearing, Mr Wood said, involved charges alleging incompetency, "trickery" in obtaining the office and favoritism toward women employes, but Mr. Mills declared recall of the nomination was in no way a reflection on Mr. Tate.

The Undersecretary emphatically asserted that the withdrawal could not be interpreted as disparaging in any way to the Treasurer's integrity. Mr Mills declared, moreover, that there had been no irregularities in the office and that it had been efficiently conducted.

Mr. Tate's statement was as follows:

"At the time of my nominstion last spring Representative Will Wood, of

MUNICIPAL CENTER PROGRAM APPROVED

Bureau of Budget Votes Favorably on Purchase of Land by City.

COST TO BE $2,400,000

The proposed municipal center moved a step nearer realization yesterday when the Bureau of the Budget formally gave its approval to a measure prepared by the District Commissioners providing for purchase of the two blocks between Third and Sixth streets northwest, C street and Judiciary Square.

It is estimated that it will cost $2,400,000 to acquire the property and the measure authorizes expenditure of this amount. An appropriation of $10,000 is provided in the bill to defray the expense of drafting plans for the development of the two squares.

The two blocks dealt with in the bill are only a part of the territory it is proposed to acquire eventually for the development of a municipal center. Two more blocks immediately south of these, lying between C street and Pennsylvania avenue are included in the center development plans, as is the land lying between Louisiana and Pennsylvania avenues, from Sixth to Seventh streets.

The two northern blocks were selected by the Commissioners as the first land to be acquired because it was feared that approval could not be had, at this time, for acquirement of all of the property, or even for the most expensive ones, fronting on Pennsylvania avenue.

Plans which have been tentatively approved by the Commissioners call for the construction of a new Police Court Building on the Judiciary Square side of the block between John Marshall place and Sixth street, but beyond that nothing definite has been decided. District officials declaring that there must be no haphazard development of the municipal project and that details must wait upon the drafting of plans for the entire center. It is for that purpose, the Commissioners said, that $10,000 was asked immediately.

The Commissioners plan to transmit the bill to Congress immediately and expect both the House and Senate to pass it before adjournment of the present session.

100 Canaries Devoured In Monkey Feast at Sea

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 14.—Monkey business—frightful carnage in the hold of the Hamburg-American liner Hamburg—was revealed when the ship docked here today.

There were on board 100 monkeys, several of which escaped, and six got into that part of the hold where 10,000 canaries were stored. It seems canary meat is considered a delicacy by monkeys. More than 100 birds had been devoured before the last of the monkeys were caught.

On the way over four chimpanzees contracted influenza and one died. Only the eight sea lions had a serene trip.

TRAFFIC CASE PLAN TO SPEED HANDLING

TRIAL IN COURT OPTIONAL

The District Commissioners yesterday decided to adopt, with modifications, recommendations by the United States Bureau of Efficiency, contained in a report dealing with the handling of traffic arrests, submitted June 23, 1927.

Under the scheme the Commissioners are preparing to put into effect, there will be a list of minor traffic law violations drawn up and an amount fixed upon as collateral for court appearance in each case. This list will be sent to all police precincts and the Traffic Bureau and each will require the same amount of collateral for the same offenses. Heretofore the amount of collateral has been discretionary with each precinct commander.

The new scheme, however, goes further than that, and provides that persons arrested will be asked to elect, at the time they deposit collateral in the precinct station, whether they wish to forfeit their collateral or intend to go to Police Court and stand trial.

Should they elect to forfeit, they will be permitted to do so, and no information or warrant will be sought from the court by the arresting officer, who will not appear in court to testify in such cases. In cases where persons elect to stand trial the same procedure that is followed now will be pursued.

It is said that the new scheme will eliminate considerable of the congestion now existing in Police Court and will relieve as well policemen from much work and time now spent in court.

How the scheme will work out is open to discussion, legal authorities of

$2,614,896,000 GIVEN BACK TO TAXPAYERS

Treasury Reveals for First Time Data on Credits and Abatements.

NAMES KEPT AS SECRET

More than two and a half billions of dollars has been given back to taxpayers by the Treasury in tax refunds, credits and abatements on the basis of figures obtained yesterday from the Treasury and made public for the first time.

Following the recent publication of the process whereby the Treasury has until now made public only cash refunds, but has not reported to Congress the deductions granted to taxpayers in the form of credits or abatements, Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, wrote to Secretary Mellon requesting details of the nature and amounts of the hitherto undivulged credits and abatements.

In a reply signed by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Bond, the Treasury now discloses that the following amounts have been given back to taxpayers from 1923 to 1928, both inclusive:

1924	355,628,775.85
1925	226,155,508.74
1926	339,237,700.53
1927	282,292,604.21
1928	199,194,252.14

This total of slightly more than $1,679,092,000 is in addition to the cash tax refunds, as required to be reported to the House, which are annually made public. Adding this to the cash refunds the grand total of tax rebates reaches $2,614,896,000, according to the Treasury's figures.

Senator McKellar said he was amazed at the huge volume of tax rebates, and that he was until now under the impression, as most members of the Sen-

Senate Confirms Rover As U. S. District Attorney

Nomination of Capital Man Approved by Unanimous Vote on Floor.

The nomination of Leo A. Rover to be United States attorney of the District of Columbia for four years was confirmed late yesterday by the Senate Not a single voice was raised against him.

Although Rover has been serving as district attorney since last April, it was only recently that he was nominated for a regular appointment. The appointment under which he has been serving was given by the justices of the District Supreme Court.

Rover is a native of Washington, and received his law degree from Georgetown University. He was serving as assistant to United States Attorney Peyton Gordon when the latter was appointed a justice of the District Supreme Court. A short time later Gor-

Navy Officer Wins Porto Rican Land

Supreme Court Upholds His Claim to Property Worth $500,000.

(Associated Press.)

Lieut. Comdr. Virgil E. Baker, who made a land exchange in Porto Rico by which the Government contended he obtained rights worth $500,000 for land for which he paid $360, won his case yesterday in the Supreme Court.

A decision of the lower courts held that Congress had authorized the exchange and that it must stand. The Supreme Court refused to review that decision and Baker's rights on the old San Geronimo Reservation at San Juan are still good.

In its efforts to set aside the transaction the Government and Porto Rico had cited the decision in the oil cases as a precedent for invalidating the exchange. Fraud and misrepresentation were charged.

Woman Finds Children Dead; Stricken in Fire

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Jan. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A mother who left her home at 5:30 tonight to visit a neighbor had just arrived when a child, listening over a local radio station, told her that her home was on fire. The woman, Mrs. George McGillen, ran home, burst into the house and found her two children, Ruth, 7, and George, jr., 4, lying on the floor of their bedroom burned to a crisp.

Mrs. McGillin fainted and before she could be rescued received burns which may cause her death. An overheated furnace is believed to have been the cause.

Geneva, Jan. 14 (U.P.).—Capt. Hermann Koehl, pilot of the first westward transatlantic airplane, Bremen, was injured at Arosa, Switzerland, today, when he fell while skiing.

The broken point of one of his skis pierced one of his eyes, and it was feared he might lose the sight of the eye. Koehl was hurled into a snowbank with such force that his skis were shattered.

Never Wed Ruth's Wife, Says Death Home Owner

Boston Dentist Cleared by Police After Declaring His Association With Woman Burned in His Home Had Been Purely Platonic.

Watertown, Mass., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Dr. Edward H. Kinder, Boston dentist, was questioned for nearly four hours here today by Watertown police concerning his relations with Mrs. George Herman Ruth, wife of "Babe" Ruth. Mrs. Ruth was burned to death in Kinder's home here last Friday night. She had been known to neighbors as Mrs. Helen Kinder.

Kinder hurried away with his attorney immediately after the interview, but Chief of Police John F. Milmore revealed that Kinder said he never had married Mrs Ruth, although he had lived with her at intervals since 1927.

"Dr. Kinder told us," Milmore said "that on Saturday night he walked the streets in distraction, fearing the story was coming out. He remained in seclusion on Sunday on the advice of his father, who told him there was plenty of time in which to come forward, and that there was nothing to fear."

Milmore said Kinder told him his brother, William H. Kinder, jr., furnished the information to the undertaker which described Mrs. Ruth as Mrs. Kinder.

Kinder, according to Milmore, said there had been nothing morally wrong in his relations with Mrs. Ruth.

Milmore learned from Kinder that Mrs. Ruth, on many occasions, had taken her 9-year-old daughter Dorothy to New York to visit "Babe" Ruth. Kinder, he said, was certain Ruth knew mal statement concerning the case. He pointed out that all he knew of the charges was what he had learned unofficially. He said, however, he had learned in this manner that his name had been mentioned in connection with the case.

"It is their fight and I'm going to let them fight it out," he said.

Mrs. Blaylock, who is said to be attractive, still is missing from her palmistry establishment on Seventh street, and a "Closed" sign still remains on the door.

The last heard of her she was in Abilene, Texas, whither she went to lay her charges before Representative Thomas L. Blanton, who is held at his home because of illnes in his family.

Information as to what Blanton intends to do about the charges must await his return here which, he says, will be "very soon." He declines to make known his plans in a telegram.

Representative John Schaefer, 270-pound giant from Wisconsin, declared yesterday that while he wanted to see the case prosecuted to the limit, he would block any attempt by Blanton to "try the case in the House."

Schaefer Urges Quick Inquiry.

It was Schaefer who heckled and blocked Blanton when the latter attempted to discuss the case of Policeman Orville Staples at the last session. So torrid did the controversy between the two become that many in the galleries feared they would come to blows.

Schaefer, who often fights for Blanton as well as against him, said yesterday that he thought it only fair to the police captains here that the present case be quickly sifted.

Until the verdict is in, he said, every one of the captains will imagine that people suspect him.

Hesse Silent on Case.

Maj. Hesse declined to discuss the graft charges yesterday. Angry over the notoriety attending the charges, and nervous and worn down by the months of investigation of his department, he abruptly refused to make any statement, or to say any of the things which usually are said by police chiefs in similar circumstances.

It is known that police officials believe that the charges will fall flat, and that nothing will be proved against the accused captain. But they will not say so for publication.

A history of the law enforcement activities of the captain has been prepared and will be produced when police officials think the time is ripe. The record is a formidable one, and is calculated to be an almost incontrovertible answer to charges of graft against him.

Craps Table Found In Rothstein Vault

So Say Police, but Lawyer Declares Gambler Used It for Ping Pong.

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 14.—State and Federal district attorneys aided and abetted by police, today, made a discovery which, they feel, confirms one of their suspicions in the Rothstein case—that Arnold Rothstein, slain last summer, was interested in gambling.

Standing before a vault, he had rented prior to August, 1927, at a warehouse, they saw a rectangular box drawn out, which, when opened, was found to contain a table.

"That's a craps table," explained Deputy Police Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

"'Twas a ping pong table," countered Nathan Burkan, lawyer appointed administrator of the slain gambler's estate.

And there the matter rested. Burkan stuck to his theory because he asserted Rothstein had a secret passion for ping pong.

233-Pounder Is Winner Of Fat Man's Honors

H. G. Gibbs, 233-pounder, of 216 Eighteenth street northwest, carried away the prize for the fattest man last night at the food show being held in the Washington Auditorium. He modestly refused to pose for photographers after his triumph, which, unfortunately, was dimmed by the fact that Mrs. Mary E. Wolff, 116 C street southeast, a rank amateur and ineligible for the competition, stood on the scales and tipped them at 250 pounds.

Last night's baby contest was won by Frances L. Marshall, 6½-month-old daughter of Mrs. B. E. Marshall, 5 U street northwest, who gained the approval of the judges and about 2,000 spectators. J. S. Linton, manager of the show and secretary of the Retail Grocers Protective Association, presented little Miss Marshall with a new $2.50 gold piece. Another baby contest will feature the show tonight.

Special to The Washington Post.

Shinnston, W. Va., Jan. 14.—Illness of a baby probably saved the lives of six persons at Enterprise, near here.

When called to treat the child, Dr. R. B. Nutter found the parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Portney, and Mrs. Louise Harbert, Mrs. Howard Pigott and Miss Frances Tetrick, neighbors, all overcome by fumes from a stove. All were revived, the infant was treated and recovered.

PARDON TO SLAYER SUBJECT OF INQUIRY

ADMITTED ERROR, CLAIM

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Testimony that Gov. Henry S. Johnston granted a full pardon to a convicted murderer and fugitive from justice without investigating his case was presented late today to an investigating committee of the Oklahoma house of representatives, which plunged into an inquiry of executive affairs at its initial session.

Four witnesses were called to give details of the pardoning last December of R. D. Crosthwaite, convicted in 1916 of killing Thelma Lovejoy, young Oklahoma City school teacher. Crosthwaite has been at liberty since 1923, when he failed to return to the State penitentiary at the expiration of a leave of absence granted by J. C. Walton, who was impeached later that year and removed from the governor's office.

Admitted Mistake Claim.

Gov. Johnston admitted that pardoning of Crosthwaite was "the greatest mistake of my life." It was testified by R. G. Lovejoy, brother of the slain girl, who went to the chief executive in protest after he learned the pardon had been granted.

Although the governor promised that steps would be taken to revoke the pardon, Lovejoy said, no action had been instituted.

Lovejoy testified he had attempted to confer with James A. Armstrong, advisor of Gov. Johnston, and an uncle of Mrs. O. G. Hammonds, the governor's confidential secretary, believing Armstrong could wield influence in having the pardon revoked. But that Armstrong had been too busy to see him. He conferred with Edwin Dabney, attorney general, he said, and was told that that official could take no action unless it was directed by the governor.

Slain Girl's Father Witness.

W. A. Lovejoy, father of the young teacher, also told of protesting against the pardon.

J. W. Mansell, State pardon and parole clerk, an appointive officer named by Gov. Johnston, testified that the Crosthwaite pardon had been prepared by his stenographer and clerk, Mrs. Ernestine Hunt, without his knowledge, and that he had signed a prepared letter transmitting the clemency document to the governor without acquainting himself with details in the case.

Mrs. Hunt, the last witness, an attractive blonde woman, said she prepared the pardon at the request of Bob Sipes, messenger from the governor's office. The document was drawn up in haste, she testified, and she did not investigate the records closely after the pardon was signed.

Says Governor Evaded.

The younger Lovejoy testified that Gov. Johnston evaded him when he asked if Louis Fischl, representative from Carter County, was one of the attorneys interested in procuring Crosthwaite's pardon. Mans testified Fischl had written a letter of recommendation for the clemency. Crosthwaite's father lives at Ardmore, in Carter County, and other citizens of that county, including Earl Brown, another representative, and U. T. Rexroat, State senator, recommended the pardon.

Fischl voted throughout the first week of the legislative session with the regular Democrats, supporting the administration of Gov. Johnston.

It was expected that inquiry into the Crosthwaite case would be resumed by the committee tomorrow. Mansell was instructed to return in the morning for further examination.

REFUEL FLIGHT HERE FROM COAST MAPPED

AWAITS PILOT'S RETURN

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Probability that the Question Mark, record smashing Army endurance plane, will make a nonstop refueling flight across the continent to Washington, was expressed here today by Maj. Carl Spatz, commanding officer.

The Question Mark, accompanied by refueling ship No. 1, piloted by Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, would attempt the first nonstop transcontinental refueling flight in history, if the plan is carried out.

Spatz said final decision would be withheld until Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot in its epochal flight of more than 150 hours at Los Angeles last week, returned from Texas. Eaker was called to his mother's home near San Angelo where she is seriously ill.

Speedy Return Ordered.

"In compliance with our orders to return to Washington as direct and speedily as possible," Spatz said, "we may find it advisable to save time and make mileage by pushing the Question Mark through a round-the-clock flight without landing and refueling as we go.

"Refueling plane No. 1 will be piloted by Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, its regular pilot, during the endurance flight, and Lieut. Elwood R. Quesada, one of the pilots of the Question Mark in its record endurance flight, will be aboard Hoyt's plane to handle the gasoline hose during contacts.

"Lieut. Harry A. Halverson, one of the Question Mark pilots, will not make the eastward trip aboard the plane. He is leaving on Wednesday for San Antonio, Tex., for which station he has received temporary orders. The personnel of the Question Mark on its homeward journey will be Capt. Eaker, Staff Sergt. Roy Hooe, H. J. Adamson, special representative of the War Department, and myself.

"Our present itinerary calls for our return by the Southern route, with overnight stops at Tucson, Ariz.; Midland, Tex.; Shreveport, La.; Montgomery, Ala., and some point between Montgomery and Washington not yet selected.

"Even if the 24-hour nonstop flight is not made necessary, there will be refueling contacts between the Question Mark and refueling ship No. 1."

Father to Have Operation.

San Angelo, Tex., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—N. Y. Eaker, father of Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot of the plane Question Mark, was brought to a hospital here today to undergo an operation. Capt. Eaker accompanied his father from their home at Eden. The pilot had flown to Midland, Tex., from San Diego Sunday, completing the journey to his mother's bedside after nightfall by automobile. Mrs. Eaker has pneumonia.

Dr. S. J. Burleson, Mrs. Eaker's physician, today issued a bulletin saying: "Mrs. Eaker has not more than maintained the slight improvement manifested yesterday. She is resting fairly well. The patient shows marked exhaustion."

Minister Convicted Of Criminal Libel

Deposed Pastor Used False K. of C. Oath in Election Campaign, Charge.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—The Rev. Elmo L. Bateman, deposed pastor of Hilton Christian Church, of Maplewood, was convicted of criminal libel by a jury in Judge Walter D. Van Riper's court late today. He was charged with publication and circulation of a false Knights of Columbus oath during the presidential campaign. He will be sentenced January 28.

When first cross-examined Bateman declared he believed the oath to be the true oath. Later when shown a copy of the order's ritual he retracted the statement. He said on direct examination that he had copied the oath from the Congressional Record.

The former pastor admitted he had not sent the oaths out under his own name because he was associated with the International Publishing Co. and the money collected went to the company. He said he owned the majority of the stock of the concern and put out the pamphlet containing the oath on his own initiative.

UNINVITED SPEAKERS MAR PEACE MEETING

DR. FOSDICK IS HEARD

Two uninvited and therefore unannounced speakers enlivened the banquet meeting of the fourth conference on the cause and cure of war last night at the Hotel Washington.

The impromptu speakers—Miss Harriett Silverman, secretary of the New York branch of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League, and Miss Vera Bush, of the New York Working Women's Federation—grabbed the spotlight just as Dr Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of fashionable Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York City, concluded an address on "The Interpretation of the Briand-Kellogg Treaty by the Peoples of the Nations."

As Dr. Fosdick concluded his plea for education of the people in regard to peace and the outlawing of war, Miss Silverman's voice shrilled through the hall. She wanted to know why Mr. Fosdick did not discuss economic rivalries between the United States and Great Britain for the control of world markets instead of psychology and the Kellogg pact, which she described as "a fake and a smoke screen for a coming world war."

Excitement followed the question. Necks were craned toward the rear of the hall whence the voice came. Dr. Fosdick registered surprise and then concern. Miss Carrie Chapman Catt, one-time suffragist leader, who was presiding officer of the meeting, grabbed her gavel.

While this was transpiring Miss Bush arose and fired a verbal barrage at Dr. Fosdick and everybody generally. Miss Silverman got to her feet at the same time and individually, jointly and in unison they talked briefly but fast and furiously. Some of the more than 1,000 middle-aged women in attendance ventured the suggestion that they be put out. Others hissed. Miss Catt banged for order. The hissing became general, grew in volume, until realizing the futility of trying to make themselves heard the speakers became silent.

After quiet had been restored, there were indications that the two uninvited guests would be asked to leave. This threat did not materialize, but before the meeting adjourned both made unobtrusive exits.

Other speakers of the evening included Miss Catt an E. C. Lindeman, of the School of Social Work, New York City.

The conference will continue through Thursday. Today's session will be featured by a crusade to the Capitol, where members of the Senate will be presented with 12,000 resolutions urging ratification of the treaty.

Charge of Murdering Family to Jury Today

Gastonia, N. C., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—A presentment of murder and arson against Jacob Vanderburg, 17 years old, will be given to the new Gaston County grand jury tomorrow, Solicitor Carpenter announced today when Superior Court was convened.

The solicitor said "other matters that required immediate attention, would prohibit him from asking the indictment today. Young Vandersburg is held on suspicion in connection with death of five members of his family whose charred bodies were found in the ruins of their home near here December 28.

LIMITED PLAN URGED FOR EXTRA SESSION

Majority Leaders Seeking to Hold Program to Farm Relief and Tariff.

HOOVER SEEKS SPEAKER

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

With an extra session of Congress in the spring definitely agreed upon on all sides, Republican leaders are taking steps to keep it within the bounds of tariff revision and farm relief. Plans to this end were discussed with President-elect Hoover yesterday by Speaker Longworth. He was a luncheon guest.

The speaker's plan (and it meets with the approval of Majority Leader Tilson and other leaders) is to set up only enough committees at the present short session as will permit of the two major subjects getting to the floor in the extra session. They would be the committees on ways and means, agriculture, rules, and audits and accounts.

Majority Taking No Chances.

So far there has been no suggestion that any one wants the extra session to deal with anything but farm relief and tariff revision, but the Republican leaders are going to take no chances on the Democrats injecting other questions. Prohibition, instead of having diminished as a topic of popular and political discussion since the November election, is being agitated as strongly as it ever was. If it keeps up at its present rate, in fact, it would likely be hot enough to set the extra session a-sizzling.

The Democrats are on the warpath, and have maneuvered Secretary Mellon into the position of having to refuse a $25,000,000 additional appropriation for prohibition enforcement, which the Antisaloon League has made known it thinks he should accept. The secretary's action undoubtedly will be seized upon in an effort to embarass Mr. Hoover in what is generally believed to be his intention of retaining Mellon as head of the Treasury Department.

Hoover Studies Situation.

Similarly, the agitation is believed to have caused the President-elect to hold in abeyance some of his other views relating to prohibition. He is understood to have fallen in with the plan agreed upon by Senators Jones, of Washington, and Edge, of New Jersey, for a fact-finding commission composed of both wets and drys. But considerable doubt is believed to have arisen about his desire to transfer prohibition enforcement to the Department of Justice.

This all figures in his consideration of a man for that Cabinet post, and may possibly result in his decision to name Col. William J. Donovan to the post of Secretary of War instead of Attorney General, or he may leave prohibition enforcement right where it is and elevate Donovan to the head of the department in which he is serving now.

At any rate, prohibition is proving bothersome enough without having it injected into the extra session which Speaker Longworth, from a general aversion to living in Washington in the summer, would make very short.

Treasury Surplus Expected.

Without saying anything the Democrats cocked up their ears at the recent reports that the Treasury instead of facing a deficit is really riding on a handsome surplus at the end of the current fiscal year and that it already sees another tax reduction in sight. Well, the Republicans do not want it or any efforts to get it at the extra session. It would be gratefully received, though, at the next regular session on the eve of the 1930 congressional elections.

In connection with tariff revision, John E. Edgerton, president of the American Manufacturers' Association, called upon Mr. Hoover yesterday and it is fair to assume he laid before him the resolution recently adopted by the association, urging that the tariff be placed in the hands of a permanent nonpartisan, scientific commission.

This has not been as the Republicans would have it heretofore. In fact, they ridiculed the idea when Gov. Smith enunciated it in the campaign. So there is no reason to believe Mr. Hoover will embrace the association's plan.

The day's callers included Commander Colby, U. S. N., stationed at the Naval Gun Foundry. The purpose of his call was not made known. Ogden Hammond, Ambassador to Spain, called to pay his respects. He said he expects to return to his post in a month.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, calling to lay the inaugural plans before the President-elect, recommended George L. Whitford, of Warner, N. H., to be governor of Porto Rico. The senator is maintaining a good average in this wise. Already he has recommended Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett to be Postmaster General.

New Expected to Stay.

Considerable surprise will be occasioned if Postmaster General New is not retained.

Today Minority Leader Garrett and Representative Garner, of Texas, who is to succeed him in the next Congress are to call to pay the respects of the minority party. Garrett is slated for a Federal judgeship, perhaps the Customs Court of Appeals, when he retires from Congress.

Then the State procession is to start Mr. Hoover's decision to see some of the State leaders before leaving for Florida is believed to be responsible for his not getting away before the end of the week. Three of them on the list for today are National Committeemen Vits, of Wisconsin; Clements, of Missouri; and Chilton, of Kentucky. The latter is credited with being the creator of the Hert Cabinet boom.

DEMAND TO CLARIFY PACT GAINS GROUND

Supporters of Senator Borah May Have to Risk Vote or Yield Point.

TREATY DEBATE HEATED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Supporters of a clarifying resolution on the Kellogg antiwar treaty gained such rapid headway yesterday that the administration forces, headed by Senator Borah, may be compelled to risk a vote or yield to their demands. At the end of a hectic afternoon, during which spectacular debate followed an abortive attempt to pave the way for a vote this week, the test of strength between treaty supporters for and against clarification centers around the following resolution, introduced by Senator Reed of Missouri:

"Resolved, That in view of the importance of the pending treaty (the so-called Kellogg-Briand treaty) and in view of the many different interpretations which have been placed upon said treaty by members of the Senate, and also in view of the fact that the committee on foreign relations has not made any report giving its reason for recommending ratification, the committee is respectfully requested to report to the Senate as soon as possible its views as to the proper interpretation of the treaty."

This resolution was the outgrowth of the round robin circulated by Senator Bingham on Saturday and signed by 25 senators, with other promised signatures. Senators Reed, of Missouri, and Moses assumed joint leadership yesterday in conducting the battle of the clarificationists against the major forces of Senator Borah.

Borah Asks Debate Limit.

It looked like a hopeless fight against odds, especially when Senator Borah moved to limit debate today and Reed, Bingham and Moses were on the point of agreeing to a unanimous consent arrangement to that effect, provided the Reed resolution could be given favorable parliamentary treatment after the Senate convenes this morning. Divergence of viewpoint arose over this parliamentary status between Senators Borah and Reed with the result that the promised agreement evaporated and gave way to the most spectacular debate since the pact has been before the Senate.

With Senators Borah and Reed personally commanding the opposing forces and engaging in debate as between themselves, the clarificationists seemed to gain support from unexpected quarters. Senator Robinson, the minority leader, came out flatly in favor of the Reed resolution in a fiery speech in which he condemned the time-wasting consumed in a debate "the substance of which has disappeared."

"For my part, as a member of the committee and as a member of the Senate," said Senator Robinson, "I am willing to give to a senator who feels that a report from the committee is needed to make clear the meaning of the treaty that satisfaction which he asks for. It is almost a pitiable spectacle to witness 95 senators prolonging indefinitely a controversy which has no substance."

Reed Appeals to Borah.

Senator Reed made several appeals to Senator Borah to clear the decks for action by agreeing to incorporate in a resolution from his committee the views he himself had expressed as to the treaty's meaning in his opening speech to the Senate. Reed offered to end the debate in five minutes so far as he was concerned and vote on the treaty now if that was done. He offered to vote for ratification and indicated that the vote would be virtually unanimous under those conditions.

Senator Borah reviewed the efforts which had been made some days ago to obtain such an explanatory resolution and said that neither he nor Secretary of State Kellogg opposed the plan at that time. But he said the supporters of this plan had pressed the matter further and that the question had arisen of having the resolution sent to foreign governments or by moving to adopt it by the senate. This caused collapse of the plan, the Senator from Idaho explained. Since that time there had been a change in the situation, he said, because so much had been published here and abroad concerning the proposed resolution that foreign governments might now view it in the light of a reservation. Consequently, Mr. Borah declined to assume the responsibility of agreeing to the Reed resolution.

Senator Heflin added to the gaiety of the debate by suggesting that the Senate recess so that Mr. Borah could avoid the risk of doing "something which the administration may not indorse." This brought quick response from Senator Borah that it would not be necessary for the Senate to adjourn or for him to consult with the Secretary of State before assuming responsibility. There were senators on both sides of the chamber interested in having a voice in that matter, he indicated.

Bingham Enters Argument.

After Senator Borah made his motion for a unanimous consent agreement Senator Bingham said:

"Mr. President, I do not want to be put in the position of delaying action on the treaty. At the same time the opinion has been expressed in high quarters that we must vote on the treaty without having an expression of opinion from the committee on foreign relations as to what the treaty means."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, then attempted to support the motion for ending debate.

"It seems that the time has arrived when some forward step should be taken with business before the Senate, particularly the cruiser bill and the treaty," he said.

The Senate drifted within an eyelash of a unanimous consent agreement for limiting debate to a half hour for each senator, beginning at 3 o'clock today. Prior to this unanimous consent had been given to give the Reed resolution privileged status, so it may come up today, but disagreement arose over an attempt to assure a vote for the Reed resolution.

Wants Immediate Vote.

"I want it understood that this matter can be brought up and voted upon," Reed declared, adding:

"If there is going to be any sharp practice or technicality here, let us know them now."

The senator from Missouri said these remarks did not apply to Senator Borah's leadership, but he said he wanted the agreement in words.

"I don't want any more implications," he added. "We're having trouble enough now with the treaty because nobody can define it."

Finally the question arose as to whether limitation of debate today would apply to the Reed resolution as well as other features of the treaty. Senator Borah said it would.

"Then I object," announced Reed, and the unanimous consent agreement evaporated into thin air.

Treaty Meaning Challenged.

Senator Robinson, of Indiana, challenged the assertion that the meaning of the treaty was clear and read an editorial from the Manchester Guardian showing that there were divergences of view in Great Britain. The editorial concluded by saying that the reservations of the British government to the treaty meant legitimatizing war rather than suppressing it and added that the British under the pact reserve the right to go to war whenever such war has a strategic object which it can call vital.

Just before the Senate recessed, Senator Bingham read the text of his round robin which has been signed by 28 senators. It is as follows:

"We believe in the purposes and objectives of the Kellogg multilateral treaty. We believe clarity of understanding regarding its inherent and declared functions is vital to its usefulness at home and abroad. To avoid reservations we believe the foreign relations committee should report its official interpretations."

Lincoln Fired Pokeberries In "Duel," Witness Asserts

Civil War Veteran Says Gen. Shields Fell When Red Spot Appeared on Shirt—Story is Another "Myth," Authorities at Springfield Say.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Muskets loaded with pokeberries were weapons of the historic "Lincoln-Shields duel," in the latest addenda to the legend of the battle.

The story, which has been called to the attention of Lincoln authorities here—and regarded by them as "another myth"—is told by Nicholas B. Jones, 87-year-old Civil War veteran of Enid, Okla., and father-in-law of the State treasurer of Oklahoma.

Trouble arose between Lincoln and Gen. Shields over a series of letters in the Springfield Journal, in which Shields, then State auditor, was criticized. Shields accused Lincoln of their authorship, and failing to obtain a retraction, demanded satisfaction. At this point, Mr. Jones' story deviates from other tales.

"For appearances sake," the Civil War veteran says, "the men agreed to cover up the quarrel, but secretly arranged for a duel in a nearby field. I was 19 years old. Abe Jones, my father, was chosen for Shields' second.

"Naturally, I decided to see the affair. We slipped out into a field while it was still dark, and got there first. Just as the sun was a little above the horizon, we saw Abe riding across the field on his horse, his legs dangling down.

"Lincoln didn't seem the least bit nervous. The men had chosen single-shot muskets for their weapons. The referee started them off back to back. They walked twenty paces and then turned and fired.

"Shields shot so fast that his aim went wild. Then Lincoln raised his musket and took deliberate aim. The shot hit Shields right in the chest. Red spurted out on Shields' shirt and he dropped to the ground. He didn't stay there long, though, 'cause we all burst out laughing. Lincoln had loaded his gun with pokeberries. Shields thought he was going to die."

The generally accepted version of the "duel" is that broadswords were selected, with a place on the Missouri shore just below Alton as the meeting spot. Before the clash could take place, however, their friends brought about a friendly settlement of the dispute.

OIL DIRECTORS BACK STEWART IN FIGHT

STOCKHOLDERS ADVISED

Chicago, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Edward G. Seubert, president of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, in a formal statement today, announced his support of Col. Robert W. Stewart for reelection as chairman of the board of the company. It was Seubert's first official pronouncement that he would oppose the efforts of John D. Rockefeller, jr., to unseat Stewart.

He also stated the board of directors is unanimously back of its chairman and that a letter would be directed by the board of stockholders opposing Rockefeller's attempt to obtain proxies for the annual meeting.

Seubert Defines Stand.

Seubert's statement read:

"I shall cast my votes for the reelection of Robert W. Stewart. I so informed Mr. John D. Rockefeller, jr., several months ago and there has never been the slightest doubt as to my attitude. Any information to the contrary is without any foundation in fact.

"The members of the board of directors are unanimously of the same opinion. They also feel that the reelection of Col. Stewart is so important to the best interest of the standard of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana that they have prepared and signed the following document which will be sent to every stockholder of the company:

"To the stockholders: The undersigned, being all the members of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, except Mr. Robert W. Stewart, feel that it is necessary and proper at this time to inform the stockholders that on May 23, 1928, Mr. John D. Rockefeller, jr., by letter requested that the resignation of Robert W. Stewart, director and executive head of the company, be demanded by the board.

Rockefeller Told of Views.

"It being fully informed of the facts and having no doubts whatever of Mr. Stewart's honesty and loyalty to the company, the board, by unanimous vote was of the opinion that there was no justifiable reason for such action, and so advised Mr. Rockefeller under date of May 31. The members of the board feel that they are in the best position to judge Col. Stewart's actions and value to the company and are still of the opinion stated above. They believe that his retirement would be detrimental to the welfare of the company."

DUKE'S WILL GIVES MILLION TO CHARITY

WIDOW GIVEN 2 HOMES

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Benjamin N. Duke, retired tobacco manufacturer and philanthropist, who died January 8, left more than $1,000,000 to charitable organizations, most of which are in North Carolina, his native State.

The bulk of the estate, the value of which once was estimated at from $50,000,000 to $200,000,000, goes to Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, jr., of New York, a daughter. The Angier B. Duke Memorial, Inc., at Durham, N. C., an educational corporation founded in memory of the capitalist's son who drowned in 1923, receives $580,000, while $585,000 is divided among Southern religious and charitable organizations, chiefly Methodist institutions. Mr. Duke and his father and brother were credited with having given $90,000,000 in philanthropies during their lifetime.

Widow Provided For, Says Will.

Mrs. Sarah P. Duke, of New York, the widow, receives the life use of two homes, one on Fifth avenue here and another at Durham. After her death the property goes to Mrs. Biddle. Duke said in his will that his wife's bequest was no larger because of the "ample manner" in which he had provided for her previously.

The document provided for the disinheritance of any beneficiary who attempted to break the will, and reversion of that person's bequest to the Angier B. Duke memorial.

Trust funds of $100,000 each are established for two grandsons, Angier B. Duke, jr., and Anthony Newton Duke, both of Old Westbury, Long Island. William R. Perkins, a friend, of Upper Montclair, N. J., is named executor and bequeathed $30,000. Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., of New York, Mr. Duke's son-in-law, is a coexecutor and the legatee of $20,000.

Other Bequests to Relatives.

Some relatives receive bequests ranging from $5,000 to $10,000 and bequests to charity range from $5,000 to $100,000.

Among the larger charitable bequests are $100,000 to the Methodist Orphanage at Raleigh, N. C.; $50,000 to the North Carolina College for Negroes at Durham, $50,000 to the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Nashville, Tenn.; $50,000 to the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Wilson, N. C.; $50,000 to the Western North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, Charlotte, N. C.; $50,000 to Children's Home at Winston-Salem, N. C.; $15,000 to the Colored Orphan Asylum at Oxford, N. C.

PRINCIPALS AND SCENE OF RUTH TRAGEDY

TREASURY REVEALS ABATEMENTS ON TAX

ate and House have been, that the annual published lists of refunds comprised the entire amount of moneys repaid to taxpayers.

The last list of published refunds coming from the Treasury showed $142,393,567 repaid to numerous large corporations and individual taxpayers for 1928. Since 1917 the cash refunds have totaled $935,804,343.

In addition to these sums, the credits and abatements must be added, as in most cases the only difference between a cash refund, such as the Treasury makes public, and a credit or abatement, is one of bookkeeping.

In transmitting the amounts allowed taxpayers as credits, which are deducted from their current tax bills, and abatements, which are cancellations of taxes assessed, Assistant Secretary Bond explained, in a letter to McKellar, that the Treastry could not give the names of the taxpayers who had received the credits and abatements.

Bond contended these allowances might be "misleading" as many of them represented allowances for excess taxes paid in 1917 and 1918; abatements resulting from court decisions; rebates under jeopardy assessments; uncollectable items; abatements against consolidated groups, each unit of which had been first assessed until the legitimate taxpayers had been found; and other required deductions on past taxes.

SENATE CONFIRMS ROVER NOMINATION

don and the other justices appointed him to the vacancy.

Rover won his presidential appointment strictly on merits. He had no political "pull" whatever; in fact, the local Republican organization was strongly opposed to his selection. Their candidate for the post was James M. Proctor, a Washington attorney. Opponents of Rover even went so far as to tell the President that in his youth he had been a Democrat. Apparently the President was convinced that Rover's ability outweighed this and other criticisms.

With Rover's appointment out of the way, President Coolidge now has only one important post to fill in the District. That is the judgeship recently created in the District Supreme Court by an act of Congress. The Republican organization is backing Capt. John Lewis Smith for the job, but no less than a dozen others are also out to get it. It is not expected that the President will make up his mind on this appointment for two weeks or more.

Since he has been at the courthouse, Rover has prosecuted in a number of highly important cases. Among these were the oil conspiracy cases and the recent Stewart Senate contempt case.

DENTIST QUESTIONED ON RUTH TRAGEDY

his wife was living at the Watertown address.

Milmore said he was satisfied with Kinder's statement and that as far as local police are concerned, the case is closed.

Meanwhile District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell ordered a second autopsy on Mrs. Ruth's body, although he said he was satisfied there was no evidence that she died by other than accidental causes. Medical Examiner George L. West previously had reported he had discovered no evidence that she had died by any other causes than burns and suffocation.

Counsel for the Woodford family said, after a conference with Ruth and his attorney, that "Babe" and the Woodford family "have buried the hatchet temporarily." Feeney said that Ruth would attend his wife's funeral.

Ruth declined to submit to questioning by newspaper men after the conference, dismissing them with the plea:

"Fellows, please let my wife alone. Let her stay dead. I'm in a terrible fix."

He had no comment to make concerning the future of his daughter.

Mrs. Ruth's body was not identified as that of the home-run king's wife until yesterday, a short time before it was to have been buried as Mrs. Kinder. Dr. Kinder, called from a boxing show in Boston Friday night after the fire, disappeared until his visit to police headquarters today. Publication of a photograph of the woman in a Boston paper lead to identification by Mrs. Ruth's sisters, Catherine and Nora Woodford, of South Boston.

Although Medical Examiner West reported there were no evidence of alcohol, drugs or foul play, Thomas P. Woodford, a brother of Mrs. Ruth, said he was "not at all satisfied with the police explanation of the circumstances" attending the death of his sister.

Mrs. Ruth will be buried Wednesday morning. Services will be held at St. Augustine's Church, South Boston.

the District pointing out that a person who elects, in the police station, to forfeit collateral may later change his mind and must be given a trial.

Another feature which may meet with disapproval is that there will be hundreds of cases daily which never will come to the notice of the court, because arrested persons will elect to forfeit at the time they deposit their collateral and there will be no information asked of the court against them.

None of the serious traffic offenses, such as speeding or reckless or drunken driving, will be included on the list, which, the Commissioners say, will be a much less lengthy one than was proposed by the Bureau of Efficiency report.

No explanation was given as to why the report, which has lain dormant so long, is being taken up at this time. The Commissioners were scheduled to go before a House committee last week for a hearing on the efficiency bureau reports, so that Congress could see just what has been reported on by the bureau and what has been done by the Commissioners in connection with the reports, but the hearing was postponed indefinitely.

The recommendations proposed by the efficiency bureau were somewhat different than the scheme now being adopted by the Commissioners, and the report met with severe condemnation by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride and his assistant, Ringgold Hart in a report submitted to the Commissioners on August 19, 1927.

The efficiency bureau recommended a scheme whereby policemen simply fill out cards stating their case and swear to this statement in the precinct station, and forward this to court, where prosecuting officers would handle the rest of the case and the policemen need not put in an appearance. Judge Gus A. Schuldt, presiding judge of the court, joined with Bride and Hart in disapproving this feature of the report.

The corporation counsel's report suggested that the night Traffic Court be abandoned and all four branches sit simultaneously in the day, and this was done subsequently. Officials say that the congestion in Police Court largely is due to improper and inadequate housing and it is pointed out that there are few days when most of the branches of the court have not cleared their dockets and adjourned early in the afternoon.

FASTING MAN SEIZED IN WITCHCRAFT RAID

YORK GROUP UNDER FIRE

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Sylvester Williams, 45, found fasting in his rooms surrounded with instruments police declared were used in the practice of "black magic," was charged with illegal practice of medicine today as authorities set out to rid Cleveland of "Voodooism."

Police said they expected a long list of arrests before a cult practicing here, believed to have slain a man whose headless body was found in a closet, is broken up.

Williams, emaciated from a long fast, was preparing to go into a trance when the raiding party entered, they said.

York, Pa., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Convictions of a powwow doctor and two accomplices for a murder seemed likely today to be followed by prosecutions for the practice of witchcraft.

"Something's got to be done about it," said County District Attorney Amos S. Herrmann in regard to the situation, which culminated in last week's trials.

Ever since Nelson D. Rehmyer, a farmer, was slain on the theory that he had bewitched an entire family, State officials have been trying to learn the identity of other practitioners of witchcraft. Under State statutes it is a criminal offense to practice healing without a license.

The man and two youths convicted last week were in jail today awaiting removal to the penitentiary. John H. Blymer, powwow doctor; John Curry, 14, and Wilbert G. Hess, 18, were convicted for the murder of Rehmeyer. Hess, last of the trio to be tried, was convicted Saturday night of murder in the second degree, which carries a penalty of 10 to 20 years' imprisonment.

Blymer and Curry were found guilty of murder in the first degree. Life imprisonment was recommended by the juries.

SOLUTION FELT NEAR ON ROMAN QUESTION

to the Pope, with whom Pacelli also had frequent and long interviews to receive instructions.

Negotiations with the Fascist state were started originally by the Jesuit Father Tacchi Venturi and continued almost without interruption for about two years. By the expressed desire of both Pope Pius XI and Premier Mussolini these remained as simply tentative efforts in order to leave both sides completely free to make a definite decision whenever they thought advisable. During this period there have been various stages of activity in the negotiations and of more or less probability of success, but the intercourse between the negotiators always has been characterized by the greatest cordiality and a most sincere desire to reach a satisfactory solution protecting reciprocal interests and safeguarding the rights of each party.

Territory Urged for Pope.

A suggestion that no change should be made in the present territorial conditions of the Holy See was immediately discarded, there being on both sides a desire that the status of the Pope in Rome be one of liberty and independence, not only real and perfect, but also manifest to all Christianity. To obtain this, it was decided the Pope should have his own territory, no matter how small, on which he might enjoy and exercise real territorial sovereignty with all rights inherent to it.

The new papal state under these conclusions would have a position something like that of the Republic of San Marino. That small territory, although surrounded by Italy, is nevertheless perfectly free and independent, and enjoys all the privileges and attributes of sovereignty established by international l .

The financial question was the object of lengthy discussion. On consideration that the law of guarantees never was accepted by the Holy See and never enforced by the Italian government in those clauses which required acceptance, it was decided to repeal it. Thus the annuity of 3,225,000 gold lire which the Pope always refused to accept from Italy was not even mentioned in the negotiation.

Compensation Considered.

The discussion instead dealt on the compensation to be given the Vatican for church properties by the Italian government through the annexation of the papal states. A request for 4,000,000,000 gold lire, payment of which the finances of the country would not have allowed, was reduced to one-quarter of that amount.

Acceptance of the agreement depends first upon approval by the Pope and Mussolini. Thereafter the premier would introduce enabling legislation probably in the new all Fascist chamber to be elected March 24, legalizing the new status of the Papal state with regard to the Italian government.

Pope Pius XI consistently has maintained, as did his predecessors, that he must be the final arbiter of any solution of the Roman question and that his rights as an independent sovereign must be fully recognized.

Whether he will consider the conclusion of the present agreement, if he ratifies it, as a removal of the ause of the pontiff's voluntary imprisonment is still problematical. It is thought here that his recognition as a independent sovereign would allow him the same latitude for travel as have other reigning monarchs in Europe.

RAIN WILL END COLD SNAP BEFORE NIGHT

GARAGE MEN KEPT BUSY

After experiencing the coldest January 14 in fifteen years, Washingtonians were faced today with the prospect of more disagreeable weather, the forecast for today indicating that while the thermometer will not descend to yesterday's low mark of 8 degrees there is snow and rain in the offing.

Subfreezing temperatures prevailed all yesterday, resulting in two men being treated at hospitals.

Henry Loffler, 55 years old, address unknown, was picked up unconscious at C and Four and One-Half streets southwest early yesterday by Policeman F. R. Gue, of Fourth Police Station. The man was taken to Gallinger Hospital where physicians said he was suffering from exposure and that his condition was serious.

William Oats, colored, 63 years old, was found unconscious at Twenty-sixth street and Benning road northeast early yesterday morning, and was taken to Gallinger Hospital and treated for exposure.

Firemen Kept on Jump.

Firemen, plumbers, garagemen and mission workers spent a busy day due to the intense cold. The firefighters answered many calls during the day, making seventeen runs between 4:58 and 9:26 p. m. Most of the runs were the result of chimneys burning out under forced draft fires in furnaces, fireplaces and stoves. Plumbers did a land-office business repairing burst water pipes, steam radiators and water tanks. Local garages and service stations answered more than 1,000 calls for help during the day.

Frozen radiators and batteries were the bane of most motorists' existence. The American Automobile Association reported that it had serviced upward of 800 members since the cold wave descended Sunday night, and Carl's service station received more than 300 calls in the same time.

Mission and rescue homes were besieged and many indigent persons had to be turned back into the cold because of inadequate accommodations. The Gospel Mission, 214 John Marshall place northwest, gave 179 men beds and food, while the Municipal Lodging House, 312 Twelfth street northwest, housed 44 unemployed men.

Too Cold for Meeting.

The Lanier Citizens Association meeting scheduled for the Henry D. Cooke School was called off on account of cold weather. Only a few of the members braved the cold, and those decided to postpone the session until the weather moderates.

While the lakes were frozen over solid and the Potomac River had a coating of ice stretching out from each bank that lacked just inches of meeting, there was little skating. However, with subfreezing temperatures prevailing during the night, skating may be safe today.

First instances of skating at Mirror Pool were reported last night, persons who espied the skaters stating that they stayed within the shadows. This precaution was necessary as park policemen have decreed that ice must be 3 inches thick before skating will be allowed.

Today is expected to be much warmer than yesterday. A low temperature of 20 degrees is expected this morning. That this would be the approximate low was evidenced last night when the the thermometer registered 25 at 10 o'clock. Sunday night at that hour the mercury registered 13.

High Mark 26 Degrees.

The highest temperature yesterday was 26 degrees, recorded at 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

Today's forecast is: Snow or rain with rising temperature Tuesday; colder Tuesday night. Tomorrow's forecast is for cloudy weather with moderate south, shifting to northwest and north winds.

Chicago, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—The Middle West was locked tonight in the grip of one of the most severe cold waves and worst snowstorms in recent years.

Subzero temperatures that yesterday broke records of 40 years were followed today by a snowstorm that began at dawn and was expected to last until tomorrow when weather almost as cold as that of the last three days was predicted.

The storm and cold tonight had succeeded in accounting for the death of half a dozen persons and suffering for thousands of others, had blocked main highways in half a dozen States, hampered rail transportation and tied wire communication facilities into a snarl.

Buenos Aires, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—The metropolis of the Southern Hemisphere today suffered from extreme heat, while the metropilis of the North and a large section of the United States was afflicted with severe cold. The temperature of 99.5 recorded here was the highest of the year. No deaths were reported, but isolated cases of prostration testified to the intensity of the humid heat.

NOMINATION OF TATE HAS BEEN RECALLED

Indiana, expressed vigorous opposition to the confirmation of my apointment, with the claim that another should have been appointed. His opposition having prevented confirmation to date, I formally requested Secretary Mellon by letter last week to recall my nomination in order to avoid any possible embarrassment to the department."

Mr. Mills said, following anouncement of withdrawal of Mr Tate's name, that "the incident is closed, indicating the department will not make public a report of the hearing. Mr. Wood also indicated that the matter would be dropped.

Tate had been serving as Treasurer since last April, when his name was sent to Congress by the President. The Senate adjourning without action, the President named Tate for the office by a recess appointment. His nomination has been before the Senate since its reconvention in December.

Whether Tate will remain in Federal service is a question yet to be determined. Treasury officials said he had civil service status prior to his appointment as Assistant Treasurer, from which position he was promoted to Treasurer. He is eligible, therefore, because of continuous service, to appointment to a civil service post.

Mr. Mills said Secretary Mellon has not recommended any one to the President for appointment as Treasurer, which position previously was filled by Frank White, who resigned to engage in private business. Representative Wood said he did not consider it likely that Mr Thiel would be named to the vacancy.

BOARD HEARS BOOTH REFUSES TO RETIRE

REMOVAL IS PREDICTED

London, Jan. 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—When the Salvation Army high council meets at Sunbury-on-Thames again tomorrow to consider the answer of Gen. Bramwell Booth to their request for his voluntary retirement, it is expected that the reply will be revealed as a flat refusal, according to information obtained here tonight both in the American camp and at international headquarters.

In this eventuality, and with all hope of a compromise having been virtually abandoned tonight, the high council will then debate a motion that Gen. Booth is physically unfit to continue in office, and that therefore the generalship is vacant.

It is considered certain that this motion will be passed by the necessary three-fourths majority—probably by the same majority of 49 which decided to ask the general to resign. Fifty-six of the sixty-three members sitting in the council voted in favor of putting such a request to the veteran world leader of the army.

Threat of Suit Disregarded.

The council will then have to elect a new general and discuss details of constitutional and administrative reforms.

The threat of Gen. Booth's party to attack the constitutionality of the high council's session and action is not taken seriously by the opponents of his autocratic rule. It is further learned that the army's regular lawyers have given a general opinion that the high council was called together and is acting legally under the deed poll of 1904.

Members of the committee of seven high councillors, who visited Gen. Booth Friday to present the high council's request for his retirement, declared afterward that they were deeply impressed by the weakness of his condition, and while not attempting to contradict his doctors' verdict that he will be well in 6 months, expressed the gravest doubts as to whether he will ever again be strong enough to undertake the responsibilities of the generalship.

During the forthcoming debate in the high council regarding the proposed reforms in the army's administration the question of the relation of the general and international headquarters here to the finance and assets of the several national branches of the army is almost certain to come up. Though no official figures have been published regarding the army's assets throughout the world their total has been estimated at from $75,000,000 to $150,000,000.

Assets Are in Dispute.

American Salvation Army officials here claim that the assets in the United States amount to about $40,000,000. The other national units of the army are more or less financially autonomous, although Gen. Booth has had a certain amount of control of these finances through his power to dismiss and appoint officers in national units abroad.

However, with Gen. Booth's retirement or removal from office, the question of his trusteeship over the British and Australian assets would automatically come up for discussion, and it is possible that the principle of national financial autonomy would be regulated more than it is at present.

One indication that the high council expects Gen. Booth's status to be definitely determined by midnight tomorrow was the failure of the War Cry, the army's official publication, to go to press on scheduled time today. It was understood that the editors were asked to hold their forms open until tomorrow with the expectation that the adjudication of the general's position would be completed within 24 hours.

There has been much guessing here late tonight as to the probable significance of a visit to Gen. Booth made by Commissioner Edward Higgins, chief of staff, today after a 30-minute conference with Commander Evangeline Booth.

Mary Garden Injured In Opera Performance

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Mary Garden, opera star, was painfully injured in a performance of "The Love of Three Kings" here, yesterday. Virgilio Lazzari, as the blind king, hurling the diva from him in a scene inadvertently put too much force into the acting and Miss Garden was severely bruised.

She stood up until she reached the wings where she collapsed and fainted. Miss Garden had recovered sufficiently to take part in tonight's performance.

ENGINEERS ATTACK ARMY CORPS POLICY

FLOOD BILL IS DISCUSSED

The American Engineering Council, representing over 200,000 civilian engineers, yesterday voted to investigate policies of the Corps of Engineers, United States Army. This action followed charges that civilian engineers are virtually excluded from Federal engineering projects, made at the council's afternoon session at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday.

A committee of three members will be appointed this afternoon, at a meeting concluding a two-day convention here. The report of the investigation will be made public upon completion, it was stated.

Arthur W. Berresford, president of the council and past president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, charged yesterday that the personal influence of Maj. Gen. Edgar B. Jadwin, Chief of Engineers, United States Army, is preventing passage of a pending bill for establishment of a National Hydraulic Laboratory in the Bureau of Standards.

The measure provides for a study center for flood control problems. It originated in and has passed the Senate and is now before the House committee on rivers and harbors.

The resolution to investigate the Corps of Engineers was introduced by Prof. James R. Withrow, of Ohio State University, who represents the Engineers Club of Columbus, Ohio. Lawrence W. Wallace, of Washington, executive secretary of the council, declared: "Civilians must face the fact that the Corps of Engineers has definitely set out to control the engineering work of the Government."

Discussion was resumed last night at a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel. Dr. Arthur Morgan, of Antioch College; Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, and Senator Joseph E. Ransdell, of Louisiana, spoke. Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, spoke on airway and airport development.

Injured Man Sent to Hospital.

Witness at Trial Of Keyes Vanishes

Police Seek Brother of Man Who Said He Paid for Immunity.

Los Angeles, June 14 (A.P.).—City detectives began a search today for Louis Berman when he failed to appear in court as a State witness against former District Attorney Asa Keyes and five codefendants being tried on bribery charges.

Berman had been summoned to corroborate statements of his brother, Jacob, that $40,000 had been paid by the latter to Keyes for immunity in the Julian Petroleum Corporation fraud trial, which Keyes prosecuted, and in which every defendant was acquitted.

The prosecution won a court victory today when Judge E. I. Butler sustained a motion that the statement of Jacob Berman, which was claimed to have contained a confession to the "fixing" of the Julian Petroleum Co. case, should be kept in confidence.

2 Farmers Taken For Murder Jury

Widow of Slain Nashville Hotel Man Keeps Away From Courtroom.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Only two jurors had been chosen when adjournment this afternoon halted the trial of Walter Liggett, Nashville grain dealer, charged with murdering Turney Cunningham, manager of the Andrew Jackson Hotel, who was shot in the rear of his home on October 29.

The jurors chosen were farmers. Attorneys believe the jury will not be completed before Wednesday.

Mrs. Era Cunningham, widow of the slain man, did not enter the courtroom. It was Liggett's attentions to her which precipitated the tragedy.

The State has indicated it will ask the death penalty.

LOS ANGELES FLIES HOME FROM FLORIDA

DAY PERFECT FOR START

Lakehurst, N. J., Tuesday, January 15 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles arrived here this morning at 12:45 o'clock after a flight from Port St. Joe, Fla., which she left at 11:28 a. m. yesterday.

Port St. Joe, Fla., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles was homeward bound to her hangar in Lakehurst, N. J. tonight after a tour of Florida during which she made this little port town in western Florida as her base.

The giant airship arrived here this morning to be refueled for the New Jersey flight, after having made a 36-hour trip over Florida cities, including the long-delayed visit to Miami, where she was to have participated in launching of the Pan-American air mail lines last week.

The Los Angeles started her Miami cruise from Lakehurst on January 8, but was forced to seek the Patoka in St. Josephs Bay here, the following night when contrary winds slowed her speed to such an extent she could not make Miami during daylight. For three days then she was weatherbound, and it was not until Saturday that the weather moderated sufficiently for her to go to Miami.

Perfect weather prevailed today as the ship moved across Florida and Georgia toward New Jersey.

VOTE FRAUD CHARGED IN VARE CASE REPORT

CHANCE GIVEN TO REPLY

(Associated Press.)

The first report on the extensive investigation by the Senate into the Philadelphia vote in the 1926 senatorial election was given out yesterday, charging a long list of "irregularities and fraud" and offering Senator-elect [illegible] of Pennsylvania, or his counsel, an opportunity to answer it on January 24.

Senator Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the campaign funds committee which inquired into Vare's primary contest that year and later into charges of fraud in his election, detailed the committee's first report in a letter to Vare. It notified the senator-elect that the committee was through and anxious to act on Vare's case and would wait only for the hearing now offered the senator-elect, who is ill.

The letter declared that in only 181 divisions out of a total of 1,500 was the senatorial vote correctly counted; that in 674 a total of 21,572 tax receipts were illegally issued in 1926 and that the names of 2,018 voters were "forged" in 187 of the divisions selected "at random" for examination.

While a total of 18,954 ballots issued to polling places were unaccounted for, Reed reported 50 divisions made returns for 992 ballots more than the records showed they received. The report added that in eight divisions the ballot boxes contained "no valid ballots."

Assassin Says Slaying Was to Avenge Brother

Police announced the man had confessed, saying he killed the general to avenge his brother who was executed at Nickolaiev by the general's orders in 1920. Kolenberg said he saw the execution, and swore vengeance.

Amendments Advocated.

Gertrude McNally, secretary of the Federation, listed some of the things which the organization wants in the new salary bill: A 5 cents an hour increase for charwomen; back pay for employes who received no rise under the Welch act, and for those who received only half a rise; a provision to pay the Bureau of Engraving and Printing employes for their enforced two-day holiday every month, and a provision restoring to the personnel classification board the authority to make allocations. She said she was against reducing the salaries of any employes, no matter how large were the rises they received.

E. C. Hooker, president of the Treasury local, and A. J. Oliver, organizer of the Federation, also spoke. It was announced that Local 71, composed of colored employes, would hold a mass meeting Friday night to consider the omission from the Brookhart bill of Custodial grade 3.

AFGHAN RULER QUITS THRONE AND FLEES

TAKES PLANE FROM KABUL

London, Jan. 14 (United Press).—King Amanullah of Afghanistan has abdicated and fled to friendly tribes in the southern part of his country to find refuge from insurgents, according to official advices received here today.

The king, who failed dismally in his campaign to raise the tribes of isolated Afghanistan to the status of European civilization, deserted his throne in favor of his brother, Prince Inayatoullah Khan, the advices said. The prince is 40, 4 years older than Amanullah.

Amanullah left the capital, Kabul, for Kandahar, a fortified city which is the center of the few tribes reported to have remained faithful to the king. He is believed to have found safety behind the walls of the ancient city, which is supposed to have been founded by Alexander the Great. Presumably, the trip was made by airplane, as it was in that way that the king's mother, who is greatly respected by the southern tribesmen, went to Kandahar recently to enlist support for her son.

No indication was given of the fate of Queen Souriya, who was one of the moving figures in the reform campaign. Previous reports from Kabul said that the insurgents led by fanatical native priests, had demanded that the queen be expelled from Afghanistan.

Amanullah's attempt to compromise with the rebels by withdrawing his reform laws apparently met with failure, according to the advices that he had abdicated. Last week he issued a royal decree withdrawing all laws tending to make modern changes in dress and custom. He ordered the recall of Afghan girls sent away to be educated and closed schools which had been established during the last year.

The Afghan tribal revolt resulted from the protests of jealous priests against the reform laws. They stirred the natives to revolt and an attack on Kabul failed by only a narrow margin.

All communication except by airplane and wireless has been severed for weeks.

All foreign women and children at Kabul were evacuated in British airplanes to India last month.

Delhi, India, Jan. 14 (U.P.).—Advices received here tonight said King Amanullah had abdicated and proceeded to Kandahar by airplane.

American Officer Shot in Nicaragua

Clash Between Outlaws and Patrol Last Week Is Just Reported.

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Lieut. William H. Smith, an American medical officer, received two slight wounds during the clash last week between a patrol of the Guardia Nacional and a band of outlaws in the vicinity of San Juan de Telpaneca in the province of Nueva Secovia, near the Honduran border.

The first comprehensive account of the engagement, which was the most severe in many months, was received here today. Two members of the guardia were killed and three were severely wounded. It was believed that several others were killed.

The patrol was under command of Lieut. Chester A. Davis, of the Guardia Nacional. He was formerly a captain in the Regular Army of the United States and during the World War held the rank of lieutenant colonel. The outlaws were armed with a machine gun and bombs. Lieut. Smith suffered a slight bullet wound and was also struck on the side of the head by a bomb, although the wound is not serious.

Wife in Plot Case Is Freed on Bond

Charged With Assault to Commit Murder on Her Estranged Mate.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Grace M. Wood, charged with assault with intent to commit murder, was freed from the county jail this afternoon, when officials of the Southern Security Co., of Baltimore, approved her security for a $50,000 bond.

Mrs. Wood, who is alleged to have instigated an attempt upon the life of her estranged husband, Ralph A. Wood, wealthy Wyandotte real estate dealer, was released Saturday afternoon, but was returned to jail a few hours later when an official of the surety company thought her security, deeds to property claimed to be valued at $50,000, insufficient.

It was decided today, however, that the company would accept Mrs. Wood's security.

MAN SAYS HE KILLED WOMAN BY ACCIDENT

TRAILED IN HILLS BY DOGS

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 14.—George Cave, northeast Rockingham mountaineer, is in jail here facing a first-degree murder charge in connection with the shooting to death last last night of Mrs. Charles McDonald, at the McDonald home at Greenwood, near the base of Massanutten Mountain, 20 miles east of Harrisonburg.

Cave claims the shooting was accidental; that he pulled an automatic revolver from his pocket merely to frighten Mrs. McDonald and that the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet entered Mrs. McDonald's head.

Both had been drinking, Cave told officers, and he was attempting to pour out the remaining moonshine against the wishes of Mrs. McDonald when the pistol was produced. Cave denies he was the one who shot through the window at a Mrs. Vines, living a half-mile from the McDonald home, wounding Mrs. Vines in the arm, shortly after the shooting at the McDonald house.

Rockingham officers, however, say Mrs. Vines had had a warrant sworn out against Cave for threatening her with a pistol previously and that Mrs. McDonald was to have been a material witness at the hearing.

Cave had lived with the McDonalds. It was said, since his return from the State penitentiary where he served a 3-year term for housebreaking. Mr. McDonald, an invalid, was on the second floor of the home when the shooting occurred in the basement last night.

Cave was captured at Toms Brook this afternoon by State Traffic Officer Day and Federal Prohibition Agent Reflemyer, who had been on the lookout for him. Cave had made his way across the Massanutten mountain to the Valley pike last night, eluding the posse of county officers with bloodhounds. Cave said he spent last night in the open mountains, building a fire to protect him from one of the coldest nights of the winter. He offered no resistance when the officers seized him.

Shopping with Bab on Connecticut Avenue

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

From one season to another we are apt to forget the thrill we always experience in viewing the earliest arrivals in new fashions. Shopping up and down my beautiful avenue yesterday, it was fun to see colorful frocks for Southern wear, delicately colored straw and felt hats, forerunners of the models we shall all be seen in before many frosty weeks have passed.

The sad misfortune which demolished Dulin & Martin's the other day may bring them up on the avenue sooner than expected. Every one is bursting to know if they will move in their new building, or the portion that is ready, within a short time.

Lollie Marsden Makes Late Appointments

—which is a great convenience for business women, and for anyone who wishes to be made beautiful just before stepping out for the evening.

Lollie Marsden, 1702 Connecticut avenue, gives two kinds of face treatments, muscle strapping and the mask and bleach treatments. The charge for muscle strapping is $3 for each or six treatments for $15. The mask and bleach is $4 or six for $20. Helen Kahlstrom is with Miss Marsden now, and gives fine Swedish massage. Call North 6709 for an appointment. Miss Marsden has a branch salon in Middleburg too.

What Makes For Success

—in the life of a night club or dinner dance? It is hard to say. We have all seen night places come and go, some with careers that were short and sweet, while the good old standbys go on forever, with increasing popularity and never-failing crowds.

What is it that keeps people going back to Wardman Park Hotel dinner dances and supper dances week after week and month after month? Partly the moderate price, you say—one place that isn't a hold-up, and all that sort of thing. Possibly, I think, primarily, it is because you have there all the things which go to make up a good time: gorgeous surroundings, marvelous music, delicious cuisine, people you know on every side, gayety, grand dancing (so much room, you know), and everything to make a party what it should be! Call up for reservations for next Saturday night.

A Straight-Front Sheraton Chest

—of drawers, a treasure of rare old wood has found it's way into "The Junksnuppers," 1338 New Hampshire avenue. This shop has a new shipment of old blue glass, too, including pairs of lamps and lots of odds and ends of pieces.

A drop-leaf maple tea-table found in the depths of Old Virginia is waiting for some one to appreciate it. It won't be there long, for tables of this type are becoming an absolute rarity.

MRS. SOL BLOOM, one of the most charming of the Congressional hostesses, is always remarked for her exquisite costumes. Mrs. Bloom is pictured here in a striking all black ensemble, with black lynx and a small velvet hat.

You Hear So Much About Lame

—for evening dresses, especially with a dark ground and vivid patterns in splashy flowers. Lame is an expensive material, so any gown fashioned of the best of the fabric is sure to cost you money. In the group of gowns at Mrs. Gaither's and Miss Williams', 1621 Connecticut avenue, which have been reduced in price, you will find a stunning gown of flowered lame, that is, if it has not been purchased before you go in this morning. It's a great buy for some one. Another lame evening gown in shaded rainbow colors and adorable design has been reduced in price substantially, and is worth a trip just to see if it may fit you. I think it is size 36; I am not sure. You might call them and see. North 217.

Ask, also, about a dark red crepe in a large size, an afternoon gown, which is a wonderful bargain.

I've Wondered About the Beauty

—of the recent exhibits of children's pictures at Underwood & Underwood's. The children were average in looks, and yet the pictures had a subtle delicacy of finish, and a naturalness in expression, seldom seen in portraiture of any kind.

Underwood & Underwood have always made marvelous pictures of children, but these new ones are far and away the best I have ever seen, and are vastly different from any they have made.

There is a reason, of course. It is matter of such intricate and complicated science that I am far from fathoming it. I do know this, however. They have a new sort of a double camera used by two photographers, which brings about this wonderful result. One photographer engages the interest of the children, and the other accomplishes the focus.

Underwood & Underwood bought the patents some months ago, and have been quietly perfecting it ever since. Formal announcement will be made soon. By the way, ask to see their new book of children's pictures.

Affectionately,

NORTHCOTT LAUGHS AT MURDER RECITAL

DUG GRAVE, SAYS YOUTH

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Sanford Clark, 15-year-old nephew of Gordon Stewart Northcott, today commenced to relate to a jury in superior court his story of the alleged slaying and burying of 10-year-old Nelson Winslow and 12-year-old Lewis Winslow at Northcott's Wineville chicken ranch. Northcott is being tried on a charge of slaying the Winslow boys and of killing and beheading an unidentified Mexican lad.

Clark, who the State contends was kept a prisoner for two years at the Northcott ranch, today told of digging a grave for the doomed lads. He will continue his narrative tomorrow.

Northcott has announced he himself intends to cross-examine his nephew. A rift in the young Canadian's staff of attorneys became public today when David Sokul, of Los Angeles, announced his withdrawal.

The prisoner was coldly composed today. At one point in Sanford's recital, Northcott laughed outright and leaned forward to make a notation on a long sheet of paper.

Sanford said he was taken by Northcott to Los Angeles from his home in Saskatoon, Sask., Canada, about two years ago and soon after went to Wineville Ranch with Northcott. He told of alleged beatings at the hands of Northcott "when Northcott would lose his temper and think I was not working fast enough."

Sanford told of the Winslow boys being brought to the ranch by Northcott about 10 o'clock one night.

After they had been at the ranch a week and a half, Clark testified, they were killed. Northcott told him they were to be killed with an ax. The day prior, Clark said, Northcott instructed him to dig a grave about 4 feet deep.

N. H. Winslow, father of the two boys, identified a fragment of Winslow's shirt.

Woodstock, Ill., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—A strike vote taken by members of the Pure Milk Association, producers for the Chicago market, resulted today in a decision by sixteen locals to withhold their product tomorrow from any distributor refusing to pay $2.85 a hundred weight for milk. Representatives of six others locals declined to join in the strike.

A supply of 3,000,000 pounds of milk a day is required in the Chicago area, most of which is produced by members of the association. Distributors have refused to pay more than $2.50 a hundred weight.

FIRST DOG-TEAM MAIL FROM U. S. REACHES CANADA

Montreal, Quebec, Jan. 14 (U.P.).—Six Eskimo dogs, hitched to a regular mushing sleigh, trotted into Montreal today with the first "dog team mail" ever delivered from the United States to Canada.

Their driver was Alden Pulsifer, postmaster of Minot, a suburb of Lewistown, Me. His mail pouches carried 385 letters, including greetings to leading civic dignitaries of Montreal and invitations to all Snowshoe clubs in Canada to attend the international Snowshoe meet to be held in Lewistown February 2 and 3.

It required three weeks for the dog team and sleigh to make the trip over the snows from Lewistown to Montreal. The letters, which carried a special "dog-team stamp," will be reposted here and returned via air mail to the United States.

500 From 5 States Meet for Conference With Chiefs and Banquet.

Attracting 500 dealers to the National Capital from Maryland, Virginia, Delaware, West Virginia and Pennsylvania, the annual conference of Chevrolet field representatives with factory and zone sales executives was held in Washington yesterday. The meeting here was divided into an afternoon session at which the year's program was discussed and a banquet and entertainment at the Mayflower Hotel in the evening. It was one of a series of 40 held at various large centers in the country.

The afternoon session was at the Washington Auditorium.

M. D. Douglas, assistant general sales manager of the company, was the chief speaker of the afternoon session. He also presided at the banquet in the evening.

Plan to Put Firehouse By Treasury Rejected

Location of a fire engine station in the grounds south of the Treasury Building and east of the Ellipse, proposed by the District Commissioners, was disapproved yesterday, by the Public Buildings Commission on the grounds that such a location would be incongruous with the Federal building program near that section and a misuse of park land.

Trial of Fall Not To Be Asked Now

U. S. Attorney Says Report by Doctors Causes Him to Defer Action.

A motion to schedule trial of a bribery charge against Albert B. Fall, of New Mexico, former Secretary of the Interior, now pending before Justice William Hitz in the District Supreme Court, will not be pressed during the winter months, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced yesterday.

A physician, commissioned by Justice Hitz to examine Fall, reported that the former cabinet officer's health would not permit him to come to the Capital for trial during the winter. Government physicians who also made an examination, made a similar report.

In view of these facts, Rover said he would permit the motion, which asked scheduling of the trial for yesterday, to lapse and would communicate with Atlee Pomerene and Owen J Roberts, special oil prosecutors, over filing of another motion asking that the trial be set for a date in April or May. Fall is accused of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate of Los Angeles, as an inducement for leasing naval oil reserves at Elk Hills, Calif., to a company operated by Doheny.

PHYSICIAN, 72, HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH

Dr. Jesse B. Rutherford Is Accused of Performing Illegal Operation.

Dr. Jesse Baldwin Rutherford, 72, a physician, living at 1437 Spring road northwest, was held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury yesterday in connection with the death Friday night in Sibley Hospital, of Mrs. Thora Craggs, 21 years old, 2511 Tracy place northwest.

He is charged with having performed an illegal operation upon the woman. After hearing testimony from several detectives and from physicians who later treated the woman, the coroner's jury retired, but could not reach a verdict after 40 minutes.

The jurymen were then recalled and E. Russell Kelly, attorney for Rutherford had his client testify. Dr. Rutherford admitted giving the woman some electrical treatments, but denied he knew she was an expectant mother.

According to the testimony, she went to him for the first treatment on December 3 and the last treatment on December 28. She was taken to the hospital January 3. The jurymen again retired and in 10 minutes returned with their verdict, holding the doctor for the grand jury.

Headquarters Detectives George E. Darnall and J. P. Flaherty investigated the woman's death and arrested the physician. The woman's husband is Henry Craggs.

Youth Arrested After Fight With Detectives

After putting up a stiff battle with two detectives, William Horace Wright, 23-year-old student at the University of Richmond, was arrested yesterday at the Washington Airport and held for investigation.

According to Detectives Frank Varney and Hubert Brodie, Wright attempted to cash a check for $85 at one of the local banks, but was refused as he had no identification. Later he went to Hoover Field and tried to buy passage to Baltimore with the check. Here again he met with failure. Not daunted, he went to Washington Airport, where he was arrested.

LIFE-SAVING MEDALS GIVEN HEROIC SCOUTS

Three, Who Risked Lives to Save Drowning Persons, Get Highest Awards.

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—For outstanding heroism in risking their lives in rescuing four persons from drowning, three Boy Scouts have been awarded the gold honor medal of the Boy Scouts of America by the National Court of Honor. They are Edward A. Bush, Brooklyn; Theodore Antonich, Great Falls, Mont., and Joseph Erlenwein, Columbus, Ohio.

Certificates of heroism for demonstrating the use of scout training in saving the lives of others, most of the rescues not involving so great a risk to the life of the rescuer, have been awarded to:

Lloyd Palmer, Sedro-Wooley, Wash.; Erwin Walker, Wilson, N. C.; Herbert Zupnick, Mars, Pa.; John Rentz, Lima, Ohio; Leo Skeim, Minot, N Dak.; John Sandstrom, Middletown, Conn.; Ned Brooks and W. J Breeding, jr., Norman, Okla.; Clarence Schweizer, Wallington, N. J.; George Eichhorn, Dubuque, Iowa, and Vincent Meyers, New Boston, Ohio.

The major award went to Scout Erlenwein for his rescue in Buckeye Lake, Ohio, in July, 1927, of Mrs. Clifford Lewis and Miss Gladys Anderson, both of Columbus. He said nothing of the rescues and only the casual remarks of witnesses months later brought about the reward.

Antonich pulled Arthur Norgard from the Missouri River on June 28, 1928 when a rope on which Norgard was swinging broke and he fell into the swift stream.

Bush rescued a woman who had attempted to drown herself in New York Bay.

"Light a Lucky and you'll never miss sweets that make you fat"

Constance Talmadge

Constance Talmadge, Charming Motion Picture Star

INSTEAD of eating between meals . . . instead of fattening sweets . . . beautiful women keep youthful slenderness these days by smoking Luckies. The smartest and loveliest women of the modern stage take this means of keeping slender . . . when others nibble fattening sweets, they light a Lucky!

Lucky Strike is a delightful blend of the world's finest tobaccos. These tobaccos are toasted—a costly extra process which develops and improves the flavor. That's why Luckies are a delightful alternative for fattening sweets. That's why there's real health in Lucky Strike. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

For years this has been no secret to those men who keep fit and trim. They know that Luckies steady their nerves and do not harm their physical condition. They know that Lucky Strike is the favorite cigarette of many prominent athletes, who must keep in good shape. They respect the opinions of 20,679 physicians who maintain that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful and that too many such are eaten by the American people. So, for moderation's sake we say:—

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

OBSTRUCTING PEACE.

The senators who demand an interpretation of the Kellogg treaty are not only obstructing the treaty and pending legislation, including the cruiser bill, but are pursuing an illogical course if their real object is to prevent future misunderstanding in case the United States should be called upon to exercise the right of self-defense.

When the framers of the Constitution were discussing the powers that should be granted to Congress the question arose, "What powers shall Congress exercise in time of war?" It was concluded that, since no one could foresee the nature or extent of the emergency that might confront the United States in time of war, it was unwise to attempt to define the power of Congress to deal with the emergency. In the last resort the United States can do anything necessary to preserve its existence.

It would be unwise to attempt to define the rights reserved by the United States in entering into the compact to renounce war. By approving the treaty as it stands, the United States reserves all rights, of every kind, whether they have been exercised heretofore or not. It agrees with other nations to renounce war as a means of effecting national aims. If other nations are willing to make such an agreement the United States, a peace-loving Nation, can afford to bind them to it by agreeing to do what it intends to do anyhow.

The value of the treaty is in tying the hands of governments that are not wholly directed by their own peoples, but by cabinets exercising power beyond the knowledge or consent of their people. The Kellogg treaty is superfluous as a means of preventing the United States from using war as a means of accomplishing national policy. The United States has already renounced that method of achieving its purposes. But some other countries have governments that can bring about wars without consulting their people. With the Kellogg treaty in effect no governing cabinet or clique in any country can start war to promote any policy whatever without proclaiming itself to the world as an aggressor and a treaty-breaker. Such a cabinet or clique would inevitably run afoul of its own people and would be swept out of power.

The people of the United States understand the Kellogg treaty. They do not ask for interpretations or reservations of any kind. They ask the Senate to approve the treaty and go ahead with other business. Americans have no fears that their powers of self-defense will be impaired by the Kellogg treaty. These powers need no enumeration or restatement. They are inherent in the Nation, and will be available according to the equipment provided by Congress. Let the Navy be kept strong enough to defend the country and its interests, and there need be no anxiety on the part of senators as to the proper exercise of this defensive equipment. Public opinion is the only power that can carry the United States into a war.

By quibbling and filibustering over the Kellogg treaty the Senate may delay or defeat its acceptance by other nations. It is important for world peace that the nations should agree to quit the use of war as a means of promoting their several aims. Now that they are willing to take this step, the United States is the last nation in the world that should obstruct the way.

ROOSEVELT SOUNDS THE TOCSIN.

After the election of 1924, Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, addressed a letter to prominent Democrats in the various States seeking to ascertain their views regarding the cause of the defeat and their suggestions as to how its repetition could be avoided in 1928. Following his election to the governorship of New York last November, he repeated the letter on a more elaborate scale. Letters were addressed to some 3,000 county chairmen of the Democratic party, and yesterday morning Gov. Roosevelt made public a preliminary compendium of the replies received. Ninety-eight per cent of those to whom letters were dispatched made reply.

The analysis of the replies makes an interesting document. It indicates that the Democratic party is very much alive. "Never before in the history of the Democratic party," says Gov. Roosevelt, "has there been shown so clearly a militant, aroused and aggressive determination to continue actively to fight not only with a view to the national election four years from now, but for the coming congressional elections in 1930 as well, and to begin now unceasing and constant effort to place the Democratic party in control of all branches of the Government in Washington. The effect of our failure at the polls last year, instead of discouraging the members of the Democratic party, has been to arouse in them the 'will to win.'"

The continued vigor and militancy of the Democratic party is of the utmost importance to the country. Fundamentally, the American political system is builded upon a two-party basis and if ever there should be but one party the system would break down. It makes no difference, so far as the system itself is concerned, that the Democratic party in recent years has been infrequently victorious. As the opposition—the minority—party it has fulfilled a function that is of fundamental importance to democracy. If the Democratic party were permitted to die a new opposition party would have to be created. It is far better that the existing minority party be revivified, by adding to its ancient prestige a fresh concentrated program dealing with modern issues, so that it will serve to bind together new elements that are not in harmony with the majority party.

How do the leaders that Gov. Roosevelt addressed propose to "place the Democratic party in control of all branches of the Government in Washington?" By departing from the previous practice of "laying the national committee carefully away in cotton wool after each election." The national committee is to be made a permanent year-round body, to sound out Democratic sentiment in an effort to weld the party into a homogeneous unit. In other words, the Democratic party is going in for large-scale organization. The wisdom of such a course is patent. Lack of organization, more than any other single factor, has been the nemesis of the Democratic party.

An interesting question is raised by the Roosevelt letter and the replies thereto. Who is to be the leader of the Democratic party?

MERCHANT MARINE CONFERENCE.

The first national conference of American mercantile marine interests, held a year ago, was productive of many benefits to American shipping, and this fact has encouraged the United States Shipping Board to call a second to meet in Washington on January 23. This second conference will be of great importance. It is expected to attract not only shipowners and ship builders, but also representatives of those who are in any way directly concerned with water-borne commerce. Many questions of grave moment are listed for discussion, some of them of long standing, some that have arisen within the last few months, some within the last few weeks. There are, for example, the vexed questions of discriminating duties in indirect trade, the extension of coastwise laws to the Philippines, the disposition of the Government's laid-up fleet, and Government aid to American cargo ships.

The greatest problem of all will be, perhaps, the method of reducing the prevailing costs of ship construction, which are so high in American yards as compared with similar costs in other countries. This reduction, if it can be effected at all, must be effected without lowering American standards of living and comfort, and without interfering unduly with the tariff on foreign materials. At the same time, the problem will have to be solved, if the merchant marine act of 1928, which provides aid in certain contingencies for American-built ships, is to have a wide application and thus produce the results which its framers intended for privately owned American vessels. The difficulty in this matter is admittedly great, but it ought not to be insuperable. The American people will look to the conference for light and leading in this matter, with which the success of American shipping is so closely and even inextricably bound up.

Other important subjects for discussion are mail contracts, the Panama Canal tolls, load line legislation, and the Americanization of crews. In view, too, of the approaching international conference, to be held in London in April next, on safety of life at sea, this subject must receive the most earnest attention, especially when the recent disaster to the Vestris is borne in mind.

Much, therefore, is naturally expected from the approaching American marine conference.

AN EXPERT TRAFFIC OPINION.

The traffic control system that has been worked out in Washington is held up to the rest of the country as a model by E. P. Goodrich, of New York City, member of the American Engineering Council's committee on street traffic signs, signals and markings. In a report prepared for the council, which is now in session here, he stresses the fact that Washington has more automobiles per thousand population than has New York, and says that it is solving its traffic difficulties with a progressive light system "that keeps traffic moving at a steady pace." Washington, he says, is ahead of New York City in this respect.

Mr. Goodrich is a traffic engineer of experience. He has studied traffic systems and conditions in most of the principal cities of the world. Next month he sails for the Far East, where he has accepted a commission to plan a new capitol and a port development for Canton under the auspices of the Chinese National Government. His opinion carries weight, and particular significance may be read from a section of his report in which he indorses unqualifiedly the left-hand turn system developed in the District.

"Many New Yorkers," he says, "returning from motor trips to Washington, complain of the forced wait before left-hand turns can be made. In this respect regulations which permit left-hand turns before oncoming traffic are the exception rather than the rule. I am a firm believer in the rule that left-turn traffic should be made to wait. On wide streets and boulevards, where it is possible to have three lanes of traffic moving in each direction, I believe this rule always should be put in force. By doing so a much faster movement of vehicles is made possible."

Mr. Goodrich points out that the "rotary" left-turn enables through traffic to maintain its speed in the middle lane while other traffic keeps to the outer lanes. With left-turners given the right of way on signal changes, he says, there should be few delays, and pedestrians are given ample opportunity to navigate street crossings without risk to life and limb. Other systems have neither equal nor counterbalancing advantages. Mr. Goodrich's indorsement of the "rotary" left turn should go far toward quieting the occasional criticism which local motorists level against it.

BANKRUPTCY FRAUDS.

The investigation into the activities of David Steinhardt, congressional candidate in New York last fall, serves to focus attention on the urgent need for revision of the bankruptcy system as it is followed by some Federal courts. Steinhardt is a fugitive from justice, having disappeared when accused of defrauding clients and investors of almost $600,000. The case should result in a thorough inquiry into the court practice which makes such loss in bankruptcy proceedings possible.

Records of the New York Federal court show that one judge appointed Steinhardt receiver for more than 30 concerns and another appointed him more than 20 times. This is not to be taken as involving the judges in the crooked handling of some of these cases, since Steinhardt had made a record of efficiency on his first cases and he had sufficient recommendations. Extensive experience is an asset for a receiver. Under present conditions the judges have no time to investigate receivership appointments. In the district where the inquiry is being made approximately 1,000 receivers were named last year to handle assets of bankrupt concerns amounting to $15,000,000. The district has only six judges and all efforts to induce Congress to increase this number have failed.

United States Attorney Tuttle believes that there is a "bankruptcy ring" operating in New York. Any amount of investigation by judges would not break up such an organization. The evidence indicates that court employes have been bribed to furnish information on bankruptcy petitions, so that crooked attorneys could be in court with recommendations when the case came up, and thus receive the appointment. There is a much more effective way than judicial investigation to eliminate such trickery.

In England government employes serve as receivers on a salary. The custom in some parts of the United States has been for the court to appoint lawyers or trade concerns as receivers on recommendations made in open court. When these receivers are intrusted with liquidation of bankrupt firms without supervision the doors are opened wide to fraud and corruption of the worst kind. The best solution of the problem is to appoint only well-established banks and trust companies as receivers. This practice is followed in some Federal court districts and has proved entirely satisfactory. Steps should be taken for immediate revision of the wornout system which permits unscrupulous lawyers to prey on bankrupts.

South America, resenting a Monroe Doctrine that protects her against her will, should try living up here where each legislature invents a few more like it.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE ONE-MAN CABINET IDEA.

Premier Mussolini of Italy is now in a position to open a well-attended cabinet meeting and have a stormy session while all alone. Holding seven of the twelve cabinet posts, he is a majority whenever he votes.

This is as it should be. Why call a cabinet meeting if you don't know what the result will be? It only leads to confusion and trouble. When the Italian cabinet goes into session, Benito gives the exhibition and the other members merely caddy for him. He saves a lot of argument and gets him home in time for lunch.

* * * *

The idea might be worth a trial in the United States. President Coolidge could be a Secretary of State, Secretary of War, Secretary of the Navy, Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary of Commerce, Secretary of the Interior and Attorney General. This would make it possible for him to hold an important Cabinet meeting in a flat-bottom boat, on an electric horse or while reading in bed.

In a war crisis the dispatch from Washington would probably read:

"Washington, Jan. 14.—The Cabinet held a three-hour session today and reported that he had nothing to say. There will be another important Cabinet session tomorrow if he is in the mood to spend so much time alone."

You can imagine the correspondents walking in on the President some afternoon and discovering him wrapped in deep thought.

"How do you do, Mister President?" the correspondents might inquire.

"Haven't I told you boys not to come in without knocking when I am in an executive session?" the President would reply.

"We thought you were alone, sir."

"I am alone. I am holding a Cabinet meeting."

"You are?"

"Yes, and by standing there staring at me you are embarrassing the President of the United States, the Secretary of War, the Attorney General, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of the Interior and the Postmaster General."

"We are very sorry, sir. We didn't realize this was the day you met in group form. You generally wear a sack suit when you are Secretary of War, Secretary of the Interior, Secretary of Agriculture and Secretary of Commerce. Today you have your gray business suit on, sir, and, if we may be pardoned, we were under the impression you wore that when you were only President and Postmaster General."

"Well, you're wrong. I'm all the Cabinet officers I've named no matter how I dress, and let me tell you another thing: see this black tie?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, you ought to know what that means. I'm Secretary of the Treasury all day today, too."

How Much of His Stupidity Is Politics?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Churches in Politics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Church organizations attacking the cruiser bill are violating one of the cardinal principles of the American system of separation of Church and State. Individuals as such have the inalienable right to oppose the cruiser bill if they wish, but not as a church organization. When churches as organizations do so they are mixing religion and morals with national policies and opposing national defense, for which the President and Congress are responsible under the Constitution. Misguided ministers opposing a matter about which they know nothing, using religion to oppose national defense, are unwittingly enemies of their country and their continued propaganda may result in defeat and disaster for our country. It will at least aid in finding us as unprepared as we were in the last war.

The blood of our sons slaughtered in France and on the high seas, due to our unpreparedness, is on the heads of the pacifists. Had this country been properly prepared there would have been no war. Church members and citizens should do all in their power to oppose the effort of church organizations as such to interefere in national policies, and to have them confine themselves to religion and morals. This is a large enough field to fully occupy all their time. Their present course, if persisted in, will ultimately wreck both church and State, and result in defeat for our country when we find it necessary to defend our rights, both in peace and in war.

M. W. M.

Prince of Wales and Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: When the Prince of Wales visited the United States a few years ago, he attracted a considerable amount of attention by wearing a blue shirt of a sort unknown to American fashion. He proved to be an advance agent of this pattern to those among us who wished to improve our sartorial appearance. He brought thereby a considerable amount of American money to the country of which he is so conspicuous an ornament.

Time was when kings, princes and lords were the mightiest warriors of the lands over which they ruled. In time of war they marched at the head of their troops, and fought hand to hand with the enemy, evincing great prowess on the fields of battle, where not infrequently they were slain or maimed. But as society evolves from one of a predominantly militant character to one whose predominant character is industrial, the nature of society's rulers changes likewise, so that now we find the erstwhile warrior transmogrified into an agent of commercial prosperity.

The change is not one to be deplored. It is one to be approved and heartily commended. Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war, as a great English poet has reminded us, and it may be added that peace victories leave considerably less heartache behind them. It is better for a nation in our era to be first in peace than it is to be first in war.

Americans of today are not interested in a universal empire to be obtained by conquests of arms. They know that nothing good and substantial may be secured by such means. What Americans of today desire is commercial advancements—the peaceful conquests of trade. And that is why they enthuse, and justly, enthuse, over the recent trip of President-elect Hoover to the various countries of South America. Why should our neighbors to the South of us prefer to buy the greater part of their goods from Europe, as they have done in the past, instead of buying them from us, when we are able to supply them with goods of as good quality and corresponding cheapness? The truth is, of course, that Latin Americans have been fearful in the past of boastful American talk of "manifest destiny." Mr. Hoover went to South America that he might allay their fears, to demonstrate to them that they have nothing to fear from our size and armaments, but much to gain from our friendship and trade. It is gratifying to know that he has been eminently successful in his mission, to this extent at least, that South Americans have been convinced of our friendliness, thus removing the one barrier which in the past has hampered our commerce with them.

Mr. Hoover has done a splendid work, and it may be confiently expected that, in the future, other American Presidents and Presidents-elect will follow in his footsteps to add to the commercial prestige of our nation.

GOOD WILL.

Non-Stop World Flight Useless.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: commenting on your editorial "Non-Stop World Flight," permit me to express my belief that the furtherance of such plans is a step in the wrong direction, or at least of little value at this time. It may well be visualized that at some future time refuelling in the air might be taken up as a necessity when for example for lack of "parking space" in cities it will be practicable as well as possible also to transfer passengers in the air. But what effective purpose attaches to such tests at the present time, especially when connected with risks of life and great expenditures, once it has been established that a flying machine can stay in the air for many hours with a considerable degree of safety?

To make long-distance flights possible for heavier-than-air machines the next reasonable development seems to me the construction of planes with sufficient fuel capacity to cross the ocean in safety, or the study of the problem of landing stations in mid-ocean. Another angle of further development lies within the province of legislation and administration with a view of providing more safety for fliers and the public by giving pilots an efficient training and by eliminating the stunt flyer and "daredevil" who daily endangers not only his own life and property but those of others as well. These are the fields where records can still be established. It is not intended to belittle the feats of Col. Goebel and other heroic aviators who have done their share in the advancement of flying. But the practical value of testing a plane by circling the world when it can undoubtedly be done just as well over a flying field and, as a matter of fact, as far as the motor is concerned, anywhere on solid ground, does not seem clear.

Is it of practical importance to know whether one single locomotive or several of them, substituted for each other at intermediate points, can take us to the Pacific Coast?

CARL F. HERMANN.

Freedom Is Bought With a Great Price, But the Price Doesn't Matter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TODAY I drove out to the edge of the village to see Aunt Sally. I walked the last few hundred yards, for her house sits in the middle of a cotton patch.

It is a typical "tenant house"—a two-room affair, without windows. Its one door has no glass; and when the weather is cold, Aunt Sally has no light except that provided by the fire. The shingled roof leaks in many places and the wind blows through wide cracks in the walls.

It is a poor shelter, but Aunt Sally pays no rent. The man who owns the farm says she can live there until she dies.

That will not be long, for she is 91 years old.

When I approached the house, she called to me from the field. I turned to look, but did not see her at once, for she was on her knees. Younger people stoop to pick cotton, but Aunt Sally must kneel because she needs both hands to hold her crutches when she stands erect.

She doesn't stand entirely erect, for both of her feet are useless. They drag on the ground as she swings along on her crutches.

She seems very strong and agile for a woman of 91. Last summer she hoed cotton to earn her living. "I wuk," said she, "but I cain't lift much. I've got a tumor in my stomach."

White people who give her milk and butter and other trifles have urged her to go to the poorhouse, but she refuses. That would be a complete surrender to charity, and she would have no more liberty. It would mean leaving home, also, and home is dear to her.

Aunt Sally's is an exceptional case, but all old people feel as she does.

When they leave their old home and go to live with a son or daughter, they go reluctantly and with heavy hearts. They exchange liberty for mere bread. They are free boarders in a house where they have no rights, and no degree of love can compensate for the loss of freedom.

Age does not change human nature. Independence is sweet to the old; without it there can be no self-respect or happiness. And the discomforts of the old home are more easily borne than the luxury of a strange house.

It is a hard charity that says to the old: "Give up your authority and independence and self-respect and I will give you shelter."

Aunt Sally was a slave; she will not let charity enslave her again.

"GUESSTIMATE."

Our mention the other day of a new portmanteau word, "guesstimate," has caused a number of persons to write us, says the Spokane Spokesman-Review. One calls our attention to the compound heading, "Giraffrica," in a current magazine, over an article on hunting the giraffe in Africa. Another correspondent informs us that many of our common words probably are compounds, instancing the following:

Grumble from growl and rumble.
Flaunt from flout and vaunt.
Scurry from scour and hurry.
Boost from boom and hoist.
Dang from damn and hang.

We print these examples for what they are worth. Word sharps may differ with our correspondent or they may not. One mixture that we are sure of is Lewis Carroll's "chortle," which is a telescoping of "chuckle" and "snort."

A third writer asks if we ever heard of Christopher Morley's neat invention, "Decanterbury pilgrims," to designate excursionists who depend for their fun on the amount of liquor consumed. We had not heard of it, but we recall that some years ago we, in this column, wrote of such persons being out for a "alcoholiday."

PRESS COMMENT.

They Snub No Sweets.

Detroit News: A writer on circus matters says there are 500 professional fat women in the country. That is, in round figures.

So There You Are.

Dallas News: The Republicans in the next Congress will have a working majority, but a majority of them won't work.

Only Natural.

Atchison Daily Globe: There is so much material on every hand that it is only natural that most men are materialists.

Once Upon a Time?

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: A scientist tells us that the elephant once roamed over Texas. We can readily believe it. Once?

The Big One.

Philadelphia Record: That man whose wife left him and got a divorce because he went on so many fishing trips can now tell a true story about the big one that got away.

Now and Later.

Springfield Republican: There are many retired politicians who will feel a keen and poignant sympathy with the California football player who ran 75 yards in the wrong direction.

Woman's Page.

Detroit News: Seven women are to sit in the new Congress—almost enough to justify a department in the Record on how to use up the leftovers from yesterday's meals, &c.

Too Many Helpers.

Springfield Republican: A sagacious metropolitan paper announces that Mr. Hoover "seeks help" in forming his Cabinet. He can have all the help and all the helpers he wants.

Wasted Effort.

St. Louis Post Dispatch: It is only the female mosquito that bites, according to latest information. And we have been killing mosquitoes indiscriminately.

Here's a Solution.

Philadelphia Record: As we understand some of the propaganda now current, what the country ought to do is build one cruiser and sign fifteen Kellogg treaties.

Foolish Love.

Boston Transcript: "Love and booze," says the Florida Times-Union philosopher, "can make a fool of any man." Especially is this true when the love is for the booze.

A Pessimist.

Ohio State Journal: The most easily alarmed man in this neighborhood, a dry voter by the way, is laying in quite a stock of Canadian goods, before Mr. Durant's $25,000 plan goes into effect.

Nothing Like Precaution.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: From Roumania comes the news that bandits have stolen a railroad. If this news goes West, they ought to tack down the Illinois Central on Chicago's lake front.

Contempt of the Senate.

Baltimore Sun: The objections being raised in the Senate to the Kellogg treaty and the form in which they are stated are not calculated to increase respect for the intellectual attainments of the senators responsible for them. Both those who are against the treaty and those who, while they will vote for it, accompany the announcement of their intentions with disparaging comment, have talked more like schoolboys than like statesmen. Their speeches sound like rambling chatter, without continuity of thought, settled conviction or definite purpose, and are full of self-evident contradictions.

CROWN PRINCE OLAF OF NORWAY TO WED

BOTH COURT FAVORITES

Stockholm, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—The engagement of Princess Martha of Sweden to Crown Prince Olaf of Norway was officially announced today. Princess Martha, who was born March 28, 1901, is the daughter of Prince Charles, brother of King Gustaf of Sweden. The crown prince was born on July 2, 1903.

Oslo, Norway, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—King Haakon today informed the cabinet council of the engagement of Crown Prince Olaf to Princess Martha of Sweden.

The premier, in behalf of the government, offered hearty congratulations after which congratulatory telegrams were sent to the princess, the King of Sweden and the Swedish government.

London, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—News of the engagement of Crown Prince Olaf of Norway and Princess Martha of Sweden was received with great interest in England today, both of the young people being favorites in court and society circles.

Prince Olaf, who is a nephew of King George, was born at Sandringham and probably is better known in England than any other foreign prince. He was an Oxford student. He became a proficient oarsman there and is a keen, all-around sportsman.

Princess Martha, a dark-haired, tall girl of great beauty, visited England several times and was the guest last year of Queen Mary at Balmoral and of Princess Beatrice on the Isle of Wight.

Princess Martha is a sister of Princess Astrid, wife of the Belgian crown prince. The Princess is generally considered one of the most beautiful of European princesses. Tall and slender, with dark hair and a pale complexion, she is of a retiring disposition and a great lover of music.

Crown Prince Olaf is the son of King Haakon and Queen Maude, who is a sister of King George of England. He is known as one of the most intrepid yachtsmen among the younger royalty of Europe. His yacht Oslo, guided by his own hand, won the international race for 6-meter yachts at the Cowes regatta in 1926. Prince Olaf studied for two years at Balliol College, Oxford.

Six Dog Teams Begin Race Toward Boston

Berlin, N. H., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Six dog teams started today on a 220-mile race which is scheduled to end in Boston on Saturday. There was little snow on the ground, but the weather was clear and cold. The teams had a 28-mile run to Twin Mountain before them today.

Divorce Suit Is Filed By Hoot Gibson's Wife

Los Angeles, Jan. 14 (U.P.).—Hoot Gibson, motion picture actor, was sued for divorce today. His wife charged him with desertion and "disregarding the solemnity of marriage vows."

The Gibsons were married in Hollywood six years ago and have a daughter, Lois, 5 years old. Mrs. Gibson said a property settlement had been agreed on.

Flu Creating Phenomenal Demand for Vicks VapoRub

Although the flu itself is not so serious as in 1918, authorities stress the importance of taking every possible precaution for fear of the complications which invade the weakened system after a flu attack.

They urge, especially, prompt treatment of every cold, as colds lower the body resistance and make it easier for flu or pneumonia to get a foothold.

That the public is heeding this warning is indicated by the phenomenal demand for Vicks VapoRub, the famous external treatment which leaped to fame almost overnight during the 1918 epidemic. In spite of tripled capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating night and day, and 375,000 jars are now being produced every 24 hours.

In compliance with Mr. Auth's request, the pallbearers will be his eight grandsons. They are Nicholas Auth, Lawrence J. Auth, Francis Auth, Anton Auth, John G. Auth, Henry J. Auth, Bernard Auth and Andrew Auth.

AVOID UGLY PIMPLES

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel: there's no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Boyish Figure Styles Hard on Potato Market

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—The publicized theory of theatrical producers that the ideal feminine figure should have a boyish slimness has done "almost irreparable harm" to certain branches of the vegetable industry, E. S. Briggs, manager of the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers Association, declared at the annual convention today.

Since the "boyish figure" idea has been picked up from professional exploiters of feminine pulchritude, the potato and rice market has been "glutted," due to the fact that every one avoided starchy foods in the interests of slenderness, Briggs said.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk 60c for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonsful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

AUTO GROUP HONORS RETIRING SECRETARY

S. S. Grogan Is Praised After Long Service; Succeeded by V. J. Kelly.

EXPOSITION PLANS MADE

Announcement of the organization's regretful acceptance of the resignation of S. S. Grogan as assistant secretary of the Washington Automotive Trade Association was made at the regular meeting of the body last night at the City Club. Mr. Grogan, who had served as assistant secretary ever since the association's organization more than ten years ago, stated that pressure of other duties made it impossible longer to carry on his W. A. T. A. work. He is advertising manager of The Washington Post.

In announcing Mr. Grogan's resignation, Edward M. Wallace, president of the trade association, stated that the place would be filled by V. J. Kelly, well known in local newspaper circles. Mr. Wallace also stated that the association contemplated broadening its services to members; that an office would be opened, and that a campaign to stimulate interest in the association and its work would be inaugurated.

A rising acknowledgment of Mr. Grogan's services to the association was asked by Rudolph Jose, and it was accorded. Brief talks praising the resigning official also were made by Mr. Jose, Mr. Wallace and Chester H. Warrington.

As chairman of the show committee, Mr. Jose reported progress on plans for the ninth annual motor car exposition, to open Saturday, January 26, at the Washington Auditorium. Mr. Jose said that all signs point to the most comprehensive exhibit ever held by the association.

A final report on the organization's banquet, held last month, was given by Mr. Warrington.

Gilda Gray Obtains Divorce From Boag

Dancer-Actress Charges Husband With Cruelty and Heavy Drinking.

Waukesha, Wis., Jan. 14 (A.P.)—Gilda Gray, dancer and movie actress, was granted a divorce from Gil Boag, of New York, in circuit court today. Cruel and inhumane treatment were charged by the actress.

A. W. Grady, attorney for Boag, said he had communicated with his client both in New York and London and the latter had stated he wished to go no further with the action. He previously expressed an intention of fighting the divorce on the grounds that his wife was not a legal resident of the State.

Under the provisions of the divorce, Boag will receive property and furnishings worth approximately $20,000, but his contract with the actress under which he received a commission will be terminated immediately.

When the court asked the actress if this arrangement was satisfactory she replied: "Anything to be away from him."

Boag and Gilda Gray were married in Chicago January 31, 1924. The actress has a child by a former marriage, but none by her second husband. She testified she contributed to his support during their married life and that he had been a habitual drunkard.

The dancer, who was born in Milwaukee and who danced at cheap cafes here before her rise to fame in the movies, said she will continue to live with her mother, Mrs. Max Michalski.

Assault Charge Is Denied.

Accused of a criminal assault upon Sarah Dawson, of the Evangeline Hotel, 1330 L street northwest, Lloyd P. Scott, of 3220 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was arraigned before Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday in Police Court. Scott was arrested on Saturday by Detective John Wise, of headquarters. He pleaded not guilty and was held in bail of $1,000 for a hearing of the charge on Thursday.

As one of The Three Musketeers said to D'Artagan last night in the stars' dressing room at the National: "Here we are, fellows, back at the same old stand." 'Twas on a night like this, about a year ago, that Mr. Flo Ziegfeld left behind him many memories of the lower form of musical comedy and made one grand gesture to reach the Olympian heights. He presented on the stage of the National, for its baptism of theater, "The Three Musketeers." That, forsooth, was a hectic work. In the much-abused embryonic state, the operetta had many days and nights before attaining maturity. It has now arrived in all its glory.

"The Three Musketeers" is a polished machine of the theater; fast moving, perfect precision, a magical performance, cut and fashioned to reasonable length, and still with the soul of artistry somewhere in its make-up. Somewhere Everywhere! No wonder that at that opening performance there were reviewers so bold as to predict—with things even in the plastic state—that here would prove a standard for works of its kind.

William Anthony Maguire, the playwright, plucked the heart right out of Alexandre Dumas', celebrated literary work and made of it a stirring drama. He wove in and around the script enough climactic moments to gladden the heart of any lover of melodrama; but there was there, in the original, just the sort of red-blooded stuff to make a masterpiece of stage craft. The Three Musketeers, Porthos, Athos and Aramis, and their boy friend, the brazen youth from Gascony, D'Artagnan, have an appeal.

When Flo Ziegfeld imprisoned young Dennis King in the role of D'Artagnan he fastened the garments of that loveable braggart to the right frame. After a year of it, almost, Mr. King comes back with more vim and verve than on the opening night here. Now he is sure of himself, the part is perfected, and let the gods go take a long walk for themselves in the garden.

Well, it is all grand entertainment, on the grand scale—and, to appreciate what Ziegfeld tried to do a year ago the return engagement must be seen. Of lovely ladies, the fair Vivienne Segal, ever of the musical comedies, enacts and sings her role, Constance, with the same beauteousness and grace as of yore. Then, there is Yvonne D'Arle, of the operatic voice, as Anne, Queen of France, about whose love affair centers so much action, and Reginald Owen, a cunning Cardinal Richlieu. The Three Musketeers are entrusted to Detmar Poppen, the mammoth basso profundo; Douglas R. Dumbrille of fine fettle, and Joseph Macauley, who again scores with the song hit, "Ma Belle." Indeed, in this company Mr. King makes much of his honors, for here are singers all, with King the accomplished actor. There is another outstanding contribution in the singing of "Queen of My Heart," by John Clarke, who plays the Duke of Buckingham.

While all the glory of a great Ziegfeld production centers about the dashing fellows, and the ladies of the court, and the high and mighty in all walks, —all, of course, in the story—there is a dancer who steps up on her toes and veritably stops the show. Nothing, of course, could stop the show, yet, in this instance, Harriet Hoctor, the loveliest of toe dancers, comes pretty near doing that very thing. She and the Albertina Rasch girls fill in many of the magical moments where terpsichorean art is needed.

While there are weighty moments, it remains for Lester Allen, the little fellow of comedy, to come along in the role of Planchet, valet to D'Artagnan, and provide many mirthful scenes.

With the exception that all the rough spots are rubbed off, and that two or three of the original cast are not present, "The Three Musketeers" is the same production that played here eleven months ago one night in February. It is, if anything, better; and the wonder of it all is how the good folks continue to be so enthusiastic in parts so long occupied. Perhaps the enthusiasm of each new audience is what inspires. There is always that enthusiasm of the opening night, and will be, probably, until "The Three Musketeers" fold their cloaks about them and call it quits. The stirring music of Rudolph Friml, in itself, would keep up any lagging spirit, especially that martial strain, "We Are the Musketeers."

Young Dennis King made a gracious curtain speech at the last curtain, saying that "The Three Musketeers" was born here and has proved a very healthy baby. So it has.

'Stagger' Opening Hours Set To End Theater Traffic Jam

New York, Jan. 14 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Broadway Theater, supine and writhing in agony, caused by a malady broadly termed "bad business," underwent a minor operation today. It had removed from its pain-wracked carcass a parasitic growth, called by those who profess to know, "traffic jam."

The operation was performed at a meeting which was attended by the new police commissioner, Grover Whalen, and sundry theater owners and managers. From the conference there emerged a "stagger" plan for the opening hours of the 70 legitimate theaters around Times Square. Musicial shows will ring up their curtains not later than 8:30 o'clock and dramatic productions will get under way at 8:50 o'clock. Thus it is hoped to cut down the rush that occurs nightly at present, when all curtains are supposed to ring up at 8:30.

The plan goes into effect Monday night and will be given a two weeks' trial, when the commissioner and the theater managers will assemble again to discuss further measures for relief.

The traffic jam, theater men believe, is hurting business.

New Yorkers, who have experienced the agony attendant upon a visit to the theater, are passing their evenings elsewhere, theatrical men aver. Visitors in town, who stay at hotels around Broadway, plunge into the flood tide, unaware of what they're doing, and it is these visitors, mostly, who are supporting the theaters just now, but that support, everyone agrees, is meager.

So an effort is to be made to lure New Yorkers back to the theater.

George Lederer, one of the managers who attended today's conference, said it was impossible to get natives to the theater on time. If you threaten to ring up the curtain at 8:50 o'clock, the customers will be just as late as usual. Commissioner Whalen didn't seem to think so.

"Why, your honor," said Lederer, "I've seen you come to the theater at 9:15."

Whalen grimaced a trifle and then confessed. "Yes, that's true."

And Whalen is an average New Yorker, so there you are.

With NELSON B. BELL

It will be my immediate purpose to suggest to Mr. Daly that he get in touch with Mr. Ziegfeld, wintering in Florida these last few days; George White, producer of the "Scandals," who may be I know not where, and the flock of Carrolls who have just left the city with "Fioretta"—all specialists in beautiful young American womanhood—and suggest to them that they park in the fourth floor hall of The Post building and watch the procession of sirens parading into the library to register in the contest for the privilege of being Mary Pickford's guest for a week next month. No fooling.

It is not at all surprising that things should be as they are since the scramble started among the entrants. for I can conceive of nothing more earnestly to be desired than a trip to Southern California at this season of the year with all expenses paid from Washington back to Washington. The detailed requirements are set forth in other columns of The Daily Post, but I will go so far as to say that there is positively no catch in it, and that the lucky one who corrals the greatest number of votes will have the time of her life visiting Pickfair, the palatial home of Mary and Doug., touring the movie studios, being entertained at the Cocoanut Grove, rendezvous of Hollywood's celebrities, living at the swagger Roosevelt Hotel and even peeking at the little fishes through the glass-bottomed boats that ply the waters of the Catalina Islands.

Despite the fact that this is not a beauty contest, nothing else but seems to be entering the lists. The unsuccessful contestants would make a fine background upon which any of the above-mentioned entrepreneurs might with fine credit to himself hang a niftick revue.

Speaking of such, it will no doubt be of interest to feminine readers—if any—to know that tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock a special performance will be given at Loew's Palace Theater for women only, with a constructive health and beauty lecture and demonstration in body building by Helen Macfadden, daughter of the eminent physical culture exponent, Bernarr Macfadden.

A uniform price of 25 cents for any seat in the house will be assessed for this single performance, with the added privilege of remaining for the first morning presentation of the regular program.

I am led to believe, having seen Miss Macfadden in "The Perfect Girl" revue, that this is not another plug for one of those Battle Creek wiggle machines, or whatever you call them!

There have been many instances of duplicated performances on the local screens by players whose popularity has resulted in so many engagements that in certain weeks they have seemed to be all over the place. With directors it has usually been different.

This week, however, Roy Del Ruth is represented by two Warner Bros. talking pictures running simultaneously in two of the downtown first-run houses, "Conquest," at the Earle, and "Beware of Bachelors," at the Fox. They are as far apart as the poles in content and treatment, which ought to prove something or other, but I don't know just what.

Those who have observed the two-reel comedies, of the school originated by Mack Sennett, since the days of their acceptance as the last word in camera absurdity, will probably recall the proficiency with which Ford Sterling was wont to razz the work of his associates. It was the appointed task of this veteran clown to sit in the front row of the pictured theater and manifest his personal reactions to the cavortings being depicted on the screen upon a screen. It was, as a general thing, not among the world's most abstruse problems to apprehend Mr. Sterling's precise state of mind by the enthusiasms he revealed or the prejudices he invariably failed to conceal.

Harry Gribbon, last seen, I believe, with Buster Keaton in "The Cameraman," in which he played the cop, is reviving the Sterling technique this week at the Palace in support of Marion Davies and William Haines in "Show People." His work, to these failing eyes, excels that of the old master when he was engaged in similar pursuits. Which is to say that Mr. Gribbon is very very funny.

So many have asked me which I deem the better all-talkie, "On Trial," in its third week at the Metropolitan, or "Interference," in its second at the Columbia, that I hasten, after a fortnight, to declare it an honest dead heat in my negligible estimation. "On Trial," I should say, is slightly the more perfect in its auricular effects; "Interference" in its visual—which, granting two excellent plots and casts, ought to make it all even.

It would be silly to miss either in favor of the other, despite the fact that George M. Cohan can not make up his mind whether talking pictures are O. K. or not. These two, as it happens, are.

Well, we finally came to the showdown. I got out the moth holes Sunday night and discovered that there was more overcoat left around them than I had thought, but I still entertain hope of disposing of the garment as a de luxe pattern for 1929 model Swiss cheeses!

ARTIST IS LIBERATED IN DEATH OF FIANCEE

Shows $125,000 of Bonds Had Been Retransferred to Spokane Girl.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Leonid Fink, Seattle artist, was released from custody today after he had been held for questioning in connection with the death of Miss Ruth McDonald, wealthy art patron.

Fink was detained when it became known Miss McDonald had turned over to him about $125,000 worth of bonds before she was found dead in her car on the outskirts of town, supposedly from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Today Fink showed officers, they said, that he had given a bank order for the return of the bonds to Miss McDonald. This had been done, they said, before her death. Fink said Miss McDonald was his fiancee and that she gave him the bonds to hold in trust for her.

Miss McDonald's body was found beside her automobile yesterday after a two-day search. A sooty ring, which corresponded in size to the exhaust pipe, indicated she had held her mouth close to the pipe until the fumes poisoned her. There were no marks of violence on her body.

Fink told police he met Miss McDonald at an exhibition of his work, and that a chance acquaintance had developed into love.

Mrs. Agnes McDonald, mother of the girl and member of a wealthy pioneer family, said her daughter left home Friday afternoon. The mother added she expressed disapproval of the bond transfer and had requested Fink, then in Seattle, to come to Spokane.

The tenth of a series of twenty radio auction bridge games will be broadcast from station WRC at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Each game of the series will feature Milton C. Work and Wilbur C. Whitehead, New York experts, in association with players from cities throughout America and Canada. The listeners-in are urged to have four players ready with cards and to follow the game bid by bid and play by play as broadcast over WRC.

The contestants in the tenth game are Mrs. C. E. Traver, of Salt Lake City, a prominent teacher, who also is active as a player in the various competitions in her part of the country; Mrs. Lewis Todhunter, of Denver, Colo., a successful and prominent teacher of the game, and Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game ten:

Wilbur C Whitehead, of New York, "South," the dealer, holds: Spades, K, 8, 3; hearts, Q, 6, 3; diamonds, 7, 5, 4, 3, and clubs, A, 9, 5.

Milton C. Work, "West," holds: Spades, J, 9, 4; hearts, K, J, 8; diamonds, A, K, 10, 2; clubs, 7, 6, 3.

Comedian, composer, humorous sketch writer and guitar player rolled in one, Phil is scheduled to serve as master of ceremonies during the presentation of the Eveready Four of a program of light and popular music.

Jack Scholl and Kel Keech will be featured on the program in ukulele and song duets. Scholl and Keech are well known for their work in both radio and vaudeville. Scholl first gained fame with Yerkes' Flotilla Orchestra, while Keech is said to have formed the first American jazz band in Paris, under the name of the "White Lyres," immediately following the war. Keech was born in Honolulu and learned his ukulele there under native guidance.

The orchestra, with Nat Shilkret conducting, will provide the musical accompaniment for the duets and also play a number of orchestral selections.

The program for the Slumber Music broadcast from WRC at 11 o'clock tonight follows: "Egyptian March," Strauss; overture to "Stradella," Von Flotow; "Mon Reve," Waldteufel; selection from "Hansel and Gretel," Humperdinck; "Serenade," Toselli; "Legends," Friml, and "Yesterthoughts," Herbert.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of the Catholic Diocese of Baltimore, will be the guest of honor and chief speaker during the banquet of the Society for the Propogation of the Faith for Home and Foreign Missions to be held at the Mayflower Hotel this evening and broadcast by Station WOL at 9:30 o'clock.

Law Urged To Regulate Interception

Bill in Congress Plans Ban on Rebroadcasting Without Authority — $5,000 Paid to Give "An American in Paris."

A bill designed to clarify the radio act with respect to the rebroadcasting and retransmitting or recording for phonograph of a broadcast program without the specific authority of the originating station, has been formulated by Louis B. F. Raycroft, vice president of the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association, in charge of the radio division, and introduced into the House of Representatives by Representative George P. Darrow, of Pennsylvania. A similar bill has been introduced intc the Senate by Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana.

While the spirit of the statute is clear and it is quite plain what the legislators intended to forbid, certain practices have grown up and others are threatened which contravene the spirit, but do not seem to be covered by the letter of the law, according to Mr. Raycroft.

The latter's recommendations were made following study of the practice of certain telephone companies that received broadcast programs without the authority of the originating station and sent them out over their wires at a fixed charge to subscribers. In the same way, other companies have been receiving broadcast programs without authority and have made talking machine records of them for sale.

In order to specifically state the prohibitions intended but no defined in section 28 of the act, the new bill introduces the following wording: "Now shall any such person, firm, company or corporation intercept in the process of transmission and rebroadcast or in any manner retransmit by wire or wireless or by any means record for the purpose of reproduction the program or any part thereof of another station without the express authority of the originating station."

A record figure of $5,000 for the right to broadcast for the first time George Gershwin's "An American in Paris" is said to have been included in an agreement made with the composer in New York recently. This composition is expected to come into public favor along with Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and marks for the first time in the history of radio that sponsors of a feature have contracted for the rights of the premiere broadcast.

The exact date has not yet been set, but the new Gershwin composition will be heard over the air late in January.

Short-wave conversations between W2XAF, WGY's Schenectady short-wave station, and 2ME, of Sydney, Australia, were heard near Essex, England, according to Charles H. Adler, living at Westcliff-on-Sea. He reported signals of amazing strength, whereas as a rule daylight in England weakens the signal of W2XAF. The sun was shining brightly at the time he reports.

The conversations were conducted at 6:30 a. m., Eastern standard time. The time in Sydney was in the evening of the same day, and it was about 11:30 a. m. in Westcliff-on-Sea.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Thrift and Love Again."

IF YOU had $800 saved up, and had loved a man for two years, would you give him up just because he failed to receive an expected "raise?" Or would you marry him?

Over a hundred people wrote to the column in the past three days to censure or to advise Polly, who has the precious $800 and the faithful lover. We are going to publish some letters for and against Polly's idea of "Safety First."

Personally, Polly's attitude seems to us shocking. It seems to hint of something sinister creeping into the social order, something calculating and cold and hard. But that may be because our own great grandmother crossed the seas in defiance of parental wrath to join her banished lover in a strange world, for love. Are there any great loves any more? Will there ever be any again? To what are we coming? And what will we be when finally we are done with love? Read these letters and write us your opinion:

A Wife's Story.

Dear Miss McDonald: I always enjoy your column, for you seem to give such sound advice. Just read about Polly who loves but fears to risk poverty or lose her savings in marriage. I would like to tell Polly a real story of nine years ago. A girl and a man met. This was not the first girl the man had made dates with but it was the first for the girl. They grew to love each other so much that every parting was real pain They were to be married. Then through no fault of his, the man lost his business. What did they do? Give up love? Not they. They got married. He was earning $21 and they paid $10 a week for two rooms. But it was heaven to them. He got a new job with more money and now, after nine years, they have two darling children and a nice home and are not even in debt, although they have been at times They are still the same sweethearts. So Polly dear, I would say to you, if you love each other till it hurts at parting, get married. Then he will have you to work for and you will have him at all times. Fear not, you will get along and one day look back with happy memories of your early married life and wonder how you did it. Have faith in him and yourself and above all, don't nag him, but believe in him at all times. He is quite right when he says. "If you love him and are sweet to him he can do anything." That's how men are, Polly.

What my husband sees in me I don't know, but I am content that God gave him to me and as long as he spares me I will always do my best and be glad I took a chance and believe in love. Polly have faith and all will be well, and remember, money is not much, but love works wonders. POLLANNA.

A Bachelor's Wisdom.

As I have a few spare moments this evening, I will endeavor to give Polly's letter my thoughts. Keep your money, Polly girl! It seems to me that you are the one who would suffer if you were to marry. You have a splendid habit—"thrift"—and you must take into consideration the aftermath of marriage Do not set your mind on getting married. Marriage is beset with disappointments.

Another great feature in your case is that your boy friend is not the banker. This always brews trouble. Your money will soon be gone.

Nowadays there is no contract that is so hard to draw up as that of marriage, and if I were you I would dismiss from my mind "gradually" the thought of getting married at all. Make new acquaintances. Be sure they are good, and go out with your boy friend also now and again. Girls do not have to marry these days. So why should you? I am not married, but have lived with married folks all over the country, and I know! So, girlie, come out of your dream, and save your money. Get out woth good fellows and I can assure you if you keep your eyes open and learn all you can you will not marry. I go out with good girls. I have a nice roadster. I don't expect kisses from girls and will not marry one. I enjoy their company, talk, opinions, &c. You can do the same. Would like to see this in print and hear what others say.

WEALTHY BACHELOR.

Dear Miss McDonald: In response to your request for opinions from readers concerning "What about the girl who finds that love can be scrapped if the man does not have money." I respectfully offer the opinion that the young lady is acting very unwisely in not marrying immediately, not next June, or two years hence, if she loves him.

This is because no one can order his life in advance, and though each might have a fortune at the time of marriage, a few months may see them both penniless.

The man has a job. The girl has a job. The man has nothing saved up. The girl has $800. Do you suppose in the two and a half years the man has spent $800 on her? That is possible.

Can't the young lady marry at once, keep on working and put her $800 in the fixtures needed to start housekeeping? What percentage of marriages do you suppose are started under as auspicious circumstances as the one I am recommending if they love each other? What does the young woman want? Does she love him? If she does not love the man she should tell him so plainly and hunt for another. Is she capable of true love? Will she release him? No to both questions. She will say she has released him in words, but by her actions she will keep him dangling until she lands another fish which she thinks is more to her interest, or in the end marry him, because she can not do better.

Your admirer and well wisher,

JACK.

"By One Who Knows."

MOST readers will recall the letter of Virginia Dare, who wrote that she had flapped so much that she was now a flop. She asked how to find "a real boy" with whom she could pal.

Letters from fathers advocated that her pa "spank Virginia and put her to bed." Most mothers sympathized with Virginia's predicament and counseled kindly. Many boys gave Virginia good and sensible advice and thus perhaps unconsciously, and yet subtly proved that they were the type of "real boy" she was seeking. But it remained for young girls themselves to give Virginia information on her problems.

One letter especially struck me. It is a sermon cut into paper by the keys of a typewriter. I reproduce it even though it does not definitely solve Virginia's problem, because of the help it may be to girls who may find themselves in Virginia's position. As you read it you can see why it was unsigned:

"Virginia Dare: Ah, I, too, have traveled the road. I started with 'my crowd,' but when I got to the end of the road I found I was all alone.

"I wore the war paint. I had the line, I 'expressed myself.' Then I began to look around. I was at the end of the road, somewhat tired, somewhat shopworn (as Dr. Dean would say), and very much alone.

"Well! I washed off the war paint, changed my ways and started back up the long, hard hill. Sometimes I met my old friends. They stopped to talk but never to help. Sometimes I made new friends; some stopped to question and some to wonder, and some not at all.

"Sometimes I met again the whole old crowd. I joined and lived the past over again. Then they left me where they had found me. I was alone—so alone—again. And still I climb. And even if my feet are weary I have learned wisdom.

"Today I sit here, tired and still more or less alone. Mine is a name to conjure with, known to the younger crowd and, alas—remembered by the older crowd. The younger crowd bring me their troubles, tell their stories, and I answer them out of experience.

"'Tis ever the same tale, only the actors change. Under the make-up they listen, look wise and return later and tell me the answer. I gave them the answer before they started.

"Well, Virginia, be careful. We all want what we want, but after we get it we don't want it. Like coals in a fireplace, beautiful, glowing, we reach for the things we think desirable. Sometimes they burn us, sometimes not, but after we hold them in our hands and take a second look, they are just ashes and our hands are soiled.

"I shall have to remain just,

"MISS X."

I know you readers join me in wishing we had the name and address of Miss X that we might write her a word of appreciation and encouragement.

DISAPPOINTED GIRL.

Answer — I regret that I must be frank but the fact is millions of boys and as many girls have forgotten old sweethearts for new in youth's mate-seeking years. He has decided definitely or intuitively or carelessly or thoughtlessly to find another friend or friends. Let's hope this isn't true and that everything will come out to please you in the end. Meantime cast your eyes about you. The world is full of desirable young men.

Water Moving Mountains.

IF we look at a mountain we are apt to think that it is the most solid thing in the world. We may say to ourselves, "There is something which can not be moved—even man, with all his power and brains, can not transport a mountain."

A View of Bolan Pass.

Yet little drops of water are moving mountains. Every day that it rains on a mountain, every day that snow melts, water carries away bits of the mountain. Scientists know that the Alleghany Mountains were once far higher than they are today. Through the course of millions of years they have been worn away. If the earth lasts 10,000,000 years longer the Alleghenies will probably be cut down to flat fields.

The Rockies are also being worn away. They are not so old as the Alleghenies, and do not show so many signs of the action of water, but the time will come when they are rounded and smoothed down.

When we look at a river, does the water seem clear and pure? Very seldom. The usual thing is for the water to be brownish, because of the mud which it carries. Part of that mud—in the case of a long river—has traveled hundreds of miles, often coming from a mountain top.

You have heard that dripping water wears away a rock. That is also true of melting snow or rain coming from a mountain Great layers of rock are worn down by mountain streams A good example of the power of water is found in Grand Canyon. There the Colorado River has cut a path through thousands of feet of solid rock.

Many mountain passes have been formed by streams and rivers. The rivers may have dried up, but the passes remain and help travelers.

One famous pass is known as Bolan Pass. It is in the mountains of Baluchistan (a small country of Asia) and runs for a distance of 54 miles. At some points this pass is so narrow that three persons could scarcely ride abreast. Cliffs rise on either side to a height of 700 or 800 feet. During winter, icy winds sweep through Bolan Pass.

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

New York, Jan. 14.

WATCHING the collections of the master couturiers of Paris, season after season, we never cease to be fascinated by the unending originality these creators of the mode manage to give to the tiniest details.

Take coat collars of fur, for example Time was when we thought of fur collars as fur collars. Either they were high about the throat or they were low with long lapels.

No more. Today, with fashion at one of its steady points, couturiers must search for novelty of detail and trimming—and succeed.

New Fur Collar Touches.

Jenny—Flat collar, high about throat with vertical slits at both sides through which ends are threaded. Small fur hat to match.

Premet—Enormous collars of fox fur, set high in the back. Matching fur cuffs, set at the elbow instead of the wrist, with sleeve continuing below.

Beer-Drecoll—Fur collar in two colors of the same fur, one a yellowish beige, the other a dark brown.

When a manteau is made by Heim then an elegante knows it is a coat worthy of her attention.

Just what strange power over the feminine mind and tastes the charming M. Heim has it would be hard to say. But it wouldn't surprise me any to find that it was just the power of marvelous workmanship plus the mind and tastes of an artist. Who but an artist could have designed this smart sport coat I illustrated for you today and who but M. Heim could have seen to it that the execution was entirely in keeping with the charm of the design?

Wee Mamzelle.

We have just received a bulletin from Paris regarding the mode for the little ones.

Mignatouf, the paris couturier who specializes in children's apparel, writes: "For all simple and practical dresses, I continue to use washable drugget in all colors. It is certainly the most comfortable of all materials for winter wear and has been markedly in favor for several seasons."

We might fool you and tell you we knew what washable drugget was, but we're too nice to do anything like that. We have more than a suspicion, though, that it is simply a washable serge.

Feminine Dainties!

A bed scarf and sleeve set, an adorable bed jacket, a padded breakfast coat, a bed shawl, a Chinese jacket—these are some of the dainty things we tell you how to make in this week's illustrated leaflet. After-Christmas sales tempt on so, with their wonderful bargains in yard goods, and there wonderself-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for you know perfectly well that time and time again you have wished you had something like this to slip on and haven't had it.

Look for Dare's weekly Fashion Letter in the Sunday issues of The Washington Post.

AUCTION BRIDGE AND CONTRACT BRIDGE.

STARTING today and ending Saturday, a series of five deals will be given. Concerning each deal four questions will be asked, and the answers will follow. Readers are urged to answer the questions for themselves before they read the answers that are given, and see how many they can get right. By comparing your score with that of your friends, an interesting contest can be arranged.

Question No. 3. What four cards should be played on the first trick?

Question No. 4. What card should be led to the second trick?

THE ANSWERS.

1. At Auction, South should obtain the contract with a bid of one No Trump; the only justifiable variation would be that, with four Aces, South might bid two No Trumps initially.

2. At Contract, South, with a count of 24 and four suits stopped, would have three more than the minimum requirement for a three No Trump bid. No other player would bid.

3. The first trick should be: West, Six of Spades; North, Five; East, Ten; South, Ace. South takes the trick with the Ace instead of the Queen so as to leave a Spade entry in the Dummy hand.

4. To trick 2, South leads the Ace of Hearts, intending to continue Hearts until they are established in Dummy. South plays the hand in this way, giving up the possibility of a Heart finesse so as to insure game. By establishing two Heart tricks in Dummy, while Dummy has an entry, Declarer must make two Spades, three Hearts, two Diamonds and two Clubs.

What Today Means to You

JANUARY 15

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 15 is your birthday, the most propitious hours for you today are from 9:15 a. m. to 10:15 a. m., from noon to 1:15 p. m., from 4:45 p. m. to 6:15 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:45 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. and from 2 p. m. to 3:45 p. m.

Malign influences will dominate today's planetary aspects. It will be very difficult to maintain an even equilibrium and cordial relations with your fellow man. Try and discount these influences as much as possible and maintain an even keel, at all costs to your dignity and temper.

The child born today will be a born homemaker. It will combine a sweetness of character with unfailing loyalty to its parents. Do not expect it to attain any scholastic or ahtletic honors, as, though gifted with common sense, it will not show great intelligence in pursuits of that character!

You are prone to tire of an undertaking before it is completed, and thereby have earned the accompanying reputation and stigma, which are the corollary of any such procedure. You lack stick-to-it-iveness, and you should cultivate the traits which are the main ingredients of this; application, diligence and perseverance. You are capable of worthwhile efforts, as your mentality is of the highest caliber, and your vision of the best. You have had many failures because, at the slightest sign of difficulties in anything you attempt, you give up and get out, to your own disadvantage.

You like to form new friendships and make acquaintances. Your personality is such that people are drawn to you at first meeting and quickly become friends with you. Your nature, however, is not conducive to lasting friendships, as you are not willing to endure any of the little, innumerable sacrifices that a true and lasting friendship calls for. However, as you are a born traveler, and are constantly moving, this does not affect you.

Your marital life will not by any means be a "bed of roses," as your mate will not stand for many of your idiosyncrasies, and the resultant unhappiness will not be compatible with any lasting love.

BRISK PRICE RALLY FOLLOWS SOFTNESS

MOTOR GROUP FEATURE

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 14.—The stock list showed a strong rallying tendency after going through another period of irregularity in the earlier dealings at the start of the new week on the New York Stock Exchange. In many directions speculation for the rise gathered confidence as the day progresed and in the afternoon the general movement toward higher levels was spirited and broad. The day's turnover, however, was nearly 800,000 shares under that of last Monday and just topped the 4,000,000 share mark.

At the finish sizable net appreciations, largely predominant, ranged up to 18 points in the maximum instance—in Allied Chemical & Dye which attained a new high at 276—but most were within a range of 1 to 6 points. On the day 28 new high levels for the 12 months or longer were established. Net losses in but a few instances were limited to a point or two, the principal exceptions being the highly volatile National Bellas Hess and Midland Steel Products preferred, off 19 and 10 points net, respectively.

Early dealings were retarded materially by considerable interruption of telegraphic communication with the Middle West as a result of the stormy weather in that area over the week-end. By midday or shortly thereafter, however, this condition was well cleared up and the restoration of virtually normal wire service was accompanied by a decidedly improved market tone.

Inclined to Go Slowly.

On the whole, the speculative element was inclined to proceed slowly pending developments in the money situation later in the week. Call loans renewed at 7 per cent and the supply of funds at that level was not of proportions to indicate any easing during the remainder of the week. Rather there was some nervousness over the possibilities of a stiffening in the rate.

Although the tendency, in a broad sense, was toward reaction in the forenoon's sluggish trading, there were a number of individual strong spots, particularly among the higher priced descriptions. As the market turned into the afternoon and there came no indication that the money rate would be increased during the balance of the session, bullish activity extended over a much broader range, with pronounced strength in various sections of the list.

The motor issues picked up briskly; rubber stocks continued to absorb much interest and the steels also came in for a renewal of attention. Mining shares perked up, too, but outstanding advances again were scored principally in the specialty group, with the aviation stocks, chemicals and some of the merchandising issues featuring.

Some Conspicuously Strong.

Conspicuous both for strength and activity were such shares as Pennsylvania Railroad, Studebaker, Wright, Curtiss, American Type Foundry and American Radiator in the wake of Allied Chemical. Wright, up 15 points at the close, although 3 points under the day's best, scored the second largest gain on the day—not to include an outstanding performer among the bank stocks, Bank of Commerce, up 40 points from its previous high record.

Curtiss gained 6¾, net; American Type Foundry, 6; American Radiator, 5; A. M. Byers, 4½; Otis Elevator, across the 300 mark for the first time, 7¾; International Telephone & Telegraph, 7½; International Combustion, 6½; Worthington Pump, 3½; Borden and Barnett Leather, 3¾, and Pillsbury Flour Mills convertible preferred, 4 points.

A long list of issues which advanced 2 to 3 points or so included Timken, Youngstown Steel & Tube, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Pennsylvania Railroad, Studebaker, Fisk Tire issues, U. S. Rubber issues, Miller Rubber, General Cable A, McCrory Stores B, Walgreen preferred, U. S. Leather, New York Dock, Commercial Investment Trust, Continental Baking A, National Biscuit, Ward Baking preferred, Du Pont, Cuyamel Fruit, Abitibi, By-Products Coke, Federal Light & Traction, American Sugar, Eisenlohr, Prairie Oil & Gas, White Motor, American Woolen preferred and Electric Power & Light.

Losses of 2 or 3 points were suffered by Commonwealth Power, American Tobacco, Ingersoll-Rand, General Asphalt, Electric Auto Lite, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Steamship, Nickel Plate, Wheeling & Lake Erie preferred, Boston & Maine, Warner Bros. Pictures, General Electric, Reynolds Tobacco B, and a few more, and Interstate Department Stores on a single transaction involving 100 shares dropped 6½ points.

Strength In Auto List.

The late strength in the automobile list was not a little surprising, inasmuch as such a development had not been anticipated in view of the disappointing action of the group as a whole during the show week just ended. Much of the buying was regarded as taking the form of covering by Detroit interests, which had put out substantial short lines some weeks ago in the belief that the current year would be one of hard sledding for some units in the industry. Based on preliminary November registration figures, it would appear that the two leading producers now are accounting for a greater proportion of the business than at this time a year ago.

The foreign exchange market was irregular, with sterling firmer, at $4.85 1-32, belgas up ½ point, lire and guilders unchanged, Swiss francs and German marks a point lower, and Norwegian and Danish rates yielding ½ point, and pesetas ½. South Americans, excepting rates on Buenos Aires, were moderately lower, and exchange on Shanghai and Yokohama lost more than a dozen points. Canadian dollars were unchanged.

PRICES HOLD FAIRLY STEADY IN BOND LIST

FEDERAL GROUP IS SOFT

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Prices held fairly steady on the bond market today and a few substantial gains were shown by rails and industrials without any important news developments nor changes in the credit situations to encourage buying. Total sales were $10,142,000, about the same as on the closing days of last week. Some investment buying apparently came into the market and a share of it was attracted to the foreign issues.

Among the strong spots in the industrial group were sugar issues, notably Warner Sugar Refining 7s, which advanced nearly 5 points. Buying here probably was due to reports of improved earnings and general expectations of a brighter future now that the Cuban restrictions difficulty has been solved. Other industrials moving to higher levels included Crown Cork & Seal 6s, Kayser & Co. 5½s, International Cement 5s, U. S. Rubber 5s, which advanced in sympathy with the rise in rubber stock prices, and Abraham & Straus 5½s. Anaconda Copper 7s, Allis Chalmer 5s, Pathe Exchange 7s, Certainteed 5½s, General Motors acceptance 6s and most of the oils yielded to selling pressure.

Utilities were mixed, with International Telephone convertible 4½s and Public Service of New Jersey 4½s among the few issues to hold their gains, both closing up a point or more.

Rails were also mixed. Katy 5s and Seaboard All Florida 6s and International Great Northern first 5s B were bought at price levels a point or so higher and smaller gains were made recorded by St. Paul 5s of 2000, Erie 5s and a few others. Declines in this group were small.

Italian industrials again dominated the foreign list, Pirelli 7s advancing nearly 9 points to a new year's high at 148 and holding most of its gain.

U. S. Government obligations were soft.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Prices were higher on the cotton market today on trade buying and covering of a December house demand which appeared to be influenced by relatively steady Liverpool cables and liberated reports of a steadier Southern spot basis. After selling up to 20.60, March reacted about 10 points under realizing and Southern selling and closed at 20.34, compared with 20.14 at Saturday's close. The general market closed steady at net advances of 12 to 23 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 6 to 17 points on covering and trade buying which appeared to be coupled with a moderate demand from brokers with Wall street and Western connections. There was enough feeling to cause some irregularity right after the call, but it was believed the failure of reported increase in domestic consumption for the month of November as had been discounted and the market showed increasing strength and activity late in the session.

January sold up to 20.34 and May to 20.43, with active months generally showing net gains of about 20 to 27 points on this buying movement, which was supposed to include some broadening of speculative interest. The demand tapered off at the advance, and later swings were partial reactions during the afternoon under Southern selling and realizing, closing prices were about 5 points off from the best on the active months.

The report of the Census Bureau showed consumption of lint cotton in this country during December of 574,567 bales against 515,-243 reported for November and 536,766 for December, 1927. The falling off as compared with November, however, was attributed to a shorter working month, and some dealers were inclined to consider that the maintenance of the average November rate of consumption during December was more significant than otherwise.

Private cables reported Continental and Bombay buying of futures, while in Liverpool and said that hedging was light. Trade comments were noted for cotton cloths from Japan, the sentiment and South American buying reported as favorable. There was further discussion of the market showing signs of a better spot demand, although it was said to be mostly against old commitments.

Receipts for the day were 13,301 making 48,000 for the week, exports were 7,000 against 21,000 for the week, port stocks 2,971,000, interior stocks 1,947,000.

BIG LEAGUE MANAGERS PLAN MANY INFIELD SHIFTS

Business High Five in Path Of Tech

Latter Can Strengthen Series Lead Today by Victory.

Eastern-Western Contest May Determine Runners-Up.

ALREADY leading its rivals by a comfortable margin, the Tech Quintet today has the chance to solidify its position at the top of the public high school basket ball series. If the Maroon and Gray Club can repulse the threat of Business which it meets in the second game of the scheduled double-header, starting at 3:15 o'clock in the Tech gymnasium, then the 1929 race, in the opinion of many series followers, will be just about over.

Both games of the twin bill in which Western will clash with Eastern in the opener, are important, with each of the four contestants having much to gain or lose.

Tech, of course, will slip back within reach of the three contenders, Business, Western and Eastern, if it does not add the Orange to its list of defeated opponents. A victory for Business will serve two purposes in that its position in the race will be materially fortified for the final titular drive as well as its confidence considerably bolstered, and the Orange Quintet now appears on the verge of eclipsing records of any Business court team of the past seven or eight years.

Newman to Bolster Business but Tech Is Favorite.

A loss for Business will throw Coach Woodworth's charges in the background along with Central which to date has not won a game. The same will hold true for the loser in the Western-Eastern clash. The opponents in this combat are tied with Business for second place, and the winner will remain deadlocked with the Orange should the latter upset Tech with prospects better than ever of eventually having something to say about the disposition of the championship.

Tech's victories over Central, Western and Eastern stamp it the favorite over Business, but if the Woodworth-coached array regains the services of its flashy little forward, Nathan Newman, the Manual Training five will not face an easy task, according to series dopesters.

Newman, who instilled the needed pep into the Stenographers in their victory over Central, suffered a sprained ankle early last week and was lost to his team when it bowed to Eastern.

Although Coach Woodworth hopes to have his star in shape by this afternoon, it is hardly likely that he will start, as Mahoney and Singman are slated to begin at the forwards. The center position will be occupied by Payne and the guards by Lewis and Denniberg.

Coach Artie Boyd, unwilling to break up a winning combination, will start the same line-up which has carried his team to its now envious positon, that of Johnson and MacCartee, forwards; Capt. Jake Goldblatt, center, and Johns and Brown, guards.

Coach Sanborn Making Secret of Eastern's Line-up.

A regular wholesale shake-up was made in the Eastern line-up last week against Business. What combination takes the floor today against Western is known only by Coach Irving Sanborn, but he intimated that McCullough and Capt. Ted Cappelli would be his forwards; Ryan, center, and Shapiro and Wood, guards. There is a possibility that Joe Robey, supposedly

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Santiago Zorilla, the Panama featherweight who came out of a jungle not so long ago to win a place among the fistic elite by defeating Bud Taylor, stopping Joey Sangor and holding Tod Morgan, junior lightweight champion, to a draw, is not one of those foolish young fighters who throw away all their earnings on wine, woman and song. Zorilla, who drew down something like $3,000 for Battling Morgan, invested some of it in six machine guns of the type the little wildcat from the Canal Zone jungle had seen used in misunderstanding between business men in the streets of Chicago. These he will distribute as gifts to relatives back home.

The rest of his surplus cash Zorilla put into raiment befitting the person of an aspirant to a fistic throne. As he followed 19 trunks crammed with elegant vestments up the gangplank of a ship bound for the Canal Zone the other day, Santiago might easily have scored a sartorial knockout over Grover Whalen on his way to a society wedding on Easter Sunday at high noon.

Bucky Harris' New Shortstop Bold and Nervy, Plus.

If Heine Schuble, the Houston shortstop whom Bucky Harris has nominated to step into Jackie Tavener's brogans, fails to make good with Detroit next season, it will not be because he lacks nerve. A couple of years ago, when Heinie was shotstopping for Danville, one of the St. Louis Cardinals' farms, he decided to celebrate his nineteenth birthday by getting married. As if that decision in itself was not a sufficient indication of his courage, Heine had the clergyman call the third strike on him in the Danville Ball Park before a Sunday afternoon crowd of several thousand fans.

Klem Admits He Feels Hurt; Sour Season in Prospect.

Bill Klem, veteran National League umpire, has thought better of his decision to forsake the diamond for some field in which genius is appreciated and will be back again next season calling 'em as he sees 'em. The man who never called one wrong in 25 years behind the indicator, to hear him tell it, explains that he was hurt by the criticism to which he was subjected by John McGraw and other lusty dissenters to his decision in the famous Hartnett-Reese mix-up at the Polo Grounds last summer.

All the players in the league are probably sitting up nights trying to think up ways of making his summer days sweet for Mr. Klem. Arthur Fletcher, who fancied he saw in the umpire's countenance a resemblance to an aquatic species, first discovered how sensitive a soul is Mr. Klem when he fastened the affectionate nickname, "Catfish," on the dignified dean of Mr Heydler's umpires. To save his life, Fletcher could not rid himself of a habit of imitating the workings of a fish's gills whenever Mr. Klem was officiating, and spent many a day in banishment as a result.

Now that Mr. Klem has publicly admitted that his susceptibilities are tender, the players may be relied upon to see to it that nothing is said or done on the ball field that might offend this supersensitive spirit.

Lady Luck Answers Prayers of Ice Hockey Fandom.

Prayers of hockey fans for the injection of a little scoring into the games have been answered, not by the rule-makers, but by old lady luck. Last night the game here between the rangers and the Detroit Cougars looked like just another one of those scoreless ties until Barney Brophy, the Cougar forward, broke the monotony by scoring a lone but winning goal for the rangers in the Roy Riegels manner. In Chicago, Chuck Gardiner, the Blackhawks' goalie, scored a goal for the Pittsburgh Pirates in the same way, and what would otherwise have been a 1 to 0 victory for Chicago went down in the records as a 1 to 1 tie.

In neither case did the fans turn thumbs down on the hapless perpetrator of the error. Presumably they are so tired of these 0 to 0 and 1 to 0

Leonard Sees Schmeling as Champion

Retired Title Holder Says German Is Fine Prospect.

Reminiscent of Dempsey, But Fails to Keep Punching.

By BENNY LEONARD
(Retired Undefeated Lightweight Champion of the World).

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—For the first time in the history of boxing, so far as my memory goes, a German has an excellent chance to win the heavyweight championship of the world. The chap is Max Schmeling, who, though he has fought only a couple of fights here, already has the local promoters fighting over his contracts.

Much has been made of the fact that Schmeling fights like and looks like Jack Dempsey. I saw him in his battle with Joe Sekyra, and I must admit that he does fight a little bit like the man who won the championship from Jess Willard. Also, facially he does look a bit like Dempsey used to look before he underwent the nose-beautifying operation, and he has a sort of aggressiveness, but whether he is another Dempsey only time will tell.

There is one thing that he has in common with Dempsey today, and that is that he is at odds with his original manager. He is built a bit like Dempsey, he looks like the Manassa Mauler, but he doesn't fight exactly like him.

Jacobs, Sage of Fight Game, Guiding German's Career.

I saw Schmeling fight Joe Sekyra, one of the best of the heavyweights, but one of the dumbest. Sekyra, while he has boxing ability, a hard punch, and can fight, has the unhappy faculty of allowing the other fellow to make him fight the way his opponent elects to battle, which, of course, puts him at a great disadvantage.

Only the other day Schmeling went before the boxing commission or the State Athletic Commission, which governs the sport of boxing in New York, and announced that he had arranged everything satisfactorily with Herr Bulow, his German mentor, with whom he was having a bit of difficulty because he didn't know quite as much about the "racket" here as Schmeling thought he should know, but I have it on good authority that Joe Jacobs, who knows every strand of all the fistic ropes here, will be his real pilot from now on.

Will Be Next Heavy Champion. Leonard Goes on Record.

And so, because of al this, I want to go on record as predicting that this German Max Schmeling will be the next real heavyweight champion of the world.

It is true that he reminds one powerfully of the young Dempsey; it is true that he fights something like Jack used to, but it also is true that he has a lot to learn. This, I am firmly convinced, he will learn under Jacobs.

I watched Schmeling carefully in his

Georgetown to Hold Relay Try-Outs Today

Time trials to determine the personnel of the mile relay team which is to compete in the Brooklyn College games in Brooklyn Saturday night will be held by the Georgetown University quartermilers today on the Hilltop oval. Coach John D. O'Reilly will supervise the tests and name the winners of the coveted positions on the team.

Yesterday's bitter cold did not deter the Hoya thin clads in preparing for the coming big meet. O'Reilly devoted a half hour to perfecting their handling of the baton.

Carey Leaves for Miami To Help Stage Fight

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—William F. Carey, new power behind the Madison Square Garden throne, will leave for Miami Beach, Fla., tomorrow night to handle, with Jack Dempsey, the promotion of the Sharkey-Stribling bout there February 27. Lionel Levy, Garden architect, left for the South tonight to plan arrangements for the seating of 40,000 in the kennel club arena.

The departure of Carey and Levy opens the Southward march of the Garden specialists. Box office men, auditors and secretaries will follow almost daily for the next week. The fighters plan to start training in or near Miami Beach on February 1.

First orders for ringside tickets arrived at the Garden today and totaled 400 reservations after all the mail and telegrams had been opened. The largest order was for 30 ringside seats from Cleveland. The "house" will be scaled from $5 to $25.

FOUL THROW DECIDES.

St. Paul's Lutheran Basketers won over the Columbia Heights Five, 19 to 16, in an exciting game in the Central gymnasium. A foul toss by Loehler, the only free throw credited to the Lutherans, won the game in the closing minutes.

C. U. CUB FIVE WINS FROM BUSINESS

School Five Falters in Final Half and Bows, 49-38.

EDDIE KANE, hailed as a second Ray Foley, was too much for the Business High Quintet yesterday and proved the player to lead the Catholic University Freshmen in their 49-to-38 victory over the Stenographers in the Brookland gymnasium. Kane, who has averaged 15 points in every contest the Cardinal Yearlings have played this season, again was in a scoring mood and caged eight field goals and two foul tosses to lead all of the scorers in the totaling of 18 points.

And it was Kane's work that in reality set the Yearlings on the right track to victory. The Business Five played a stubborn game during the first half and gave the Yearlings an unusually close fight in holding them to only a 20-to-19 advantage by intermission time.

Kane's innings had their effect, however, in the final quarters with the result that the Stenographers slowly dropped behind to get practically out of the picture by the termination of play.

Clemons, O'Connor and Tibbetts also played exceptionally for the Yearlings, following closely the pace set by Kane. Clemons counted four times from the floor and once from the 15-foot mark for 9 points, while O'Connor hit the rims four times and Tibbetts three times for 8 and 6 points, respectively.

Lucas, Singman and Lewis were the Business luminaries, or rather the players to count consistently during the first half. All three totaled three points, with Lucas and Lewis caging three baskets each and Singman two baskets and two foul tosses.

Harvard Paper Lauds Owens After Debut as Hockey Pro

Special to The Washington Post.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 14.—An editorial in the Harvard Crimson today approved the decision of George Owens, former Crimson star, in joining the Boston Bruins, professional hockey league team.

Owens, one of Harvard's greatest athletes and an outstanding football, baseball and basket ball player at the Cambridge institution five years ago, startled the sports world in 1923 after completing his greatest season on the gridiron by declaring that he did not like football.

The Crimson's editorial reads, in part:

"With the appearance of George Owens, jr., beside Eddie Shore in the defense line of the Boston Bruins, a Harvard athlete has found a niche in the big-time circuits of professional sport for the first time since A. J. Conlon, of the class of 1922, stepped from Soldier Field to the shortstop position on the Braves. But Conlon hung his uniform in the Braves' field locker room before the ink was dry on his diploma, while Owens has been out of college sport for five years and has been back in competitive hockey only for the past two seasons.

"There will be some who will convict Owens of everything between the extremes of high treason and poor judgment in his desertion of the amateur game. But if he feels, as he seems to, that he missed something by staying out of professional hockey, who shall blame him if he loved not amateurism less, but hockey more? Harvard men will miss a gallant foe who played as hard a game lately against them on alumni teams, as with them before, and can appreciate the player who is good enough to merit such a promotion in midseason."

Sarazen's Biggest Birdie Is Killed by Automobile

Fort Myers, Fla., Jan. 14 (U.P.).—A collision between an automobile driven by Gene Sarazen and a huge buzzard occurred near here today, with serious consequences—for the buzzard.

The stocky little professional was driving here from Miami when the luckless bird, which had been sojourning in the road, attempted to take off for the upper reaches.

It was struck by the car, and a dead buzzard flew through the shattered windshield into Gene's lap.

The golf professional managed to keep control of his machine, and escaped injury.

Bucknell Pitching Ace To Join Cards in June

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Edward Hallicki, said to be Bucknell College's most outstanding ballplayer since the days of the late Christy Matthewson, is slated to join the St. Louis Cardinals in June, it was announced today by Branch Rickey, club vice president. Hallicki, a pitcher, also played the outfield in college ball.

Goslin's official record was .376 against left-hand pitchers and .380 against the rights. Manush, on the other hand, banged the ball at a .388 rating when batting against portsiders, but hit .374 at the right-hand offerings.

Babe Ruth was under .300 against left handers, the figure being .296. There were 15 games pitched by southpaws in which the Babe was unable to hit safely. Right handers were not so intricate, and he hit them for .331.

British-U. S. Army Polo Tourney Is Off for 1929

A proposed British-American army polo tournament for this year in this country has been deferred owing to the fact that the British war office feels that it would be impossible to spare the services of the officers who would represent the empire for the length of time that would be involved. This was announced yesterday by the War Department through Maj. Willis D. Crittenberger, of the army central polo committee.

Uzcudun Back in U. S. Ready to Fight Heeney

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, returned to New York from Panama today after defending his European championship against Jack Renault in Cali, Colombia. He said he was ready to fight Tom Heeney in the upper bracket of the current heavyweight elimination tournament as soon as the match could be arranged.

The bounding Basque picked young Stribling, the clouting Georgian, to defeat Jack Sharkey in the first of the elimination bouts the late Tex Rickard planned for this season. He has high hopes that Jack Dempsey will return to the ring and oppose him in a match for the heavyweight title Gene Tunney vacated.

ARMOUR IS 2D DESPITE 7 ON 18TH

Capital Pro Beats Out Diegel in 1-Hole Finish of $10,000 Open.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Final echoes of the $10,000 Los Angeles open reverberating through Santa Monica Canyon today when a dozen golfers finished rounds they had failed to complete Sunday because of darkness carried the faltering notes to Tommy Armour's clubs.

The slender Washington, D. C., professional, who had paced the field with phenomenal play through the first two rounds, only to falter in the final 36-hole drive, in the brief play today almost blasted himself out of second place, Armour had but one hole to play, having "picked up" Sunday night on the seventeenth. His play on that last hole was heartbreaking, for he needed seven strokes, three over par, to hole out. However, he managed to take second place and money, $1,750, with a 72-hole aggregate of 291, six more than MacDonald Smith, the winner.

Armour beat out Leo Diegel, of the Agua Caliente Country Club in Mexico and national professional champion, by a single stroke, Diegel's aggregate of 292 gave him third place and $850. Horton Smith, 21-year-old Joplin, Mo., pro, and George Von Elm, blonde amateur from Detroit, deadlocked at 294.

Smith romped off with fourth-place money, $600, while Von Elm, who "picked up" late yesterday on the seventh, holed out in par today for the low gross amateur trophy.

Tomorrow morning the same galaxy of stars who battled through the Los Angeles tournament will swing into action on the municipal course at Pasadena, Calif., in a $4,000 open. After the two-day, 54-hole event is completed the golfing army will entrain for Texas, there to battle in two "big money" events.

Pilots to Try Veterans at New Posts

Half Dozen Shortstops and Third Basemen Will Change.

Doubt as to Efficacy of Moves Cast by McGraw, Bush.

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Half a dozen league infielders will waste many steps next summer looking for their gloves. From force of habit they will walk to a spot dedicated as a deposit place for a shortstop's mitt when they should go to the third base glove reservation or the other way around.

In baseball spring training camps now only a few weeks away, men who have long been stars under the big top of baseball will be rookies again, for they will have to learn new positions.

No season in years has brought such a readjustment of infielders. In a highly specialized baseball age it is not so simple to tell a third baseman, "You play short" or nonchalantly suggest to a shortstop, "Move over to third."

The shortstops who must learn to play third and the third basemen who will be called on to master the tricks of shortstopping will have no time to loaf when the clarion call to baseball arms is sounded next month.

McGraw Says 2 Positions Are Widely Different.

John J. McGraw, a great infielder in his day, and the best player for his age in the major leagues today, was called on to give some expert testimony.

"If a man is a good shortstop can it be taken for granted that he would be a good third baseman as well?" the manager of the Giants was asked in a general baseball discussion before he sailed away to Cuba.

The man who played third base for the old Orioles was quick with his reply. It was "No."

"The two positions, as a matter of fact, are widely different," he said.

"Both players, of course, field a lot of ground balls and throw the ball to first or one of the other bases after getting possession of the ball, but there is much more to major league infielding than that.

"A third baseman for instance must be adept at coming in fast on slow-hit balls and taking them with out hand for the snap throw to first. The shortstop does not have this problem, and then, too, the shortstop has some troubles the third baseman does not face. As a general thing, without any reference to any particular case, I would say that if a man can not play short he can not play third."

Donie Bush, the Pirate's manager, who was one of the game's great shortstops, agrees with the Giant pilot in the main, adding a word for the difficulty of playing midway between the second and third bases.

1929 Changes Involve Men Already Certified Stars.

"A man who has failed to measure up at third base will not find any bed of roses by moving to short," said Manager Bush in a fanning bee with some fellow baseball men at the National League meeting.

Both managers, McGraw and Bush, however, were discussing untried ball players. The changes in position about to be made in the American and National Leagues, if midwinter tales are to be accepted, are by established stars who probably could play any position if they set their respective minds and muscles seriously to the task.

The New York Yankees plan to move Mark Koenig from short to third. Washington may reverse the process, with Ossie Bluege going from third to short. The Pirates will have Pie Traynor to replace Glenn Wright at short if a likely third baseman is uncovered and Dave Bancroft may go to third for Brooklyn, leaving Wright in undisputed possession of short.

Harris May Have to Play Third Base at Detroit.

Manager Stanley Harris, a star second sacker for Washington, may have to play third for Detroit, for he has a great second sacker in Gehringer. The Cleveland Indians apparently are committed to a policy of transferring

REIGH COUNT PICKS UP NEEDED WEIGHT IN ENGLAND

U.S. Race Star Gains 200 Pounds

Development Expected to Benefit Horse for Hard Tests.

Will Run 2 or 3 Times Before Stake Races Abroad.

By GEORGE DALEY.

REIGH Count, now in England with the Ascot Gold Cup as the big objective of this sporting venture, has gained on an average twelve pounds a week since letting down following his victory in the Jockey Club Gold Cup last September. That means that he has put on around 300 pounds.

Bert Mitchell, his trainer, so reported in a letter received by John D. Hertz. He even took on weight in crossing the Atlantic and continued to gain on arrival, filling out behind in particular, where most needed.

"It's the best possible news," said Mr. Hertz yesterday, just before taking the train for his winter home at Miami. "Our only worry last winter was his failure to grow and fill out between the ages of two and three. You see he raced into November as a 2 year-old and held to his tenseness for three months.

"He did take on a little weight after being put in training for the Kentucky Derby, but in a way his growth was arrested and for that reason it is satisfying that he now is filling out and coming to his full development before meeting the most exacting test in his career abroad."

Horse Not Likely to Compete In Lincolnshire Handicap.

When asked if Mitchell had settled about starting him in the Lincolnshire Handicap next March, for which he has just been assigned top weight with Sol Joel's Fohanaun at 128 pounds each, Mr. Hertz said: "Mitchell did not advise us on that score, but I doubt it. Reigh Count, however, is the type of horse which thrives on racing, and in all probability he will race two or three times before his engagements in the Coronation Cup at Epsom early in June and the Ascot Gold Cup, his big shot, late in June. We are planning to see every race he runs abroad, whether an overnight event or a stake, and will sail from here ten days or two weeks before his first start, whenever that may be. Michell is to let us know."

The racing stable of Mrs. Hertz in this country will be limited to eight or nine horses, since that fire at the breeding farm which cost the lives of ten well-bred yearlings. These will include Nettie Stone, which was purchased from J. E. Madden for $25,000; Shepherdess, bought from Samuel Ross, and four or five 2-year-olds, one of which, according to Mr. Hertz, is a most promising colt of probable stake quality.

With Michell abroad, Carl Baird will train the home division until the former's return in July. He will go slowly, and most of the 2-year-olds will be reserved for a fall campaign. Nettie Stone, if she trains on, will be pointed for some of the 3-year-old filly stakes like the Latonia Oaks and possibly the Coaching Club American Oaks.

If Reigh Count wins the Ascot Gold Cup he will be brought back to this country and retired to the stud. It will be his last race. If he is beaten, there is a bare chance that he will be sent after the Jockey Club Gold Cup at Belmont Park in September for the second year in succession. In any case, he will not be raced as a 5-year-old.

Anita Peabody's Racing Days Are Over, Hertz Declares.

Mr. Hertz also declared definitely that the racing days of Anita Peabody, winner of the Futurity in 1927, were over. She will be bred to Sir Galahad next spring. This filly was foaled at Mr. Hertz's farm at Gary, Ill., and sent to the sales ring at Saratoga Springs, but bid in at the insistence of his wife. It turned out to be a lucky stroke. Anita Peabody gave them many a thrill in speaking of her yesterday, Mr. Hertz said.

"She has the most marked individuality I have ever seen. She is like an old cow or a playful kitten, depending on her mood, with those she knows, but a regular vixen with strangers. She would murder a man who patted her on the side. We are hoping that some son or daughter will inherit her high speed and wonderful courage."

Mr. Hertz stopped over in New York on his way to Florida to consult with J. E. Widener and other members of the Jockey Club about plans he is laying out for what he calls a noncommercial meeting at Arlington Park, near Chicago, next summer. He aims to make it the Belmont Park of the Middle West.

"We are planning to offer at least one stake," he said, "that will carry more added money than any other in the United States."

That would mean close to $60,000. The Preakness Stakes at Pimlico and the Kentucky Derby at Louisville now have $50,000 in added money. He does not aim to compete with the Cofroth Handicap, run at Tia Juana, Mexico, in March, to which $100,000 will be added this year.

The stable destroyed by fire at the Hertz breeding farm has been rebuilt with fireproof doors, a fireproof compartment and no place for the storage of hay and straw.

Mr. Hertz will travel by train to Jacksonville and then fly the rest of the way to Miami in his own airplane.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT A. COLLYER.

LANE ALLEN. On the chin strap, bo, and don't let anyone tout you off. Word comes to me via the grapevine route that the family jewels are at stake and you know what that means. This trick goes in the third race at the Fair Grounds. HERENDEEN and HOWARD LEE are the best of the others in the order named.

The lads with the split second watches slip me ROGUE'S GOLD as a real sleeper in the opening spasm. Worth a thousand or so more than anything else entered in the race. HAM and HARPOON for what is left.

Phil Reuter is ready to shoot the works with CAPT GEORGE FOSTER in the second. TRACTOR and PAT CALHOUN also figure close up.

E. R. Bradley's BURNING SUN appears to be a standout in the fourth. "About the best 3-year-old here," is the comment from the chief clocker.

If the mud holds out, MARLBORO will be hard to beat in the fifth. TIFFIN is the outsider likely to spill the beans.

GRAND DAD was the medium of an overnight plunge in the sixth. This good mudder was unlucky to lose his last race.

HOROLOGE is the sweet patootie in the seventh. A large commission was placed in Baltimore last Saturday.

TREACLE is the hot one from the boys at Havana. Odom has taken charge of the Gerry Stable and they say this filly can't miss.

A commission also arrived here for YACHTSMAN in fifth.

The Coburn-Dempsey confederacy is planning to put over a double with OLD KICKAPOO in the seventh and ROYAL MATE in the eighth race at Tia Juana. Don't let them get away from you.

MANOR CLUB ON SOUND BASIS

Had Fine Year, Reports at Annual Meeting Show.

THE near-zero temperature did not chill the enthusiasm of the golfing members of the Manor Club when they met last night in annual meeting at the clubhouse. The reports of the officers and of the various committee chairmen were so optimistic concerning the record of the club during the past year and the developments promised for the future that all were greeted with applause.

Vice President Walter Wyatt presided and gave a most encouraging presentation of the condition of the club. He also announced that as the result of a recent election, the following were chosen as members of the board of governors: Frank J. Ehlers, Robert Peter, jr., D. L. Thomson, W. Preston Gibson, William E. Richardson, Dwight N. Burnham and Clinton M. Hester.

The finances of the club were shown to be most satisfactory, according to the report submitted by Treasurer Burnham. He stated that the receipts, which in 1925 were only $45,000, had risen in 1928 to the unprecedented total of $108,000, due to the increase in membership and to the generous patronage in the clubhouse since the installation of substantial improvements.

The membership committee reported that the club has nearly reached the limit of 400 prescribed by the constitution.

The report of the greens committee was also received with applause. It gave in detail the improvements which had been made upon the course during the past year, including the planting of a bent grass nursery containing 9,000 square feet of sod and the construction of 9 new holes, giving the club 27 holes in all. It was stated that the fairways had improved to the extent of allowing summer rules to be played this year. A number of additional improvements, including new traps and tees and the construction of a water tank in order that the entire 27 holes could be simultaneously watered, were recommended. The work of the past year was done most economically, the entire cost being less than $12,000.

Fair Grounds Feature To Duelist by a Neck

Fair Grounds, New Orleans, La., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Duelist scored a neck victory over E. K. Bryson's Afterglow in the Esplanade Purse, a mile and a sixteenth race, today. Golden Mac was third. Moon, who rode Afterglow, put up a very poor ride. He held Afterglow in restraint for six furlongs and kept the gelding in the deep going for the entire trip.

When he cut loose with him, Afterglow hung badly and Duelist, who had been kept out in the best going, came fast and won by a neck. Afterglow took the place by four lengths from Golden Mac.

Woodward Surprises St. Alban's Tossers

Woodward School Basketers pulled the unexpected yesterday and downed the St. Alban's Five, 31 to 20, at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The latter was far from right and experienced a miserable first half, trailing 13 to 2 at that time. A basket by Crouch gave the Saints their 2 points.

St. Alban's made a spurt after the intermission and got into scoring momentum but the early Woodward lead proved too great to overcome. Crouch jumped into the spotlight by totaling 11 points for his team and Chesley 7, but these proved insufficient as the final score indicates.

Despard and Snead were the big guns for Woodward, the former totaling 12 points and the latter 13. Groff and Parker also played well.

Grand Stand Coaches Meet to Plan Banquet

A meeting to work out details and name a definite date for its banquet the latter part of this month will be held today by the Washington Grand Stand Coaches Association at the Bannockburn Club, starting at 12:30 o'clock.

While January 26 is the date originally proposed, it will be changed if it conflicts with the date of various sports events of the local schools and colleges, coaches of which are to be the honored guests at the banquet. The association, composed of local sports lovers and close followers of the activities of the Washington mentors, plans to make the banqu

NEW MARYLAND LINE-UP MEETS VIRGINIA FIVE TODAY

Hetzel Placed At Center to Aid Speed

Cavaliers in Improved Form; Beat Duke and Hopkins.

COACH BURTON SHIPLEY yesterday tuned up his Maryland Varsity Basket Ball Team for the game with Virginia at Charlottesville tonight. It will be the first Southern Conference tilt of the season for the Old Liners, and the only game of the day for the colleges of the Capital group.

A close contest is anticipated tonight, judging from past performances of both clubs. There is potential power in the Maryland machine, which as yet has not flashed the attack expected of it, while Virginia looks strong now after having handily defeated Duke by about the same margin as in Georgetown's victory over the Blue Devil Five. Virginia also has beaten Johns Hopkins, but, like Maryland, lost to Randolph-Macon.

Radice and Evans, forwards; Hetzel or Madigan, center, and Dean and Hesgy, guards. These six are the letter men left from last season.

Allen to Replace Hetzel at Center to Inject Speed.

Allen, who has been performing at center, has slowed up the team by his lack of speed and it may be that Hetzel will be used all through the game in order to get a definite line on his playing. Heretofore he has been utilized only as a reserve. He is faster than either Allen or Madigan.

There is plenty of experienced material on the Old Line squad, but the team has been held back by the failure at center and the general lack of speed. However, the mediocre work at center has been the main trouble.

Cohan, flashy little forward, who is back with the squad after a siege of the grip, is certain to see some action against the Cavaliers, as is Gaylor, if he recovers from a bad cold.

Maryland Freshmen Encounter Central at College Park.

It is noteworthy that the two teams Maryland will meet this week—Virginia and Hopkins—fought a great battle at Charlottesville last Saturday, the Cavaliers winning 23 to 21 on a basket shot in the last minute of play. Hopkins will invade College Park Friday night.

Maryland Freshman, who have won easily over Baltimore Poly and Western, will meet Central at College Park this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Berger, former Tech star, and regular center, who has been ill, hardly will be well enough to perform, and Coach Jack Faber plans to start his team as he has in the past two contests. The line-up was Chalmers and Ronkin, forwards; Rooney, center, and May and Wilson, guards.

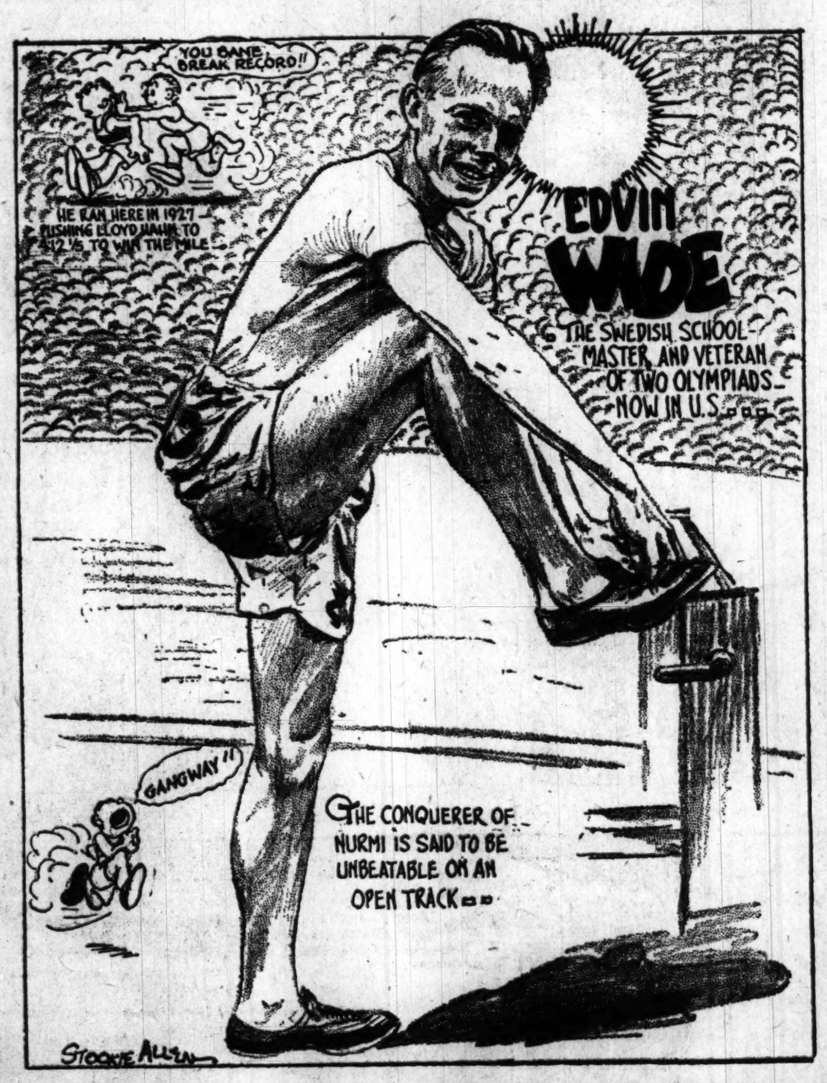
Wide's Visit to America Indicates Swedes Are Taking 1932 Olympic Games Seriously



By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor).

A SOMEWHAT humorous aftermath to the 1928 Olympic games occurs in connection with the current visit to this country of Edvin Wide, Sweden's great distance runner.

Wide called upon Dan Ferriss, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, the other day and presented a letter from the "Svenska Idrottsforbundet" which stated among other things that the athlete, while in Los Angeles, would look for a good hotel for the Swedish team which will come over for the Olympic games in 1932.

This might seem the extreme of foresight, but the Swedish A. A. U. recalls what happened at Amsterdam last summer where overcrowding was prevalent, and is taking no chances on not obtaining sufficient hotel accommodations in the city which will stage the Tenth Olympiad three years from now. Many athletes at Amsterdam suffered from lack of adequate accommodations, and the Swedes have no desire to hamper their 1932 representatives.

Wide's visit is evidence that Sweden looks forward intently to the Tenth Olympiad and intends to send a strong team. The Swedish athletes did well last summer at Amsterdam, although their efforts inevitably were overshadowed by those of the Americans, Finns and British. Wide will study climatic conditions in California, and report back to his athletic authorities, who have obtained for him a six months leave of absence from his duties as a schoolmaster in order that he might make the trip.

Of greater interest to American track and field fans, naturally, is the prospect of Wide running against Nurmi and some American distance stars in the Millrose games next month. The Swedish runner said he would not be ready for competition for four or five weeks, but presented credentials entitling him to compete when he pleased. Incidentally, Wide also will study education in the United States.

In order to avoid complications such as beset other foreign athletes who came to this country, Wide has made application for registration in the A. A. U. and while competing he will be subject to the rules of that body.

The possibility of a meeting between Wide and Nurmi recalls the famous dual the Swedish schoolmaster fought with Lloyd Hahn over the boards in Madison Square Garden back in 1927. Wide was beaten by a stride at the mile, but forced the Nebraskan to within one-fifth of a second of the world's indoor record, and the race is one of the most memorable in the history of indoor track and field competition. The Swede has victory over Nurmi to his credit, but has not been in a class with the mighty Paavo over any extended period of time. The latter is training rigorously for an attempt upon a number of distance records.

Wide Done as Miler, He Tells G. U. Friend

After completing a jog over the cross-country course at Georgetown University yesterday, Edvin Wide, visiting Swedish distance running star, told Eric Kjellstrom, Hilltop hurdler and close friend, that he probably would never run the mile again, but instead would concentrate his efforts on distances starting with two miles. During his visit to America in 1927 Wide recorded several exceptionally fast mile runs, once negotiating the distance in 4:12 4-5.

Wide said his first performance of his current tour would be probably on February 7 in the Newark A. C. games, and that he also would compete in the Millrose A. A. games in New York on February 9. The distance he will attempt in these meets will be two miles or more, he said. He expressed the feeling that the strain of undertaking the mile would be too great for him.

G. W. TO TRY TO THWART BURGESS

Hope for Victory Over American Tomorrow Lies in Deep Plan.

RUMOR has it that the impending clash between the basket ball teams of George Washington and American U., which is due to grace the boards at the H street gymnasium tomorrow night, finds Coach "Maud" Crum's athletes evincing a feeling in regard to the outcome, which is notably contrasted to the Colonials' emotions when they met the Eagles last fall in football.

Then, it will be remembered, the Colonials feared the boys out Massachusetts way, but, as things turned out, their fears were groundless, for they won the game rather handily.

By contrast, the Colonials look forward to tomorrow night's tussle with confidence, despite the knowledge that the Eagles hold a big edge over them in experience. The George Washington Quintet will be playing its first game, yet it anticipates victory over a club that has won three of its first four starts.

Deep-Laid Scheme to Stop Burgess Is Concocted.

There must be a reasonable explanation to this strange turn of affairs, according to those in the know, and it has been suggested that the Colonials have concocted a scheme whereby the wings of the high-flying Eagles will be clipped.

The plan, it is said, involves the rather perplexing problem of stopping Forrest Burgess, American's "Two-Gun Rip" on the offense. Just what the Colonials have devised as an effective means of accomplishing this is not, however, the property of the informative scouts.

Stopping Burgess is a job that no team has capably filled so far this season. The keen-eyed forward, continuing the reign of terror he exercised over local scholastic court ranks last year, has accumulated a total of 49 points in four games, an average better than 12 points per game. Thus it seems that the best way to defeat the Eagles is to effectually smother young Burgess.

Colonials Watched American Win From Elizabethtown.

The Colonials may have found food for thought when they watched the Eagles play Elizabethtown last week. Upon that occasion Burgess was in rare form and caged six field goals and a brace of fouls, though he did not play throughout. The failure of Elizabethtown may have offered valuable hints to George Washington as to how the Methodist star could be held down.

The wiseacres say the Colonials did learn something about Burgess, and that how well they learned it will be revealed tomorrow night. At any rate, what they say is reasonable and it offers an excuse for the Colonials' confidence, which amounts to considerably more than that of their natural make-up.

Mickey Kelliher Loses Job at Chambersburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 14.—Maurice (Mickey) Kelliher, who during the two years he managed the Chambersburg Club, of the Blue Ridge League, won a pennant and a second-place berth, has found his job gone as the result of the New York Yankees purchasing the Chambersburg franchise and naming Tom Clark, Jersey City coach, as Maroon manager.

Kelliher is a product of the lots of Washington, and has seen service in about a dozen leagues. He was the only manager in the Ridge loop in 1927 to be reengaged for the 1928 campaign. In addition to giving Chambersburg a winning club, something it had not enjoyed since 1916, Kelliher sold several players to higher-up leagues.

It is not known whether Kelliher will be retained as a player by the Yankees. If not it is a good bet that several other clubs in the league will be hot after his services. In addition to being an efficient manager, the big Irishman is an excellent first sacker and a .350 hitter.

Prep School Court League Gets Under Way Tomorrow

PREP SCHOOL basket ball will come in for an unusual share of attention tomorrow with the opening of the Prep School League at the Boys' Club. The initial clash will bring Gonzaga and St. John's together beginning at 3:15 p. m. The formation of this circuit was suggested by Orrel Mitchell, prominent in District sports, with a view toward bringing the prep schools into closer contact with each other.

Although only three schools—Gonzaga, St. John's and Devitt—were able to so arrange their schedules that they could join in the court league, the other schools in the group, namely, Emerson, Georgetown Prep, St. Albans, and possibly Benjamin Franklin and Woodward, hope to join the movement in baseball and football.

Quite unlike that of the high schools, which not only have more members from which to draw but are backed by years of traditional rivalry, tomorrow's prep school inaugural will be modest in comparison. All things start small in the beginning, however, and those who have joined the new movement are hopeful that it will gain momentum in favor from year to year and, in time, will rank with the scholastic title set.

In the past, there has been some doubt as to the scholastic champion of the District in the various sports, with both the winners of the high school series and the outstanding Prep school team claiming the honor. The idea of the movement to organize the prep leagues is to decide a winner in each class which will be recognized by the high school authorities and these two champions can then meet in a post-series in each branch of sport.

With the Fair Athletes

THE Baptists Young Peoples Union Girls' Basket Ball League opened last night at the Wilson Normal School gymnasium with an astounding upset in the defeat of the West Washington sextet by the First Baptist Team, 22 to 16. The game marked the first loss sustained by a West Washington team in five seasons of play in the league. In another league game, the Second Baptists sextet decisively defeated the Fountain Memorial Team by a 57-to-24 score.

The play of the West Washington Team was a pleasing revelation to its followers which had regarded First Baptist as the favorites. Coach Lucas' sextet displayed a speedy and coordinated passing attack with Catherine Edwards and Anna Wilner as the offensive stars. These two players disported themeselves at forward in effective fashion as their five field goals each attest. West Washington displayed its superiority over the defending champions at the start and at the end of the first half was in the lead, 15 to 8. Miss Rowley was the outstanding player of the champions.

The play of Loveye Atkins, former playground tennis champion of the city, featured the victory of Second Baptist over Fountain Memorial. Miss Atkins, shifted to forward after playing center, accounted for 17 field goals for the winners to defeat Fountain almost single handed. Gladys Schelin endeavored vainly to keep Fountain in the running with twelve field goals.

A third game scheduled for last night was forfeited to Bethany when the Fifth Baptist Team failed to put in an appearance for the contest.

Benjamin Franklin Five Loses to Soldiers, 45-23

The Benjamin Franklin Quintet fell before the Tank Corps School Five here this afternoon, 45 to 23, in a well played encounter. The Soldiers led throughout, getting off to a good start at the outset and leading 19 to 10 at the half.

Strapp and Miller were the players who ruined the Benjamin Franklin cause, the sturdy performers doing the bulk of the scoring for their Soldier team.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE ALCOHOL ROUTE TO PELLAGRA.

ONE of the important contributing causes of pellagra is alcoholism. Dr. S. E. Sweitzer reports a very striking outbreak of the former disorder occurring in Minneapolis. He saw seven cases within a few weeks of each other. As pellagra is very rare in Minnesota, he failed to recognize the disease when it first appeared. He called it dermatitis or inflammation of the skin, the result of occupation. Then he found that his patient had diarrhea and a sore tongue, as well as eczema, and he change his diagnosis to pellagra. Then the other cases began to appear.

Six of them came from the same neighborhood in the city and knew each other well. This seemed strange since pellagra is not a contagious disease, and the six men, while friends, did not eat at the same table. Further inquiry developed the fact that they got their liquor at the same place, though they had different eating houses. They were accustomed to drinking denatured alcohol which they got from a certain hardware store. They had found that it was possible to get drunk for 20 cents by sticking to this hardware store decoction. One of them admitted that he occasionally violated the rules and drank "canned heat." The seventh patient was a sot. The report says he had been drunk all his life, which may have been an excusable exaggeration. At any rate, there was ground enough for tying his pellagra up with alcoholism.

This relationship between the two diseases has been known to a few physicians for several years. Some attribute the constitutional disease, pellagra, to the direct effect of the alcohol, while others say it is a result of digestive disorders caused by strong drink.

WHAT IS SINUS TROUBLE?

Mrs. E. M. C. writes: 1. What is sinus trouble?

2. Is it related to asthma?

3. Is there a headache accompanying sinus trouble?

4. Is a polypus serious?

5. What is the difference between asthma and bronchitis?

6. Is asthma more prevalent in the New England States than elsewhere in this country?

7. I understand that handling brass telephone plugs is somewhat dangerous. Irritation of the skin is caused when the hands touch the face, and a rash of little pimples appears. What are the dangers of the brass?

REPLY.

1. Infection of one of the small chambers which lie near the nose and open into that organ. The old name for sinus trouble and many other conditions was catarrh.

2. In some instances asthma results from an infected sinus.

3. Yes, frequently.

4. No. When pus drains into the nose from an infected sinus for a long time polyps are likely to form. When polyps form, that fact indicates that the sinus infection has been long neglected. The neglect should not continue.

5. Bronchitis is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes. In asthma there is a spasmodic condition of the breathing apparatus which interferes with breathing. Many cases of chronic bronchitis eventually develop asthma.

6. I don't think so.

7. I can understand how the dust of copper and other metals could cause an occupational dermatitis or eczema in a person whose skin is susceptible. This is about the only danger.

RUSSIAN OIL.

Mrs. J. B. writes: 1. What effect has Russian oil on the system?

2. I have just reduced 30 pounds and I am told that this oil on salads and saccharin in coffee are not fattening. Is this true?

REPLY.

1. None. It is not absorbed.
2. Yes.

ON RUBBER DRAWERS.

Mrs. J. T. B. writes: Is it detrimental to a baby's health and welfare to constantly wear rubber drawers over the diapers?

REPLY.

Slightly. They prevent needed ventilation. However, the chance of harm is not very great. The ordinary diaper is not a paragon of perfection.

TEMPERATURE TOO HIGH.

R. H. S. writes: Referring to the regulation requiring a temperature of 68 degrees in apartment buildings during the day, can you inform me as to the injury to health of adults as well as children when subjected to temperatures from 75 to 85 degrees?

REPLY.

Prolonged exposure to such temperatures disturbe the balance of the splanchnic circulation, and in this way causes infections of the respiratory and digestive organs.

WATERY STOOLS IN BABY.

Mrs. S. T. writes: What is the cause of frequent and watery stools with a strong odor in a bottle-fed baby of 3 months? What is a remedy?

REPLY.

The baby is not digesting his food. No food should be given for a day or two. Water is allowed. Have a physician advise the next step to take.

If this condition is neglected, diarrhea will result.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN

ONE of the world's most famous mathematicians of either sex, Sophie Kovalevsky, was born in Russia, this day, 1850. Fired by the current zeal for learning, she left Russia, where the schools were closed to women, and went to Germany.

One of her most remarkable works, offered for her degree, was on the theory of partial differential equations. Another was an explanation of La Place's mathematical theory of the form of Saturn's rings. She became full professor of mathematics at the University of Stockholm. In 1888 she was awarded double the amount of the Prix Bordin for her work on the problem "to perfect in one important point the theory of the movement of a solid body around an immovable point." She died in 1891.

Other noted women born this day include Abby Kelley, reformer, 1811, who was the first woman to address an audience on abolition; Constance F. Runcie, composer of sacred music, 1836; Sarah Doudney, English novelist, 1843; and Frances L. Mace, American poet, 1836.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The Birth of Greatness.

"They shall not know Him as a child,"
The Good Lord said,
"He shall be reared near forests wild
His home, a shed.
But I shall have Him in my care
And naught shall harm Him, playing there.

"They shall not find Him in His youth
The great and proud
Shall look on Him as one uncouth
And of the crowd.
Among them He shall come and go
And no one there His worth shall know.

"But I shall hold Him safe and sure
For days to be,
The hardships which He must endure
The world shall see,
But not the purpose or the plan
Which I have formed to make the man.

"In time, when danger strikes the land,
The man shall rise
Against the foes of truth to stand,
Calm, strong and wise,
And all shall recognise Him then,
One great soul in a world of men."

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Plans of the Newton Steel Co. of Newton Falls, Ohio., which is acquiring land in the Detroit district, are reported to have been approved by officials of General Motors and Fisher Body, its chief customers.

James K. Armsby, chairman of the California Packing Corp., arriving from the west, said 1929 prospects for his company will be as good if not better than the current fiscal year, which he described as satisfactory.

Tire production in the first 11 months of 1928 was 54,730,711 against 45,582,-050 in the same 1927 period, a gain of 20 per cent, the Rubber Association of America reports. Shipments increased 16 per cent from 45,455,087 to 52,760,-641.

OCTOBER IS PEAK MONTH

(World News Service.)

Exports of American merchandise exceeded $5,000,000,000 in 1928 for the first time and this country had a favorable trade balance of $1,039,202,000 last year, as compared with $680,633,000 in 1927, according to preliminary figures made public by the Department of Commerce yesterday.

The department also reported that for 1928 the exports of gold amounted to $391,872,000 more than the imports, as compared to an excess in the imports of $6,080,000 in 1927. Exports of silver for 1928 exceeded the imports by $19,265,000.

Exports Exceeded Imports.

For the twelve months of last year, the United States sent merchandise valued at $5,129,132,000 to all parts of the world and in turn imported merchandise with a total value of $4,089,930,000.

October was the peak month in the export of merchandise. The total value for the month was $550,894,000; while it was also the peak month in 1928 for imports, with a total of $355,359,000 worth of goods being received in this country.

The figures announced yesterday reflect in a striking way the steadily growing value of the American foreign trade and the trend of exports for the past six years has been decidely upward, with fluctuations in the total value of merchandise imported during the same period.

Exports for 1927 amounted to $4,865,375,000, as compared to imports valued at $4,184,742,000. In 1926 the former amounted to $4,808,660,000 and the latter $4,430,888,000. For 1925, exports totaled $4,909,848,000 and imports amounted to $4,226,589,000.

Trio Electrocuted For Killing of Five

Bellefonte, Pa., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Three men whose crimes brought death to five persons paid with their lives in the electric chair at Rockview Penitentiary today. They were Charles F. Mellor and Benjamin Demarowski, of Philadelphia, and Tony Luciti, of Washington County.

All three met death calmly.

The triple execution began with Luciti, who was convicted with Roy Wenrich of shooting Policemen Louis O. Knapp and Paul B. Fox in February, 1928, when caught running cargoes of moonshine liquor into the coal mining camps of Washington County. Wenrich turned State's evidence and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Mellor shot and killed Max T. Harrison, assistant manager of the Cross Keys Theater, Philadelphia, in an attempted holdup on March 23, 1928. Another shot fatally wounded a bystander, Martha Yetter. 17. Orville J. Barclay, Mellor's accomplice, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Demarowski, 32, shot and killed his wife, Catherine, 42, on April 18, 1928.

Court Orders Lake Diversion Reduced

Hughes Will Decide Method of Restoring Level of Water Six Inches.

(Associated Press.)

Chicago's diversion of water from Lake Michigan was held by the Supreme Court yesterday to have been lawfully authorized by the Secretary of War, but because the lake levels had been lowered 6 inches Chief Justice Taft ruled that the withdrawals should be reduced as rapidly as practicable.

The court announced that Charles E. Hughes, who as a special master heard testimony in the case, would be appointed to determine through experts just how rapidly the diversion could be safely decreased.

In deciding the case, which has been in controversy for 10 years and on which millions of words of testimony has been taken, the court acted without a dissenting opinion. It ruled that the permit granted the city by the Secretary of War was valid because the methods used in the disposition of sewage made the diversion necessary in the interest of navigation in Chicago Harbor and the lower end of Lake Michigan.

Weld Again Named To Head Chamber

Ivan C. Weld was reelected president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce last night, with his entire staff of assistants, at the annual meeting held in the main ballroom of the Willard Hotel. Charles W. Darr was renamed first vice president, and Rudolph Jose was reelected as second vice president.

National representation for the District of Columbia, a change in the fiscal relations between the Federal and District governments, and an airport for Washington were other matters discussed. All were strongly indorsed by the members of the chamber.

Principal speakers of the evening were Representative James T. Beck, of Ohio, and Ralph S. Westing, of Pitcairn Aviation. Representative Beck spoke in favor of national representation, and Westing pointed to the need of an adequate airport for the city. Another resolution expresed thanks to the fire departments of Baltimore and suburban towns for their assistance during the recent F street fire.

Evidence of Plot By Pine Missing

(Associated Press.)

Charles H. Burke, commissioner of Indian affairs, before the Senate Indian affairs committee testified under questioning yesterday that he had "no direct evidence" to support his charge that Senator Pine (Republican), Oklahoma, was "conspiring to destroy him and the Indian service."

Burke last week had told the committee that the senator, together with B. M. Parmenter, Assistant Attorney General Charles B. Selby, special assistant attorney general in Oklahoma, and John Collier, secretary of the American Indian Defense Society, had fostered the alleged conspiracy. He was asked yesterday to appear before the committee to prove the charge.

Under questioning by Senator Wheeler, of Montana, a Democratic member of the committee, Burke, however, said he had no direct evidence on the conspiracy, nor did he have any direct evidence to show that Senator Pine, who is a Republican on the committee, had sought his indictment by an Oklahoma grand jury.

Former State Senator, Stoll, Ill, Kills Self

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 14 (A.P.).—John Will Stoll, 64, president of the First and City National Bank, and a former State senator, killed himself today in the kitchen of his residence on West Third street.

Mr. Stoll shot himself twice in the head with an automatic pistol. He had been dead some time when servants entered the kitchen at 8:45 o'clock this morning. His health was said to have been the sole reason for his act.

Cardinal Enrico Gasparri Stricken.

Rome, Jan. 14 (A.P.).—Cardinal Enrico Gasparri, nephew of Cardinal Gasparri, the papal secretary of state, has been stricken with pneumonia. The cardinal insisted on officiating at the marriage of a relative in the Pauline Chapel at the Vatican, but was obliged to desist when a high fever developed. His physicians, while admitted that his condition is grave, say that no particular apprehension should be felt.

Fear Felt for Boys Missing With Auto

Father Owning Car Worried at Prospect of Their Exposure to Cold.

George A. Shepp, 457 Delafield place northwest, last night reported to police that his son, George Richard Shepp, 17, had taken the family automobile and with a friend, said to be Bernard Dick, 17, 807 Varnum street northwest, was on the way to Toronto, Canada.

Fearful that they would be exposed to the severe cold, as they took little money and no extra clothing, Shepp asked police here to notify police in cities between Washington and Canada to stop them.

The boys left Washington Sunday Richard had taken his father's car, presumably to visit Bernard. He did not return, his father said, and both boys were last seen in Harpers Ferry, where young Dick has some relatives. He also has relatives in Toronto.

RIGGS BANK SURPLUS PUT AT $3,000,000

Undivided Profits of $250,000 Are Added to Sum by Directors.

O. L. MILLS TO SPEAK

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Transferring $250,000 from undivided profits to surplus, the board of directors of the Riggs National Bank yesterday increased its surplus account to $3,000,000, a sum equal to the new capital structure created when the bank's merger with Farmers & Mechanics was effected, according to an announcement last night by President Robert V Fleming.

This is the fourth consecutive year the Riggs National Bank has transferred $250,000 from undivided profits to surplus account, and the fifth such transfer since the change in its capital on October 15, 1925, incident to the establishment of its branches.

At that time the capital was increased from $1,000,000 to $2,500,000 by a stock dividend of $1,000,000, and the sale of 5,000 shares of additional stock at par. With a capital of $2,500,000; a surplus of $1,000,000, and undivided profits of roundly $590,000, the institution at that time had total capital funds of $4,090,000.

In connection with the recent consolidation of the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank with Riggs and the sale of 3,500 shares of stock at $250 a share, the capital stock last month was increased from $2,500,000 to its present capital of $3,000,000; and the surplus account from $2,000,000 to $2,750,000.

By the action of the board of directors yesterday, the surplus has now been increased to $3,000,000, giving the bank total capital funds at the present time of $6,540,000, or an increase over October 15, 1923, of $2,550,000.

Riggs Bank now has resources aggregating $56,907,085.44, according to a condensed report of condition compiled for the year ended December 31. This figure compares with a total of $51,538,849.79 reported in the October 3 bank call before the resources of the Farmers & Mechanics were combined with the Riggs assets to form the larger total.
